IAAF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The IAAF's centenary decade is ending as it began, with a world championships in Qatar's dynamic capital, Doha. In March 2010, the World Indoor Championships took place at the ASPIRE Dome, just a stroll away from the Khalifa International Stadium where the 2019 IAAF World Championships will soon unfold.

The significance of the region in our sport has grown significantly in the period between those two events. The very first Diamond League meeting took place in Doha in May 2010. IAAF members from the Middle East are filling ever higher positions in medal and placing tables at championships, not least the 2019 Asian Championships which were held here in April. It's no longer unusual to see world-beating athletes from the Gulf and there will be much to cheer here for the home nation as it welcomes the world.

This book has expanded with the World Championships. In 1983 there were 41 events, and the book filled 432 pages. Now we have 49 events including the first for "universals", the mixed 4x400 metres relay. The book is now more than 800 pages long with updated lists, records, results and narrative covering the increasing amount of events and IAAF members. I hope you will quickly find the facts you need as you prepare to see a new set of statistics rolled out in Doha.

The IAAF is eternally grateful to the members of the Association of Track and Field Statisticians (ATFS), whose diligent work makes it possible for the IAAF to present a book of this depth and scope. Their work goes far beyond the basic facts and figures required to run a championships. Such details may seem unimportant at first glance, but they come into their own when we need to put into context the unexpected and noteworthy events we'll surely see across 10 days in Doha. With this book, you have our history in your hands and we're excited to see how the next chapter unfolds.

MESSAGE DU PRESIDENT DE L'IAAF

La première décennie du centenaire de l'IAAF s'achève comme elle a commencé: avec un championnat du monde à Doha, dans l'effervescente capitale qatarie. En mars 2010, les Championnats du monde en salle avaient eu lieu au sein du Dôme ASPIRE à quelques pas du stade international Khalifa qui accueillera bientôt les Championnats du monde de l'IAAF.

Entre ces deux compétitions, notre sport s'est considérablement développé dans la région. Le meeting inaugural du circuit de la Diamond League s'était tenu à Doha en mai 2010. Les athlètes du Moyen-Orient ont depuis lors gagné des galons en matière de médailles et de tableaux de classement en championnats et notamment lors des Championnats d'Asie qui se sont déroulés ici, en avril dernier. Désormais, il n'est plus rare de voir des athlètes du Golfe réaliser des performances de premier ordre et ils seront nombreux à être encouragés à domicile, tandis que le Qatar recevra les athlètes du monde entier.

Depuis la création des Championnats du monde, cet ouvrage s'est abondamment étoffé: en 1983, il existait 41 épreuves et cet annuaire comportait 432 pages. A présent, il en existe 49 dont le premier relais 4x400m mixte et cette publication contient plus de 800 pages avec des listes régulièrement mises à jour, différents records, résultats et anecdotes concernant un nombre croissant d'épreuves et de pays. J'espère que vous y trouverez rapidement les informations dont vous avez besoin au moment où vous vous apprêtez à assister à de nouvelles performances à Doha qui viendront à leur tour enrichir les statistiques.

L'IAAF est infiniment reconnaissante aux membres de l'Association des Statisticiens d'Athlétisme (ATFS) car ce sont leurs minutieuses recherches qui permettent la réalisation d'un livre aussi dense. Leur travail va bien au-delà des statistiques et des chiffres pour appréhender un championnat. De tels détails peuvent paraître anodins mais ils prennent tout leur sens quand il s'agit de mettre en perspective les performances spectaculaires ou inattendues auxquelles nous allons sûrement assister au cours de ces 10 jours de compétition à Doha. C'est toute l'histoire de l'athlétisme que vous tenez entre vos mains et nous sommes impatients de voir s'écrire un nouveau chapitre!

Sebastian Coe

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS & NOTES

I am proud to present this, my 50th statistics handbook for various IAAF championships, cups and Olympics. We are now in a different world of athletics from the time of the first one in 1990. Then, there were four years between World Championships, the USSR was an IAAF member and we could only find lists and results on paper. Now, we are considering universal “mixed” events, neutral athletes, re-analysed doping samples and transponder times every 100m. Results are available on the click of a trackpad rather than the turn of a page.

The heart of the book are reports and results from all previous World Championships, listed by events and year. The 48 events from London 2017 are of course added, and around the same number have been reworked to exorcise doping offenders. Spare a thought for the “rightful finalists” identified in this context and listed on these pages. Happily the rate of offence seems to have slowed. There are only three past events with new world champions here (plus two pending), compared with 14 in the 2017 edition. As at July 31, 2019, no men’s performance from London 2017 has been disqualified for doping.

This book includes around 1700 national records set since the 2017 edition, a turnover of about 17%. Two new World Championship events have been established since the last book, the women’s 50 kilometres walk and the universal (mixed) 4x400m relay. These have been fully covered in the records and lists sections, as is a further new world record event, five kilometres on the road. At the other end of the heritage scale, work continues to fill in gaps from an era when details weren’t published online for all to find. This edition is the first one to list all reaction times from the straight finals of Helsinki 1983. The women’s mile is added to the list of events with top threes going back to the 60s. Another new section sets out thumbnail sketches of each championships, highlighting some background, firsts, lasts, changes and even mascots.

I am lucky that the main compilers all agreed to contribute again: Tomas Magnusson, Richard Hymans, Winfried Kramer (with Heinrich Hubbeling), Peter Matthews, György Csiki and Robert Martin. Thanks also to the IAAF (especially the departments of Competitions and Communications), the Athletics Integrity Unit, European Athletics and the International Olympic Committee, all for answering my e-mail queries over the past two years. The same goes for Delta Tre Informatica, Seiko and ST Sportservice GmbH. I have relied on many websites besides iaaf.org, in particular tilastopaja.org (Mirko Jalava), alltime-athletics.com (Peter Larsson), arrs.run (Andy Milroy & Juraj Gasparovic), www.atleticalive.it, www.marciadalmondo.com, and also “EME News”, “Athletics International” (Peter Matthews & Mel Watman), “Race Results Weekly” (David Monti), “Track & Field News” and “AW.” Lastly I must thank many individuals who gave their time and expertise: Luciano Barra, Liz Birchall, Athanassios Bissas, Thomas Byrne, Thomas Conostas, Hilary Evans, Carole Fuchs, Andrea Guglielmino, Paul Hepburn, Bob Hersh, E. Garry Hill, Ian Hodge, Paul Jenes, Hugh Jones, A Lennart Julin, Fivos Karvellas, Georges Keppler, Nikos Kriezis, Nicolas Launois, Steve Landells, Sieg Lindstrom, Neil Loft, Bill Mallon, Mark Milde, Andy Milroy, Phil Minshull, Jon Mulkeen, Pierce O’Callaghan, Salih Münir Yaraş, Walt Murphy, Ken Nakamura, Yoshimasa Noguchi, Marty Post, Bob Ramsak, Michelle Sammet, Kevin Saylors, Stavros Spyrou, Sergey Tikhonov, Gabriel Tissot, Alp Ulagay, Hans Van Kuijen, Pierre-Jean Vazel, Miguel Villaseñor and Luis Vinker. A special final thanks to the late Ken Young (1941-2018), the co-founder of the Association of Road Racing Statisticians. His passion for detail and rigor brought us the sort of facts no-one else would provide.

The views expressed as part of the compilations contained in this book are not necessarily those of the IAAF.

Russia

Performances by (non-authorized neutral) Russian athletes during Russia's suspension from the IAAF (November 2015) are marked with the symbol "f".

South Africa

Performances by South African athletes in the period between the Republic's suspension from the IAAF (July 1976) and admission as a provisional member (May 1992) are marked with the symbol "†".

Athletes' Names

In this book, we have attempted to use the most generally understandable, recognisable and pronounceable versions of athletes' names, in accordance with the policy of the ATFS. In general, we strive to use the names the athletes actually want, which may well not agree with those given on entry forms and/or passports. For instance with Belarusian and Ukrainian names we have used generally Russian transliterations of older athletes. So we have Sergey Bubka not Serhiy, Vladimir Golubnichiy, not Volodymyr Holubnichiy and Andrey Kravchenko, not Andrei Krauchanka, etc. Corrections and comments are welcomed.

City Names

In keeping with ATFS policy, native spelling is used for the names of cities given in lists in this book. In text, the English (or French) version of the name is used.

2 4:29:45.6 Katie Burnett USA San Diego 13 Jul 19 – Best on record but below IAAF's minimum standard of 4:20:00

3 14:32+ Joyciline Jepkosgei KEN Praha 9 Sep 17 – Not considered by IAAF because performance took place before their ratification period for the inaugural record (since January 1, 2018)

4 1:23:39 Yelena Lashmanova RUS Cheboksary 9 Jun 18 – Unratifiable: Federation suspended and no international judges

5 3:57:08 Klavdiya Atanasyeva RUS Cheboksary 16 Jun 19 – Unratifiable: Federation suspended and no international judges

6 The IAAF Council agreed that the inaugural world record will be the first performance to better the recognised world best performance at December 31, 2017, which was 3:13:20 United States (Kylie Clomons (M), Claudia Francis (W), James Harris (M), Phyllis Francis (W)) Philadelphia 29 Jul 16. The one mark quicker than that, 3:11.89 Bahrain, (Ali Khamis (M), Kemi Adekoya (W), Salwa Eid Naser (M), Abbas Abbas (M)) Jakarta 28 Aug 18, could not be ratified as no doping control was performed, and in any case Adekoya failed an earlier test at the same meeting (subject to appeal as at July 31, 2019)

IAAF WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP RECORDS

On June 1, 1993, the IAAF General Secretary and IAAF General Director clarified that it was the policy of the IAAF to recognise "an IAAF World Championship Record" as the best performance achieved at a championship which conforms to all criteria for World Records (IAAF Rule 260) except that there is no obligatory doping control test. Therefore, wind-assisted marks (see IAAF rules 260.14.c, 260.17.b and 260.18) should not be regarded as Championship Records

IAAF WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP FACTS & FIGURES

The participation totals here are the numbers of athletes who actually competed. Not counted are reserves, those who were declared but did not start, and competitors in exhibition veteran or paralympic events. Those disqualified for doping are counted as competitors, but not finalists.

Malmö 1976

VM i gång

THE WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS IN WALKING

IAAF World Championship
Men's 50 Kilometre Walk
Malmö, Sweden – September 20, 1976
Contested by 42 athletes from 20 countries
Number of countries providing:
Champions: 1; Medallists: 3; Top 8: 5

After the IOC had dropped the event from the programme of the Montreal Olympics, the IAAF agreed in August 1974 that Sweden would organise a separate world championship race after the 1976 Games. The IAAF Walking Committee agreed to Svenska Fri-Idrottsförbundet's proposal to stage the race on a 2.5Km loop in Malmö.

Sittard 1980

IAAF World Championship
Women's 3000m & 400m Hurdles
Stadium "De Baandert"
Sittard, Netherlands – August 14-16, 1980
Contested by 42 athletes from 22 countries
Number of countries providing:
Champions: 2; Medallists: 4; Finalists/top 8: 12

At the same Seoul IAAF Council meeting of April 1978, where the 1983 World Championships were confirmed, it was also agreed that separate World Championships for the women's 3000m and 400m hurdles should be organised in 1980. Attempts to include these events at the 1980 Olympics had failed. Initially Dublin was announced as the host city, the intention being a joint meeting with that year's Irish Championships. Later in 1978, Sittard was confirmed as the venue. The national teams of the USSR, Romania and Bulgaria withdrew a few days in advance of the championships. By time the meeting took place, the IOC Programme Commission had agreed to include the events at the 1984 Olympics. They were already on the programme for Helsinki 1983.

Helsinki 1983

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (1)
Olympic Stadium
Helsinki, Finland – August 7-14, 1983
Contested by 1333 athletes from 153 countries
Number of countries providing:
LOC President: Carl-Olaf Homén
Mascot: Lasse (rabbit)

The April 1978 IAAF Council meeting in Seoul featured a unanimous recommendation that a World Championships should be staged in 1983. The 19-man IAAF Council then awarded the event to Helsinki at their Paris meeting in March 1980. The other candidate was Stuttgart.

A total of 162 countries entered and though only 153 actually participated, the championships were still regarded as the most international gathering in the history of sport. The IAAF Bulletin (Issue 43) reported that one billion viewers watched the championships every day. They joined a total seated audience of 422,402. Some 6215 telephone calls were made and 1645 fax messages were sent from the press centre during the championships. For the first time in a major contest, intermediate times over distances exceeding 800m were noted for every competitor.

A total of 200 doping control tests were made, including all medal winners plus random testing in preliminary rounds. Ninety-five per cent of all placement points were won by athletes from Europe or North America. Some tickets were as cheap as FIM 20 ($4), yet the largest revenue item was ticket sales of FIM 18.4 million ($3.2 million). The Finnish federation announced a profit of about $665,000, around three times what was expected.

Rome 1987

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (2)
Olympic Stadium
Rome, Italy – August 28-September 6, 1987
Contested by 1419 athletes from 156 countries
Number of countries providing:
Champions: 14; Medallists: 27; Finalists/top 8: 47
LOC President: Giampiero Casciotti
Mascot: Romeo (half wolf, half Colosseum)

Rome was selected as the 1987 venue unanimously by the IAAF Council at their meeting in Rome in April 1983. London and Indianapolis had expressed some interest but their bids never materialised. In order to take account of late withdrawals, four athletes were allowed to be entered in each event, from which three could be declared on the eve of that event.

The International Athletic Foundation produced a colossal scientific report of the championships which proved so popular that a second edition was printed. It included 52 pages on the high jump events alone and revealed measurements of the distances horizontal jumpers took off before the edge of the board. As reported in detail on page 171, the initial result of the men's long jump featured a falsified measurement. It was officially corrected seven months later, and the bronze medal was awarded to a different athlete.

Women's races of 10,000m (track) and 10Km (road walk) were staged for the first time, the former with two first-round heats. A total of 518,000 spectators attended across eight days and performed the "mexican wave" for the first time at a World Championships.

Tokyo 1991

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (3) Olympic Stadium

Tokyo, Japan – August 23-September 1, 1991

Contested by 1491 athletes from 162 countries

Number of countries providing:

Champions: 16; Medallists: 29; Finalists/top 8: 52

LOC President: Hanji Aoki

Mascot: Althlestar (yellow ovoid)

Tokyo was selected ahead of Berlin, Los Angeles and Perth by the IAAF Council at their Rome meeting in March 1987. A newly developed chipless urethane track proved fast for sprinters, hurdlers and jumpers, though was less popular with distance runners. Eighteen million dollars were spent on the opening ceremonies. These featured a cast of 3500 who performed in front of 38,526 spectators including the Emperor and Empress of Japan.

Sprinter's reaction times were revealed to the press for the first time. Photofinish images were displayed on a jumbotron screen with times (and records) confirmed within seconds. Among the statistics displayed on the brand new 20.18m x 7.36m scoreboard were three world records, all in events which featured the undisputed superstar of world athletics, Carl Lewis. He concluded "This has been the best track and field meet in history – and the best for me."

These were the final championships for the USSR and the first for a united Germany. The total attendance (581,462) exceeded that of Helsinki and Rome.

Stuttgart 1993

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (4)

Gottlieb-Daimler Stadium

Stuttgart, Germany – August 13-22, 1993

Contested by 1630 athletes from 187 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: August Kirsch

Mascot: Runny (rabbit)

The championships were staged with two years' notice, as it was only agreed to have a biennial cycle in 1991. Originally, Athens, Gothenburg, Melbourne & Stuttgart had bid for 1995. Gothenburg was chosen for that year, and Stuttgart 1993, by the IAAF Council at Tokyo in August 1991. In response to threatened boycotts from athletes and agents who complained that no prize money would be on offer, luxury cars worth $30,000 were given to all champions. A sound-reflecting roof proved so effective that the German competitors in the men's discus formally asked the crowd to quieter.

Some 576,918 spectators enjoyed these, the final World Championships with a rest day, the first to crown a women's champion at triple jump, and the first with athletes from South Africa. More than three million sheets of A4 were distributed at the championships, including the first ever "biographical summaries", showing data on all finalists on one or two pages. The official song "Celebrate and Win" was sung live at the opening ceremony by Ireland's double Eurovision Song Contest winner Johnny Logan.

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (5)

Ullevi Stadium

Gothenburg, Sweden – August 4-13, 1995

Contested by 1755 athletes from 190 countries

Number of countries providing:

Champions: 24; Medallists: 43; Finalists/top 8: 66

LOC President: Bernt Gröön

Mascot: Kalo (lynx)

Gothenburg was selected by the 1991 IAAF Council in August that year, in Tokyo, just before the World Championships. At the same meeting it was agreed that the championships would be staged every two years, with Stuttgart awarded the 1993 edition. There were 22 disqualifications for lane violations. The medallists' podium had no steps but was in the design of a spiral with track markings. Results were posted on the internet within a minute of becoming official. A further service for the media was that all results were immediately distributed as electronic mail. "Journalists briefcases" were available to rent during the championships, containing a laptop, printer and mobile phone. Gothenburg had the world's highest density of mobile phones according to the Information Technology Project Manager for the championships. A wireless local area network operated with a transmission speed of 256 kilobytes per second.

An audience of 564,676 saw nine consecutive days of competition, including the first-ever World Championship 5000m for women (replacing the 3000m). A lively "Market Street" of shops and entertainment was established next to the stadium, much to the enjoyment of those attending the event. These were the last World Championships with no doping disqualifications.

Athens 1997

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (6) "Spyridon Louis" Olympic Stadium Athens, Greece – August 1-10, 1997

Contested by 1785 athletes from 197 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: Andreas Fournas

Mascot: Pegasus (winged horse)

Mexico City was originally selected as host by the IAAF Council in November 1994, but the city withdrew four months later for economic reasons. Fresh bids were invited and after a secret IAAF Council ballot at Gothenburg in May 1995, Athens was awarded the event over Madrid, Helsinki, New Delhi and Stanford. The IAAF Hymn, composed by Vangelis Odysseas Papanastasiou, was performed for the first time at the opening ceremony, staged at the historic Panathinaikon arena in front of a crowd of 59,627. That was also the venue for the finish of the marathons, taking place for the first time outside the main stadium.

Wildcard entries were introduced for defending champions, meaning they could be entered by countries on top of their usual quota. It was also agreed that host countries could enter one athlete in each event regardless of standard. In the marathons, five per country were allowed as the World Cup format was absorbed into the meeting. Monetary awards were given for the first time ($60,000 for gold, $40,000 for silver, $20,000 for bronze), but only to medalists. A further $100,000 was on offer to world record breakers, but for the first time at a World Championships, there were none. In the break between sessions, one of the swimming pools in the Olympic park was made available to all accredited media. Changing facilities, showers and free food were supplied there for the duration of the championships. More countries won titles (26) than won medals at Helsinki 1983, and the published attendance total (760,029) was also the highest ever at the time.

Seville 1999

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (7)

Olympic Stadium, La Cartuja

Seville, Spain – August 20-29, 1999

Contested by 1750 athletes from 200 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: Luis Navarrete

Mascot: Giraldira (characterisation of the weather vane on top of Seville landmark La Giralda)

Seville was awarded the championships at the IAAF Council meeting in Turin of March 1997. The other candidates were New Delhi, Helsinki and Stanford. The Estadio de La Cartuja was custom-built for the championships in less than two years and was inaugurated with a friendly football match in May 1999, where Spain defeated Croatia 3-1. Athletics events were held at half time.

At the World Championships, the number of countries actually competing reached 200 for the first time. There was also a record number of events including three new ones for women, the pole vault, hammer throw and 20Km walk (replacing the 10,000m / 10Km). The timetable was contracted such that there were just four morning sessions, other than when only road races were staged. It was possible for spectators (497,484 of them) to buy "IAAF Sound Track", a radio set with headphones providing expert commentary in English and Spanish in the stadium and immediate surroundings. That commentary was also available on the IAAF website. For the first time, the IAAF produced, free of charge, news coverage to be distributed to all European Broadcasting Union members and world-wide through television news agencies.

Edmonton 2001

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (8) Commonwealth Stadium

Edmonton, Canada – August 3-12, 2001

Contested by 1602 athletes from 189 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC Chair, Board of Directors: Jack Agrios &

LOC President / CEO: Rick LaLacheur

Mascots: Tracker (wolf) & Fielder (bear)

Edmonton overwhelmingly defeated New Delhi, Stanford and Helsinki for the championships at the IAAF Council meeting at Monaco in November 1998. The votes were 22 for Edmonton and one each for Paris and Stanford.

The opening ceremony featured not only the finish of the men's marathon, but also ended with the largest close proximity pyrotechnics display ever to be staged in Canada. For the first time there were infield hosts describing and presenting the championship action, in front of a cumulative audience of 402,916. One of the two hosts was Jon Ridgeon, now the new (2019) IAAF Chief Executive Officer. The fight against doping took another step in Edmonton with tests for erythropoietin (EPO) being carried out for the first time at a World Championship.

The award money scale was extended to places 4-8. All of the top eight relay teams and the top six World Marathon Cup teams were also rewarded, making a total purse of $7,186,000. A $8M surplus from the "World's" championships was used to fund a training centre at the University of Alberta's South Campus.

Paris 2003

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (9) Stade de France

Paris Saint-Denis, France – August 23-31, 2003

Contested by 1679 athletes from 198 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: Jean Doussourd

Mascot: None

At their April 2000 meeting in Paris, the IAAF Council unanimously selected both Paris for 2003 and London for 2005. The 2003 venue was originally built for the 1998 men's FIFA (football) World Cup. Uniquely, the lower tier of the stadium was retractable, enabling re-configuration between the needs of athletics and events not requiring a track. The process took 72 hours for 15m of movement with the support of an air cushion to avoid damage to the track surface. A total of 550,132 spectators were in attendance.

A stricter false start ruling was in use for the first time at a world championships. After one transgression, whoever committed a second was automatically disqualified. For the first time, field events (apart from shot putters) were given a rest day before their finals. Both men's walks were won with world best performances (world records not yet being accepted in road events), but the IAAF Council agreed to award the $100,000 meant for official world record breakers to the two protagonists.

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (10) Olympic Stadium

Helsinki, Finland – August 6-14, 2005

Contested by 1687 athletes from 191 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: Ilkka Kanerva

Mascot: Findy (characterisation of the tower at Helsinki's Olympic Stadium)

The 2005 World Championships had been initially assigned to London. The originally favoured venue was Wembley Stadium, but the rebuilding of that venue was not only delayed but never included provision for athletics. The IAAF accepted a proposal including a freshly-built stadium in North London, but in autumn 2001, the British government withdrew support for that project. Sheffield was offered as an alternative, but the IAAF instigated a new bidding process. At the IAAF Council meeting in Nairobi of April 2002, six rounds of voting (including a tie-break) were required before Helsinki won from Berlin, Budapest, Rome and Brussels.

Two months of rain fell in three days in the middle of the championships. Broadcasting rights were signed covering 192 territories, compared with 135 at the first Helsinki championships. For the first time, doping samples were preserved for re-analysis. A webcast service of television coverage was made available to subscribers (costing, for instance, $4.95 for all days in the USA). The women's 3000m steeplechase was staged for the first time. Two events (men's 200m & women's 5000m) featured top four sweeps by countries who had additional wildcard entries. A system to measure long and triple jumps instantly using video and new technology (VDM, video distance measurement) was used for the first time. The championships were staged on exactly the same days (August 7-14) as in 1983. After 22 years, Africa had increased its share of placement points from 2.5% to 16.8%, while Europe dipped from 72.9% to 46.7%. The total audience was 345,090.

Osaka 2007

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (11) Nagai Stadium

Osaka, Japan – August 25-September 2, 2007

Contested by 1800 athletes from 197 countries

Number of countries providing:

Champions: 22; Medallists: 46; Finalists/top 8: 73

LOC President: Yohei Kono

Mascot: Traffie (blue flame)

Osaka was one of three cities to express an interest in hosting the 2007 World Championships alongside Budapest and Berlin. The latter two had withdrawn their bids before the 2002 deadline. As the one remaining candidate, Osaka was announced as the host in Monaco that November.

Innovative pole vault landing mats were used which could absorb then drain any rain, rather than letting it form pools on the surface of the bed. However, conditions in general were hot and humid. There was a new record – which still stands in 2019 – for the number of countries winning medals (46). A “Citizen’s Supporting Association” was formed to maximise the involvement of locals, such as cheer-leading for marathon runners. For the first time, the number of drug tests exceeded 1000 (976 in competition and 82 in training camps). These were the final world championships with front bib numbers rather than names. A record number of countries won medals (46), though fewer tickets than ever (254,399) were sold.

Berlin 2009

IAAF World Championships in Athletics (12) Olympic Stadium

Berlin, Germany – August 15-22, 2009

Contested by 1895 athletes from 200 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC Co-CEOs: Heinrich Clausen & Frank Hensele

Mascot: Berlino (bear)

Berlin was announced the winning bidder by the IAAF at Helsinki in December 2004, winning with an absolute majority in the first round of voting. Other candidates were Split, Valencia and Brussels. Brisbane, Delhi and Casablanca had also expressed interest, initially. The historic 1936 Olympic stadium had been recently refurbished for the occasion of the 2006 men’s FIFA (football) World Cup and a blue track was used for the first time at a world championships. There were 518,582 spectators in the stadium for the duration of the championships.

The Berlin mascot ‘Berlino’ – an anthropomorphic bear – reached new levels of popularity after engaging with athletes, spectators and the media and even participating in studio discussions on television. He/she even made an appearance at the World Athletics Gala that autumn. The continuing The IAAF Green Project saw 47 trees planted in the Berlin area of Charlottenburg-Wilmersdorf – one for each Berlin champion, with a name tag identifying the champion and event. Berlin 2009 was the final “IAAF World Championships in Athletics”. In autumn of that year the IAAF renamed the event as simply the “IAAF World Championships”. The number of athletes competing in Berlin (1895) remains a record total.

IAAF World Championships (13) Daegu Stadium

Daegu, Korea – August 27-September 4, 2011

Contested by 1742 athletes from 199 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC Presidents: Kim Bum-il & Cho Hae-nyoung

Mascot: Sarbi (Sapsali dog, indigenous to Daegu)

Daegu was chosen by the IAAF Council during their meeting in Mombasa in March 2007. The opposing cities were Brisbane, Gothenburg and Moscow, though at the same meeting Moscow was also named for 2013. The championship slogan “Sprint Together for Tomorrow” was engraved on the reverse of every medal. The stadium track was the first blue one in Korea. Every competing athlete was blood tested for their Athlete’s Biological Passports, creating the largest available information bank with haematological and hormone profiles of elite athletes. Over a 17-day period, a total of 1848 pre-competition blood samples were collected, representing a sample from each participant in Korea. In all, a record 62 violators were caught in Daegu as at July 14, 2019.

These were the first world championships with instant disqualification for any athlete committing one false start. A more compact schedule saw fewer qualifying rounds and a greater concentration of finals in the evening sessions. Non-qualified athletes in the 100m were required to contest a preliminary round for the chance to compete in the first (of three) rounds with the elite. It was decided that 2011 would see the final edition of the World Marathon Cup. The cumulative audience was 446,305.

IAAF World Championships (14) Luzhniki Stadium

Moscow, Russia – August 10-18, 2013

Contested by 1784 athletes from 203 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC Chairman: Vitaly Mutko

Mascot: Vorobei (sparrow)

Moscow bid for the championships of either 2011 or 2013 at the Mombasa IAAF Council meeting in March 2007. There, Daegu was awarded the 2011 edition and Moscow was selected for 2013 ahead of Barcelona and one other city interested in either year: Brisbane. A record 203 countries competed at the «Luzhniki» arena, which had been used for the 1980 Olympics and was due to be reconfigured for the 2018 men's FIFA (football) World Cup. Bib transponders were used for the first time, producing official 100m splits for all athletes in track distance events.

The largest-ever number of doping control tests were conducted, including 1919 blood samples collected from the athletes located at four different hotels. Additionally, 538 athletes were urine-tested during the competition and 132 during the pre-competition period. Wild card entries, subject to national selection, were made possible for Diamond Race and IAAF Hammer Throw Challenge winners. The cumulative total audience, excluding accreditees, was 435,603.

Beijing 2015

Beijing National Stadium

Beijing, PR of China – August 22-30, 2015

Contested by 1761 athletes from 205 countries

Number of countries providing:

LOC President: Wang Anshun

Mascot: Yan'er (swallow)

The venue choice for the IAAF Council in Monaco in November 2010 was Beijing versus Chorzów. London had also bid, but again withdrew because of uncertainty over the legacy of the stadium which was yet to be used for the 2012 Olympics in that city. Beijing won and, of course, already had a tried and tested venue, the Beijing National Stadium "Bird's Nest". This had been newly renovated since the 2008 Olympics and now included a total of eight LED screens. The exterior steel structure had been polished and lacquered. Relay entries were limited to 16 invited teams, and the quartets were given special introductory entrances at the start of their finals. Most devised poses for the television cameras before taking to the track.

The online promotion of the sport brought about a 224% increase in mobile phone traffic over that of Moscow 2013, and there were 30% more visits to iaaf.org and 12.5% more followers of the IAAF Twitter account. The number of participating countries reached an all-time peak with 205. A record number of them (76) produced finalists. One figure was published for all attendees, including accredited personnel, 681,864.

London 2017

London Stadium

London, Great Britain & NI – August 4-13, 2017

(plus Authorised Neutral Athletes/ANA (all RUS), and the Athlete Refugee Team/ART)

Champions: 26 + ANA; Medallists: 42 + ANA;

Finalists/top 8: 74 + ANA

LOC Co-Chairmen: Ed Warner & Sir Robin Young

Mascot: Hero (hedgehog)

In November 2011, London won their bid for the championships, defeating Doha 16-10 in a vote by the IAAF Council in Monaco. Their bidding team included the then London Mayor, Boris Johnson. The location was the same as the 2012 Olympics, but the venue had by 2017 been re-configured as a multi-purpose stadium. It was adorned with colours of and references to its primary occupant, the English men's professional football club West Ham United. After a late decision to incorporate a 50Km walk for women, London became the first world championship with the same number of events (24) for men and women, and the first with 10 days of track and field action. As well as relay teams, athletes in track finals entered the stadium individually with a fanfare of fireworks.

Four sets of ceremonies were staged in which medals stripped from doping offenders were reallocated. There were athlete-themed 'World Record' ticket prices, with the same numbers as records set at previous championships: €9.58, £12.91, £18.29 and £52.74. A team from Leeds Beckett University carried out the biggest biomechanics research project ever conducted in athletics. Another record was broken, that of attendance. There were a total of 760,590 paying spectators. That figure swelled to 900,000 if (cumulative) accreditees are included. These were the first world championships featuring an Athlete Refugee Team. Some athletes from the suspended IAAF member Russia were authorised to compete as neutrals. The 1997 record total of 26 countries winning golds was equalled – or beaten by one if it is accepted that Russia can be counted.

Khalifa International Stadium

Doha, Qatar – September 28-October 6, 2019

LOC General Director: Dahlan Jumaan Al Hamad

Mascot: Falah (falcon)

Doha was awarded the championships by the IAAF Council at Monaco in November 2014. The voting was: first round – Doha 12, Eugene 9, Barcelona 6 (Barcelona eliminated); second round: Doha 15, Eugene 12. There are to be no morning sessions, with action taking place across a two-part evening session including marathon races starting at midnight. The renovated stadium is to include digital floodlights and air-conditioning technology among other innovations. For the first time, the logos of sponsors of national teams may appear on the kit in which their athletes compete. Other firsts for the championships: a pink track and a new event, the universal (mixed) 4x400m relay. In Jul 2019, it was announced that there would be a free WiFi service for everyone in the stadium.

World Athletics Championships (18) Hayward Field

Eugene, United States – August 6-15, 2021 (provisional)

Eugene was assigned the championships by the IAAF Council in their April 2015 meeting at Beijing. “The proposal to award the IAAF’s premier competition to Eugene, bypassing the usual bidding process, was taken in response to what was seen as a unique strategic opportunity to host the IAAF World Championships for the first time in the USA,” the IAAF explained.

Budapest 2023

World Athletics Championships (19) National Athletics Centre

Budapest, Hungary – August 26-September 3, 2023
(provisional)

The IAAF Council announced in December 2018 that Budapest was to be host of these World Championships. A key component of the bid is the construction of a new stadium that will serve primarily as an athletics facility. “Budapest is the first IAAF World Championships host to be named under the new bidding process announced in February 2017 through which the IAAF assesses its strategic goals for growing the sport, targeting cities from countries and regions which will best assist in delivery of those aims,” explained the IAAF.

WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS SUPERLATIVES

A total of 14,517 athletes from 224 different teams have competed in the IAAF World Championships (counting 2017's Athlete Refugee Team), 4817 reaching finals, 1617 winning medals, of which 611 have won golds. A total of 155 athletes have had their results disqualified due to doping violations, as at July 31, 2019.

Eleven countries have competed in every autonomous IAAF World Championships including the Olympic compensation events staged in Malmö 1976 (men's 50 kilometres walk) and Sittard 1980 (women's 3000m & 400m hurdles). These are: Australia, Canada, France, Germany (incorporating the FRG and the GDR), Great Britain & NI, Israel, Netherlands, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States. Eight more competed every time in 1980-2017: Argentina, Chinese Taipei, Denmark, Ireland, Ivory Coast, New Zealand, Norway and Portugal. The Country Index (page 531) lists a further 79 countries who competed from 1983 onwards. That makes a total of 98 "ever present" independent countries at every IAAF World Championships starting with 1983. All 214 current IAAF members have now competed in at least one IAAF World Championships.

The biggest IAAF World Championships were Berlin 2009 with 1895 participants from 200 countries. The most countries with at least one starter, 205, appeared at the 2015 edition in Beijing.

The IAAF World Championships with the most countries winning gold medals were Athens 1997 and London 2017, each with 26. London's total could be regarded as 27 if the victory of Mariya Lasitskene is counted for Russia, but she was competing as an "Authorised Neutral".

The IAAF World Championships with the most countries winning medals was Osaka 2007 with a total of 46 different IAAF members taking their pace on the podium. A complete list of such totals for every championships is given from page 17.

The first IAAF World Champion was Veniamin Soldatenko (URS/KAZ), who won the 50 kilometres Walk in 1976. The first in the main championships was marathoner Grete Waitz (NOR) in 1983. The first to successfully defend a title was Carl Lewis (USA), once it was confirmed that he and not Ben Johnson was the rightful winner of the 100m final staged on the second full day of the 1987 championships.

The most medals won by an individual at the World Championships is 16 (eleven gold, three silver & two bronze) by Allyson Felix (USA) at 200m, 400m, 4x100m relay & 4x400m relay between 2005 and 2017. The most by a man is 14 (eleven gold, two silver & one bronze) by Usain Bolt (JAM) across the 100m, 200m & 4x100m relay 2007-2017. Among countries, the United States have won a record total of 352 medals, comprising 155 golds, 107 silvers and 90 bronzes.

The most golds won by an individual is eleven by two athletes: Allyson Felix and Usain Bolt as noted above. The most individual golds won is seven by Bolt.

The most medals won at a single championship is four by four women, across the 100m, 200m or 400m and relays. These are Marita Koch (GDR) 1983, Katrin Krabbe (GER) 1991, Gwen Torrence (USA) 1993 and Allyson Felix 2011. Koch's total included three golds, a record matched in 2007 by Felix; five men have also won three golds in the same year, Carl Lewis in 1983/87, Michael Johnson (USA) 1995, Maurice Greene (USA) 1999, Tyson Gay (USA) 2007 and Usain Bolt 2009, 2013 & 2015. The most medals won by a country at a single championship is 31 by the GDR in 1987.

The greatest success in a single event was achieved by Sergey Bubka (URS) with six golds from six appearances in 1983-1997. LaShawn Merritt (USA) also won six successive golds in the 4x400m relay in 2005-2015. The first of those was awarded when Merritt ran in the heats only for a team which went on to win the final.

The best single event record by a woman, individually, is six medals (two golds, a silver and three bronzes) at 200m by Merlene Ottey (JAM) in 1983-1997. Beverly McDonald (JAM) and Jearl Miles Clark (USA) each also won six medals at 4x100m and 4x400m relays respectively. To that list can now be added Christine Ohuruogu (GBR), with 4x400m relay medals every year in 2005-2015. Three of those were upgrades after the results of Russian doping offenders Anastasiya Kapachinskaya and Antonina Krivoschapka were disqualified.

The most medals won in a single event is seven by the Kenyan steeplechaser Ezekiel Kemboi. He won three silvers in 2003-2007 then four golds in 2009-2015.

The closest known finish to a World Championships event came in the women's 100m in Stuttgart 1993, when Gail Devers (USA) beat Merlene Ottey by one thousandth of a second (10.811 to 10.812). The margin of victory in the 2007 women's 100m was 0.002 involving another American-Jamaican rivalry; Veronica Campbell (JAM) 11.006 over Laurn Williams (USA) 11.008.

Unfortunately, for two further events where the winner shared the same time to the hundredth – the 1991 men's 110m hurdles and 1993 women's 4x100m relay – the precise times have been lost.

The oldest World Champion is Ellina Zvereva (BLR), winner of the 2001 discus throw at 40 years 269 days. The oldest male champion is Yohann Diniz (FRA), winner of the 2017 50 kilometres walk at 39 years 224 days.

The youngest gold medalist is Merlene Frazer (JAM) who at 17 years 248 days was part of the winning Jamaican 4x100m relay squad in 1991. The youngest individual champion is Tirunesh Dibaba (ETH), 5000m winner in 2003 at 17 years 333 days. The youngest male champion is Ismael Kirui (KEN), 5000m winner in 1993 at 18 years 177 days. A fuller list of age records is given from page 43.

The most championships contested is 12 by 50 kilometre walker Jesús Ángel García (ESP). The most by a woman is 11 by another race walker, Susana Feitór (POR). A thorough list of most appearances is given from page 37.

The most rounds competed by an athlete at the World Championships is 59 by Merlene Ottey (JAM/SLO) in 1983-1997 and 2003/2007. The most by a man is 44 by sprinter Usain Bolt (JAM) at 100m, 200m & 4x100m relay in 2005-2017. Second on that list is Frankie Fredericks (NAM) with 41 starts across 1991-2003.

The athlete with the most results annulled for doping offences is sprinter Kelli White (USA), with 16 such disqualifications in 2001 and 2003. The most by a man is 15 by 400m runner Antonio Pettigrew (USA) in 1997-2001. Special mention should be given to shot putter Andrey Mikhnevich (BLR). He won the 2003 world title but had his qualifying and final performances disqualified at five further World Championships. These included bronze medals in 2007 and 2011. His compatriot Nadezhda Ostapchuk was stripped of shot put medals at three successive World Championships (2005, 2007 & 2011). A full picture of doping disqualifications is given from page 80.

Medal sweeps have been achieved by six countries: USA – men's 100m in 1983 & 1991, 200m 2005, 400m 2007 and long jump in 1983 & 1991; GDR – women's 400m hurdles in 1980 & heptathlon in 1983; PR of China – women's 3000m in 1993; Kenya – men's 3000m steeplechase in 1997, 2007 & 2015 and women's 10,000m & marathon in 2011; Russia – men's 20 kilometres walk in 2001 and women's long jump in 2007; Ethiopia – men's 10,000m in 2003 and women's 5000m in 2005 & 2015 & 10,000m in 2001 & 2005. The USA in the 2005 men's 200m, Kenya in the 2015 3000m steeplechase & Ethiopia in the 2005 women's 5000m filled the first four places. The teams in all those instances included bonus wildcard entries.

PERFORMANCE TRENDS

1 Only birth year is known, but even in worst case (born January 1) the athlete is the youngest

2 Marathon runner Ayele Setegn ISR – who was previously listed as the oldest ever competitor at 50 years 124 days in 2005 – was actually born in 1962 and not 1955 as submitted in various entry lists. Therefore he was 43 years old in Helsinki and not 50. It is correct that April 11, 1955 is his official birth date according to his Ethiopian passport and Israeli identity card. The 1955 date is from the Ethiopian calendar which runs seven years later than that in common use. An actual birthdate of April 11, 1962 has been confirmed by the athlete, and to the IAAF by the Israeli AA, who explain that for official purposes he must use the earlier date as this is what appears on his Israeli papers, which apparently cannot be changed

- 1 Dibaba's 2003 World Championship entry form listed a birthdate of June 1, 1985 which would mean she was 18 years and 90 days when she won that year. At subsequent events a birthday of October 1, 1985 was given for her and it is this date on which the statistics above are based
- 2 Elizabeth Wilson GHA, born 1967 and competing on 10 Aug 83 could be younger, but her exact birthdate is not known

PLACING TABLES

Eight points are given for a gold medal down to one for eighth place. Points are shared in the case of a tie (=). The columns in the overall placing tables do not all add up to 730 because of ties, non-finishers, disqualifications and non-starters. Reflected are doping disqualifications confirmed to the editor as at July 31, 2019.

INDIVIDUAL PLACING TABLES

These tables list every top eight placing by leading competitors at the IAAF World Championships, scoring eight points for first place, seven for second, six for third down to one for eighth place. Excluded are medals awarded to those who ran in preliminary rounds only. To begin, we list the leading men and women counting individual events only. These first two lists are comprised of athletes who can be regarded as the all-time greatest performers in IAAF World Championship history.

DOPING VIOLATIONS AT IAAF WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

This list shows all athletes who have had their IAAF World Championship performances annulled due to doping violations, committed by them at or before the championships, admissions included. The editor's interpretation of the rules in force is that up to the end of 2005, only marks made on or after the date of the positive sample are disqualified. From 2006, all performances by guilty athletes at a championships (before or after the day of the positive test) are declared invalid. Performances before 2006 which were allowed to stand under what were IAAF rules 59.4 then 39.1 are shown in italics below. Those names shown in bold have been confirmed as doping offenders since June 30, 2017. ○ = Case under appeal (or appeal window still open) as at July 31, 2019.

For each event, the following data are given:

Full results and brief report from each IAAF World Championship event:
Field event series are included for the top eight finalists, as are lane draws for 200m & 400m races

Multiple Medalists:

Athletes having won two or more medals in the event

Most Finals:

Athletes having contested most finals (or placed among the top eight in direct finals)

Most Appearances:

Athletes making most appearances (and six or more) in the event at the championships

National placings:

A table of placings by country in the first eight of each final. Point scores are computed by giving eight points for first place, seven for second etc, down to one for eighth

Disqualifications:

Rule numbers (r) were first revealed the 1993 World Championships. These have in some cases been renumbered to correspond with rules in the current book of IAAF Competition Rules (2018-2019):

142.4c	Failure to participate honestly with bona fide effort
162.8	False start
163.2	Jostling or obstruction on the track
163.3	Running out of lane (specifically 163.3a when run in lanes or 163.3b when inside kerb or border)
163.5	Running out of lane (before 800m breakline)
168.7	Illegal hurdle clearance (168.7a where specified) or deliberately knocking down hurdle (168.7b)
170.6	Finishing the race without the baton
170.7	Baton not passed within take-over zone
170.11	Unverified team composition or running order
170.19	Outgoing runner in 4x400m relay begins running outside take-over zone
170.20	Illegal change of waiting place by athletes on third or fourth legs (of 4x400m relay)
230.7a	Failure to comply with definition of race walking according to three different judges
240.8e	Illegal action by person authorised to hand refreshment to athlete
240.8f	More than two team officials stationed behind drinks table and/or running beside an athlete while taking on refreshment or water

Additional IAAF Anti-Doping Rules (2018)

10.1	Doping violation during or in connection with the championships
10.8	Prior doping violation leading to suspension during the period of the championships
11.1	Doping violation by one or more relay team members

Doping Offences

X is shown for those events where an original finalist or top eight finisher was disqualified for a doping offence. In these cases, where relevant, the rightful finalists are also highlighted. They are those athletes or teams who would were kept out of finals by doping offenders.

The editor's interpretation of the IAAF doping rules in force is that up to the end of 2005, only marks made on or after the date of the positive sample are disqualified. From 2006, all performances by guilty athletes at a championships (before or after the day of the positive test) are declared invalid. Therefore performances made on days before a positive sample was given in the years up to 2005 have been reinstated in this compilation.

Calvin Smith had just lowered the 25 year-old world record of Jim Hines from 9.95 to 9.93 in the rarified air of Colorado Springs, but the number one American was his compatriot Lewis. The 22 year-old had recently clocked the fastest-ever sea level sprint marks of 9.97 and 19.75 and won US titles in both sprints and the long jump. His class showed from the first round in Helsinki when he won his heat from lane 1 in 10.34, yet took time to turn and look at the other runners five times during the race. The final heat of the second round featured a false start which was triggered by Ben Johnson's watch alarm.

There was another quirky moment at the start of the final when a bee disturbed Lewis, causing him to stand up and walk from the blocks. At the third time of asking, it was the number three American, King, who got the best start. He was in lane 2 with Lewis next to him in lane 3 and Smith in lane 8. King was still leading at 60m (6.52) with Lewis (6.55) closing, and Olympic Champion Wells (6.61) holding third place. Then Lewis completed his last 20m in 1.79 to King's 1.95, meaning he suddenly moved away for a clearcut victory. Smith was the next fastest finisher (1.82) as the United States swept the medals.

The time between the "set" command and the gun in the final was recorded in an official report which also listed reaction times. It was 2.3 seconds.

X Rome 1987

1,	Carl Lewis	USA	9.93	0.196
2,	Ray Stewart	JAM	10.08	0.235
3,	Linford Christie	GBR	10.14	0.135
4,	Attila Kovács	HUN	10.20	0.201

6,	Lee McRae	USA	10.34	0.225
7,	Pierfrancesco Pavoni	ITA	16.23	0.163
(1.)	Ben Johnson	CAN	DQ (9.83)	0.109

Rightful finalist: Andreas Berger AUT

Rome was to see the first meeting of the year of the world's two most exciting athletes, defending champion Lewis versus the World Indoor Champion Johnson. The Canadian had beaten the American 3-0 in 1986, but Lewis wasted no time in confirming his form by registering the fastest-ever first round clocking, 10.05. He was even quicker in the semis. Johnson also won his semi with an impressive start and pickup.

Johnson and Lewis were drawn next to one another in the final. With his unusually fast start, Canadian gained an instant metre's lead over Lewis, and he increased this by half as much again at halfway. None of the other finalists was near. It soon became clear that even Lewis's renowned finish would make little impression on the Johnson, who stopped the stadium clock at a stunning 9.84. This was corrected to 9.83, a full one tenth quicker than the previous world record which Lewis equalled. Detailed analysis of the race showed that Johnson's start made the difference. His reaction time (originally reported as 0.129 but actually 0.109) was 0.85 quicker than that of Lewis, and he reached halfway in 5.53 (Lewis 5.64). The American made up just 0.01 in the second 50m. Johnson took 46.2 strides during the race compared with 44.6 by Lewis. "I did not do what I had to do out of the blocks," said Lewis immediately after the race. "Ben is a great runner. He set a world record and ran a great race. He deserved to win today."

Others were less generous with their comments. Johnson's feat provoked rumours of drug-taking for the remainder of the World Championships. In 1988, Johnson crossed the line first at the Olympic Games in 9.79, with Lewis again in second place. Three days later it was announced that he had tested positive for stanozolol, an anabolic steroid. The scandal led the Canadian Federal Government to establish the (Dubin) Commission of Inquiry into the widespread use of performance-enhancing substances. Throughout 1989, the inquiry heard testimonies from Johnson and others. The Canadian admitted that he had used steroids, testosterone and human growth hormone since 1981, but had not initially realised they were banned substances. That was in June 1989, then at the September IAAF Congress it was agreed that Johnson should lose his world title and world record from Rome 1987. Lewis therefore retained his title from Helsinki and effectively equalled the world record of the time.

Final (Aug 25) (1.2)

1,	Carl Lewis	USA	9.86	wR	0.140
2,	Leroy Burrell	USA	9.88		0.120
3,	Dennis Mitchell	USA	9.91		0.090
4,	Linford Christie	GBR	9.92		0.126
5,	Frankie Fredericks	NAM	9.95		0.151
6,	Ray Stewart	JAM	9.96		0.114
7,	Robson da Silva	BRA	10.12		0.172
8,	Bruny Surin	CAN	10.14		0.148

The final, in which 1987 silver medallist Stewart found a Jamaican record of 9.96 good enough for only sixth place, was generally regarded as the greatest sprint race of all-time. Once again Lewis was a key figure. Since retaining his Olympic title in 1988, he had been overshadowed by another American, Leroy Burrell, who improved the world record to 9.90 at the 1991 US Championships.

In the second round, Lewis clocked a windy 9.80. Two other men broke 10 seconds on what proved to be a very fast surface. The semi-finals were won by Lewis and Burrell in 9.93 and 9.94 respectively – the fastest preliminaries ever.

The two principals were drawn together for the final, but the best start was made by the third American, Mitchell. At halfway Stewart (5.54) had edged in front with Lewis sixth. Burrell took over only to be passed at 90m by Lewis's spectacular finish. The 30 year-old American won with new world record figures of 9.86. Burrell was also inside the old record. Mitchell took the bronze and became the third-fastest man in history. "He passed us like we were standing still," said Burrell, who ran the second half of the race in 4.33 compared to Lewis's 4.25.

There was some controversy after the race when it was eventually revealed that Mitchell's reaction time at the start had been 0.09 – so quick that an automatic false start alert would have been sounded on the starter's headphones. It transpired that the starter chose not to wear headphones. He was not obliged to do so, as IAAF rule 122.1 stated at the time: "The starter shall have the entire control of the competitors on their marks and shall be the sole judge of any fact connected with the start of the race."

Christie provided a counterpoint when he beat Lewis one month before Stuttgart, then followed up with a commanding victory at the championships. His winning time of 9.87 was achieved with a following wind of 0.3m compared with the 1.2m enjoyed by Lewis in the 1991 final. Cason led the American challenge, clocking personal bests in the second round and semi-final. In the final he was even quicker, and was in front 70m before being caught by the long-striding Briton. Mitchell repeated his 1991 bronze.

Lewis improved from last at 60m to fourth place, and was therefore beaten for the first time in a World or Olympic 100m final. Six of the eight finalists had also contested the Tokyo final two years earlier.

"I did not think I ran that fast," said the 33-year-old Christie. "I thought that I might have done a 9.92. I concentrated on getting a good start."

2,	Andre Cason	USA	9.92	0.183
3,	Dennis Mitchell	USA	9.99	0.128

Tokyo 1991 proved to be a turning point for Christie, who announced his retirement after finishing behind three Americans despite clocking 9.92. He changed his mind and came back for his best ever year in 1992, taking the Olympic title. Lewis, meanwhile, had a poor year as a sprinter in 1992, failing to make the US team for the 100m. But that did not stop some observers saying the Olympic final was "soft" in Lewis's absence.

7,	Olapade Adeniken	NGR	10.20	0.127
8,	Raymond Stewart	JAM	10.29	0.135

Christie's hopes of successfully defending his title ended when he succumbed to a hamstring injury in his semi-final. The Briton decided to contest the final at the last minute and got the best start, but faded from contention after halfway. Meanwhile, Boldon (lane 4) established a lead. Bailey (lane 5), who got a bad start, was pulled along by the young Trinidadian. He overtook Boldon in the last 40m and moved further away all the way until the finish. Surin also caught Boldon to give Canada gold and silver. All three medalists had Caribbean origins, because Bailey was born in Jamaica and Surin in Haiti.

The 1991 and 1993 bronze medallist, Mitchell, walked to the finish of his heat after suffering cramp after about five strides. Marsh was the only non-Commonwealth finalist and his fifth place represented the United States's worst showing in this event.

10 semi-finals (First 4 to final) (Aug 6)

Heat 1: (-0.2) 1, Surin 10.03; 2, Boldon 10.10; 3, Fredericks 10.10; 4, Christie 10.12; 5, Robson da Silva BRA 10.20; 6, Renward Wells BAH 10.27; 7, Michael Green JAM 10.30; 8, Gus Nketia NZL 10.45

Training partners Boldon and Greene ran sensational times in the second round. Boldon threw away the chance of a world record when he eased up for a 9.87 clocking, the fastest ever heat time and just 3/100ths away from Bailey's world record, while Greene finished second in a personal best equalling 9.90. Greene duplicated that time to win his semi just ahead of defending champion Bailey (9.91), Boldon taking his in the most casual looking 10.00 ever seen.

In the final, though, Boldon – claiming he suffered from cramp – was not a factor. Greene, who hadn't even reached the semi-finals in Gothenburg, dominated the race from the outset. He was 8/100ths ahead of a slow starting Bailey after 10m and finished 5/100ths clear in 9.86 to move to equal third on the world all-time list. It was his fifth legal mark of 9.90 or faster that season, an unprecedented display of high level consistency. With Montgomery edging Fredericks for the bronze, the USA was riding high again in the world of sprinting. "I said I would bring American sprinting back to the top and this was the start of achieving that aim," said Greene.

With the wind gauge barely registering at 0.2 (it was 0.1 for his world record 9.79) Greene was timed at history's second fastest time of 9.80 despite a flawed start. "The beginning of it was very shaky, but I didn't panic," he said. "The first two or three steps I was stumbling, but I was able to gather myself." He thus became only the second man (after Carl Lewis) to successfully defend a global 100 title. Surprisingly, in view of the winning time, he was pushed hard by Surin, at 32 in the form of his life and contesting his fifth World Championships 100m final. No man before has run 9.84 and lost, Surin matching fellow Canadian Donovan Bailey's Commonwealth record.

With Ato Boldon a non-starter and Fredericks scratching from his semi, the bronze was seized by Chambers who, at 21, became the youngest World Championships medallist in this event at that time. His 9.97 ranked him behind only Linford Christie on the European & UK all-time list. Greene, who covered the first half of the race in 5.55 and the second in 4.25, reached the 60m point in 6.39 just behind Surin (6.38) with Chambers third in 6.41.

Greene retained his title after withstanding both injury and a determined challenge from compatriot Montgomery. After running 9.84 in Oslo in July, Montgomery was regarded as a serious threat to Greene, but in the final he was one of three false starters. Once the race began, Greene – wearing a black tourniquet below his left knee – was dominant. He seemed to be heading for a commanding victory, but then around 15m from the finish line appeared to tighten up.

Greene held on, though Montgomery closed and nearly got within dipping distance of the defending champion, who hobbled about after the finish line. Williams overtook Boldon in the closing stages to complete a US medal sweep.

Greene had suffered injuries to his left quadricep and hamstring during the race, yet still clocked 9.82 into a slight headwind, the third-fastest ever. His coach John Smith estimated that Greene's winning time would have been 9.77 without the injuries. "I can say that it was my best race, up to 65 or 70 metres, ever," remarked Greene. "I took my body where it was not prepared to go, and when your body is not prepared for something, it will break down."

In the second round, the wind gauge failed completely, meaning that Mark Lewis-Francis's time of 9.97 could never be recognised as a world junior record. The big story of the first round was that of 135kg American Samoan Trevor "the Tortoise" Misipeka, who clocked 14.28 in the opening heat. He had planned to put the shot in Edmonton but did not have the minimum qualifying standard required for field events. "I didn't feel embarrassed," she said. "most Samoans are big-boned."

In summer 2004 the US Anti-Doping Agency wrote to Montgomery informing him that he was to be charged with anti-doping violations as a consequence of the federal investigation into the Californian Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative (Balco), a Northern California nutrition company. The case eventually went before the Court of Arbitration for Sport, who in December 2005 found Montgomery guilty of years of doping violations. He was banned for two years from 2005 and all his results from March 31, 2001 were annulled. These included a 100m world record of 9.78 in 2002 and, of course, his world silver and relay gold from 2001. Therefore Williams and Boldon were promoted to Edmonton silver and bronze.

Rightful finalists: Nicolas Macrozonaris CAN & Dwight Thomas JAM

Kim Collins was a popular albeit narrow winner from the inside lane. It was the closest finish yet to a major 100m, with just 11 thousandths covering the first three. Yet the three US Edmonton medallists were not factors. Maurice Greene placed eighth in his semi, injured, while Montgomery and Williams placed fourth and fifth in the final. Silver medallist Brown had broken the world junior record in the third heat of the second round, but that stage of the contest was overshadowed by the actions of Jon Drummond.

At the 2001 IAAF Congress, a rule change was approved which meant that any athlete causing a second false start would be automatically disqualified. The new rule was applied from January 1, 2003 with the desired effect of generally reducing the number of false starts. Paris was the first World Championships with the new ruling, and it was followed smoothly in the first round. One by one, three men were disqualified and each was escorted from the track to sympathetic applause.

In the second of the quarter-finals, there was an initial false start by Dwight Thomas of Jamaica. A yellow card was then shown to all eight starters as a warning that a further false start would result in disqualification. The recall gun went off again and this time a red card was shown to both Drummond (reaction 0.052 compared with the allowable threshold of 0.1) and Powell (0.086). Replays did appear to show that Drummond's foot twitched in the blocks, but he did not accept his fate. While Powell wanted in hope behind the start, the 34 year-old American – a relay gold medallist in 1993 and 1999 – remonstrated with judges, stirred up the crowd and lay down on the track. Even when he did leave the arena, it proved impossible to start the race because of crowd noise in reaction to the affair. The heat was eventually staged after the third and fourth quarter-finals, around 55 minutes late. Later, Drummond was disqualified from the entire championships "for behaviour likely to bring the sport into disrepute."

There was a further unwanted footnote. Chambers – the Seville bronze medallist – was disqualified in retrospect after it was found that he had committed a doping violation on August 1. He had originally been part of the blanket finish, placing fourth, just three thousandths behind Campbell. Two years later, Montgomery's disqualification was also confirmed (see report of the 2001 100m). He had originally placed fifth.

Until two weeks prior to the championships this was one of the most eagerly anticipated events. Then, the world record setter Asafa Powell was injured in London, and the race lost some of its gloss. Six of the heats were won in 10.19 or quicker, with Scott the fastest in 10.12. The second round saw Paris silver medalist Brown produce the fastest time (10.10) in the final heat, which saw five men qualify for the semi-finals. Olympic Champion and hot favourite Gatlin had won his heat and second round without pressing, but in the semi-finals he led by a metre before easing up in 9.99. The first heat had been won by Scott in 10.09 with a light following wind (0.5), while Gatlin's time had been run into a 1.0 wind – making Britain's Gardener somewhat unlucky not to make the final after running 10.08 in Gatlin's heat.

Scott, always a good starter, headed the field in the final after reacting fastest and driving powerfully out of the blocks. By 30m he was half a metre up on the field, with Collins and the slow-starting Gatlin battling for second. At 60m Gatlin had caught Scott, and the heavily-muscled (1.81/84kg) Scott began to fade, and Gatlin surged ahead. By the finish he was almost 2m clear. Texas Christian University graduates Frater and Collins filled the lesser medal positions. The race was run at 9.30pm with the temperature at 18°C, less than perfect conditions for a fast time.

"Even if Asafa had been in the race I'd have been number one," said Gatlin, who went on to win the Helsinki 200m. "I'm the one who came to the big dance and stopped the show." Gatlin was suspended for four years in April 2006 when he failed a doping control test for testosterone. He has subsequently returned to the highest level.

There were two principals, Gay who had run 9.84 in the US Championships, while world record holder Powell, recovering from an injury, had a 9.90 to his credit from July. After Devonish had been fastest in the heats, the quarter-finals saw the contenders easing back, as Powell ran 10.01, coming off the throttle at 60m. In the semi-finals Powell again shut down, and was headed by Atkins, while Gay won the other race in 10.00. A feature of the preliminaries was the failure of Gay's compatriots. Jelks was injured and Samuels eliminated in the quarter-finals.

For the first time in world championship 100m history, athletes from eight different countries qualified for the final. In the big race Powell was off quicker than his rivals, and he was a half metre ahead by 30m (3.83 for Powell, 3.86 for Gay), with Atkins a fraction behind the American. Powell still held the lead by two hundredths at 60m (6.42), but the Jamaican was beginning to tense up. Gay caught him at 70m, before surging away to win from Atkins, who himself caught Powell just after 90m. The Jamaican admitted that he "just panicked and tightened up", while Gay noted that "at about 70m I knew I had a great chance of winning." The winner ran the two halves of his race in 5.59 and 4.26 compared with 5.62/4.29 by Atkins and 5.57/4.39 Powell.

Final (Aug 16) (0.9)

1,	Usain Bolt	JAM	9.58 <sup>WR</sup>	0.146
2,	Tyson Gay	USA	9.71	0.144

3, Asafa Powell	JAM	9.84	0.134
4, Daniel Bailey	ANT	9.93	0.129
5, Richard Thompson	TTO	9.93	0.119
6, Dwain Chambers	GBR	10.00	0.123
7, Marc Burns	TTO	10.00	0.165
8, Darvis Patton	USA	10.34	0.149

The three favourites took things very easy in the first round with Gay (10.16) running the fastest time of the morning and Bolt (10.20) looking very relaxed. Powell was too relaxed, and eased off so much that he almost missed qualifying. He returned with the fastest time of the second round (9.95).

A frisson of shock ran through the crowd when Bolt false-started in the first semi-final. The Jamaican took an early lead when the field did get away, and was a body length clear at 70m before easing down to win in 9.89. The second semi-final featured a poor start by Gay, and a smooth pickup by Powell. Gay eventually took the lead with 10m to go.

With expectations high of a special performance from Bolt, the field got away first time in the final, with Bolt marginally ahead of the field by 20m. From that point on, Bolt was quicker than the opposition with each stride. Despite the fact that Tyson Gay was operating at US record pace, Bolt effortlessly and majestically flowed away. By 60m – reached in an unprecedented 6.31 – Bolt was clearly ahead of Gay (6.39) and Powell (6.42). By 80m Bolt (7.92) was about a metre clear of Gay (8.01), with Powell (8.10) easing off slightly in the knowledge that he would place no better than third.

In Beijing exactly one year earlier, Bolt shut down at this point but still set a world record 9.69. This time he continued running hard and the result was 9.58 (9.572), while Gay ran a magnificent 9.71 (9.705). Less than a metre covered the next four, with Bailey just edging Thompson for fourth by 0.004, and Chambers an identically small margin ahead of Burns for sixth. The Trinidadian thus went one better than in Osaka.

Final (Aug 28) (-1.4)

1, Yohan Blake	JAM	9.92	0.174
2, Walter Dix	USA	10.08	0.175

Usain Bolt	JAM	DQ (r162.8)	-0.104

The defining moment of the 2011 World Championships came at 20:43 on Sunday, August 28 when at the beginning of the 100m final, the biggest name in athletics – Usain Bolt – was disqualified for a false start. The Jamaican star immediately knew he was at fault and ripped off his shirt in disgust as soon as the runners were recalled. The equipment showed that he had moved 0.104 before the gun. After the shocked crowd fell silent, the race got off at the second time of asking, with 2003 champion Collins taking a small but clear lead from Bolt's training partner Blake. It took the Jamaican 50m to catch the 2003 champion, but he then went clear to win by almost two metres from Dix, who just caught Collins on the line. It was felt that the winning time was worth around 9.85 in windless conditions.

Unlike John Drummond eight years earlier, Bolt did not complain about the rules. "Looking for tears?" he asked a small group of reporters after the race. "Not going to happen. I'm okay." There were a total of 10 false start disqualifications in Daegu compared with three in Berlin and five in Osaka, though of course in those years there were many more false starts allowed as the instant disqualification rule did not come into force until January 2010.

A first for these championships was the staging of a "preliminary" round for athletes in the 100m who did not have at least a Daegu "B" qualifying time (10.25). Those who advanced from that stage joined the pre-qualified performers in the first of three remaining rounds.

Moscow 2013

Final (Aug 11) (-0.3)

1,	Usain Bolt	JAM	9.77	0.163
2,	Justin Gatlin	USA	9.85	0.163

8,	James Dasaolu	GBR	10.21	0.177

This event was overshadowed when in July 2013, it was announced that two of the biggest names in sprinting – Tyson Gay and Asafa Powell – had each failed doping tests. Gay at the US Championships on June 23 and Powell at his own national championships two days earlier. With Yohan Blake injured, returning drug offender Gatlin appeared to be the biggest opponent to Bolt as both set out to win back this particular title. In Rome on June 6, the American had beaten the Jamaican, 9.95 to 9.96.

In spite of all the big absentees, Zhang found that a Chinese record of exactly ten seconds (10.000) was not enough to reach the final, in which Gatlin and Bolt were drawn next to each other. Before the finalists went to their marks, the rain started falling and Bolt mimed the opening and raising of an umbrella.

After the starting gun fired, Gatlin and Bolt registered the same reaction time of 0.163. The American translated that into a quicker pick-up and led until Bolt caught him at the 55m mark. The Jamaican then cruised away to win by a metre. Three more Jamaicans followed in places 3-4-5.

At the instant of Bolt's victory, one of the defining moments of any World Championships was captured by a remote control camera. French photographer Olivier Morin had positioned his device to get a wide shot of the finish of the race with the rim of the stadium roof and sky in the background. One of his pictures showed a lightning flash overhead just as Bolt crossed the line on the rainsoaked track. "It's luck and luck only," said Morin.

The gold and silver medallists from 2013 were back again, and this time Gatlin was favoured to defeat Bolt. The American had been unbeaten for more than a year, whereas the Jamaican had been hampered with injury and appeared sparingly during 2015. Gatlin immediately impressed with a marginally-windy 9.83 heat. In the semi-finals, Bolt stumbled out of the blocks and had to work hard to edge De Grasse, as both ran 9.96. Gatlin then again stood out with a blistering 9.77 to beat Rodgers. Three men registered 9.99 for the two fastest loser spots, and two of those (Su and Vicaut) each clocked 9.987. Both men were therefore advanced, so nine lanes were used in the final. For the second successive World Championships, a runner clocking 10.00 was eliminated.

Gatlin was away fastest in the final where Bolt also produced a reasonable start. There was little to choose between the two men at halfway, with Bromell and Su very close behind. Over the next 25m, Gatlin opened up a slight lead, as only Bolt remained within striking distance. Gatlin stayed in front, but "over the last five metres I kind of stumbled a little bit," he later admitted. Bolt, straining mightily, caught the American and edged through the line 0.013 ahead. The Jamaican therefore became the first athlete with nine gold medals from the IAAF World Championships.

De Grasse, finishing fastest of all, drew level with Bromell, so the two US collegians shared the bronze medal. The times for seventh to ninth were the fastest-ever for those positions.

All attention was on Bolt in his last-ever meeting. The 30 year-old Jamaican had the fastest second place of the three semi-finals, so was assigned a seeded lane in the final along with the three semi winners, Simbine, Blake and new US Champion Coleman. Gatlin, the silver medalist from Moscow and Beijing, was in lane 7.

Coleman had the fastest reaction at the start of the final and was ahead at 10m from Gatlin. At halfway, Coleman (5.52) was still well clear of Gatlin (5.59) with Blake third, just ahead of Bolt and Vicaut. Bolt then began to gain ground and produced the fastest second half of the race (4.31). He couldn't catch Coleman in time, but on the other side of the track, Gatlin did manage to edge ahead to regain his world title after 12 years. His winning mark of 9.92, into a headwind, was a world over-35 best.

For the first time, Bolt had won a bronze medal. The immediate reaction of some of the crowd was to boo the American winner, who had defeated their sentimental favourite. Biomechanical analysis revealed that Bolt took 40.98 strides to complete the race, almost the same as he had in Berlin 2009 (40.92), but a bit less effective eight years on.

Carl Lewis would have been an outstanding favourite after winning the 1983 US title with a near world record 19.75. He opted out of this event, but the United States still claimed gold and silver. This was despite the early elimination of Myricks, nursing a hamstring injury.

The final saw Calvin Smith go one better than his 100m silver with an easy win. Running from lane 3, he came into the straight with Emmelmann. As the GDR runner faded, so Smith forged ahead taking with him Quow. Mennea outdipped Wells for the bronze.

A thrilling final in which three men finished in a line with another three less than one metre back. Former 400 star Krylov ran the best bend but in the middle of the finishing straight, 20 year-old Regis (lane 2) went to the front along with Quenéhervé (lane 6). In lane 8, defending champion Smith looked as if he would not even get a medal, lying fifth at 150m. But he finished the quickest, whereas Regis not only dipped too soon at the line but also looked over to his right.

Regis, Quenéhervé and Smith all took turns in thinking they had won after the finish. It was then confirmed that Smith had retained his title despite sharing the same time as the Frenchman. Regis was third, just two hundredths behind the leading pair.

"The time differences that decided the final placements were infinitesimal," stated the IAF's Scientific Report of the championships. "The time analysis of the final shows that the fast finish (the last 50m section) was decisive. Smith would not have had such a tough time contesting the first place with Quenéhervé if he had clocked a better time in the first 100m section, which was fully within his potential." In fact, the American was not able to run a faster bend because of a groin injury picked up in the semi-final.

Unbeaten since May 1990, Johnson was expected not only to win but threaten the 12 year-old world record of 19.72. This looked increasingly likely when the Texan won his second-round heat in a championship record of 20.05, despite easing off in the last 50m. Burrell, the last man to beat Johnson, was eliminated at this stage. Johnson continued to impress with a 20.06 semi into a 3.1m wind.

A stronger headwind proved to be the American's only opponent in the final. It slowed his winning time to 20.01, but the manner of his victory was amazing. He quickly made up the stagger on Fredericks and left the field three metres behind at the finish – the largest margin of victory at this level since Jesse Owens's win at the 1936 Olympic Games.

"I felt I put in a 19.5 or 19.6 effort," said Johnson, who was also the world's leading 400m runner. "After the race when I saw the time, I knew it had to be a pretty hefty wind."

After silver medals in Tokyo and at the Barcelona Olympic Games, Fredericks won his country's first ever gold medal with a new African record. Just as in 1987, Regis found himself leading a world final at 150m before Fredericks stormed from third to first. Regis's time at 150m was 14.93, the fastest electrical time for the distance.

Carl Lewis won a record 10th World Championship medal in third spot, when he became the first man to break 20 seconds and not finish in the first two.

Johnson's defence of his 400m title involved four races across the first five days of the championships. After his near world record win at the one-lap event on August 9, the Texan returned the next morning for his 200m heat.

Johnson showed no signs of fatigue in the first two rounds and clocked 20.01 in his semi-final, a 1995 world best. In the final, the American was intent on breaking the oldest of world records: Pietro Mennea's 19.72 from 1979. Robson da Silva (lane 5) got the quickest start but Johnson, one lane inside, swept past on the second half of the bend and raced clear in the straight. The figures of 19.79 clicked onto the scoreboard as he finished. He swore, then jokingly lay flat on his back on the track. He had completed a double victory which had never been achieved before by a man at world or Olympic level. It was his eighth win in eight races over seven days.

"I'm exhausted. This was a tough, tough job," said Johnson. "I was almost to the point where I didn't think I'd be able to perform at my best."

7, [11] Jon Drummond	USA	20.44	10.34/10.10
8, [8] Patrick Stevens	BEL	20.44	10.56/ 9.88

Having missed out on medals in the 100m, both Boldon and Fredericks were fired up for the longer distance. They were drawn together both in the second round and semi-final, winning one race apiece without giving too much away, but the final proved no contest. Second to Drummond (10.34) at 100m in 10.36, with Fredericks on 10.41, the US-based Trinidadian opened up in the straight to win by two metres in a windy 20.04.

Fredericks, champion in 1993 and runner-up in 1991 and 1995, added another silver to his bulging collection although he didn't have much to spare over da Silva. Drummond, drawn in lane one after having the misfortune to encounter Boldon and Fredericks in his semi, faded to seventh. Boldon was gracious after winning his first major senior title: "I am sorry for Frankie as he is more than a rival; he is a mentor to me, an example to humanity."

Final (Aug 27) (1.2)

1, [3] Maurice Greene	USA	19.90	10.25/ 9.65
2, [6] Claudinei da Silva	BRA	20.00	10.32/ 9.68

Running his eighth race of the meeting, Greene took the final by a clear metre in 19.90 (10.25 at 100m) to become the first man to complete a World Championships 100m & 200m sprint double. His task was made easier as title holder Ato Boldon was out for the season and injury caused Fredericks to scratch from the final, but it was still a strong field as the second semi-final threw up two new sub-20 sec men.

While Greene eased to victory in his race in 20.10 followed by da Silva in a personal best, the other, aided by a wind vector went to Obikwelu in a startling 19.84. Behind him, Urbaś improved from 20.32 to 19.98, an unanticipated Polish record which made him the third fastest ever European. Devonish ran a lifetime best of 20.25 in that race but couldn't make the final, in which da Silva overtook a tiring Obikwelu for the silver, improving again to 20 flat, while Urbaś was also unable to reproduce his semi-final form. Kentéris, destined to bring off a sensational Olympic victory a year later, won his heat but withdrew injured from his quarter-final.

Kentéris produced a storming finish to duplicate his Olympic win of 2000. The Greek was only seventh at halfway as Little entered the straight ahead. While the rest of the field were closely matched, Kentéris (lane 4) came through for a clear win in 20.032.

It took several minutes to determine the other medalists from Williams, Crawford and Collins, all of whom were drawn in lanes inside the Greek. Williams (20.195) got the silver and it was judged that Crawford and Collins (20.198 each) shared the bronze. Three other men finished within 0.044 seconds, including Little who set a world best for seventh place.

The most impressive qualifiers were Patton (20.03) and Buckland (20.06). Times in the final were slowed by cool, wet conditions experienced on the evening of August 29. No-one got clear on the bend and the five men in lanes 2-6 were virtually level at the start of the straight. Capel (lane 6) then edged in front though Patton – who was nursing an injured left knee – closed to within one hundredth. Suetsugu won Japan's first global sprint medal since 1952. Edmonton winner Kentéris was a late withdrawal.

Gay was the most impressive runner in the preliminaries, particularly in the first round where he cruised to a 19.99w (4.3) clocking ahead of a field all of whom progressed to the second round. Wind conditions varied enormously. Only two races after the 19.99, Spearmon won his heat in 20.51 into a 2.7 wind. Gay was fastest next day in both the second round and semis. The four Americans – including defending champion Capel competing as a “wild card” – ran 1-2 in the two semi-finals, garnering the best lanes in the final.

With the temperature down to 11°C the final was not going to be won in an exceptional time. Gatlin, in the outside of the seeded lanes (3-6), got a good start, and “running scared”, as he later put it, was never headed. Spearmon and the fast-finishing Capel took the other medals. The only perceived threat to the US hegemony was Bolt, whose long legs were unable to cope with lane 1, and he suffered a muscle pull 50m from the finish while in fifth place. Prior to 2005 there had been 11 clean sweeps in the 382 individual World Championship finals, but here we were seeing a 1-4 sweep for the first time.

The first round saw 16 men run quicker than 20.50 headed by the surprising Goúsis, who cut his lifetime best by more than three tenths to 20.11. Gay showed power in the second round, zipping to a 20.08 ahead of Anderson, while Bolt duplicated his teammate's time of 20.13 in winning his heat. Bolt and Gay were the semi-final winners, with Spearmon and Anderson the athletes looking most likely to threaten the two favourites.

In the final, Bolt took an early lead over Gay (5.69 to 5.74 at 50m), but Gay had caught his tall (1.96m) rival by 100m, and he accelerated powerfully in the straight, passing 150m in 14.75 and gradually extending his lead to the finish. His time of 19.76 beat Michael Johnson's championship record, while Bolt easily held off fast-finishing Spearmon who pipped Martin for the bronze.

8, [2]	David Alerte	FAO	20.68	10.65/10.03

The first round heats eliminated none of the possible medallists, though Tyson Gay decided to save himself for the relay rather than defending his title. Mullings was the fastest across the first two rounds, with 20.26, and more clues were offered in the semi-finals. Bolt led the first race by a metre from Crawford at the halfway point, and with a gap of two metres plus by 130m, he then eased back to win in 20.08. In the second semi, Mullings led by a metre at halfway, but Spearmon went clear at 140m to win in 20.14.

It was felt that the car accident Bolt had in April would have hindered his training sufficiently to make it unlikely that he would threaten his year-old world record of 19.30. Running in lane five, Bolt made up the stagger on Edward within 50m, and led the field by over two metres by halfway in an unprecedented 9.92. Bolt's second 50m, partly on the curve, had taken a staggering 4.32 seconds. He was 0.20 slower over the third 50m segment, passing 150m in 14.44, with Crawford still in second (14.80), Mullings third (14.93), then Edward (15.00) and Spearmon (15.06) closing in.

Bolt flew across the line with the stadium clock showing 19.20, which was quickly adjusted to the official 19.19 (actually 19.190). Despite not being as well prepared as in Beijing, Bolt had surprised himself to cut his his own world record by 0.11. Behind him, Edward caught the fading Crawford with 10m to go, then Spearmon edged past for the bronze. Mullings became the first man to run 200m under 20 seconds, and finish only fifth.

This was the final world championship event in which all finalists were required to contest four rounds. From 2011 preliminary rounds were introduced for non-qualified athletes in the 100m, while other events were to feature a first round then three semi-finals before the final.

Bolt was back to his normal playful self as the runners lined up for the final, but his reaction time at the start (0.193) showed how careful he was to avoid another disqualification. Despite the strictures that lane three imposed on a man 1.96m tall, Bolt still passed 100m in 9.97, leading by almost 2m from Dix, who was a half metre in front of Ndure. Bolt extended his lead down the straight, passing 147m in 14.25, 0.21 ahead of Dix, with Lemaître now in third (14.61). The world record holder continued to extend his lead, winning by a full three tenths from Dix in the third best time ever. "I was running as hard as possible," he remarked. Lemaître set a French record of 19.80 after duelling with Ndure for the bronze.

8, [2]	Jaysuya Saïdy Ndure	NOR	20.37

Bolt's pick-up in the final saw him gain a metre on the field by 60m, and at halfway he was 1½ metres clear of Ashmeade, with Gemili and Weir just behind. The defending champion extended his lead until easing down with 20m left, enabling Weir to gain ground. Behind them, Mitchell closed fast, moving up from seventh at 120m to third at the finish. For Bolt it was his third title in a row, and his fifth global gold in six years. The best-ever times were set for positions 6 & 8.

Bolt never planned to defend his title, which in the cool conditions was won in a time 0.90 outside the Jamaican's world record. The crowd's favourite in the final was Makwala, who had been obliged to scratch from the first round on August 7 (as well as the 400m final on August 8) due to an outbreak of the contagious norovirus. On August 9, the IAAF permitted him to contest a solo time trial with a target of 20.53 in order to gain an additional place in the semi-finals. He succeeded in style with 20.20.

The Botswanan ran even faster (20.14w) to then reach the final by right, while his 400m rival van Niekerk only made it as a fastest loser.

In the final, Makwala ran the best curve, with van Niekerk and Gulyev catching him at halfway. Gulyev transitioned well into the straight and took a half metre lead as Makwala began to slip back. Richards came up from sixth at halfway. He, van Niekerk and Gulyev crossed the line together, with the Turk hanging on to win in 20.09. Van Niekerk held off Richards by a thousandth, while Mitchell-Blake pleased the home crowd by moving from seventh to fourth in the second half of the race. The winner had placed seventh as a junior (for Azerbaijan) in Berlin 2009.

Despite Gatlin's 19.57 in winning the US title, Bolt moved into the role of favourite after his 100m victory. Fastest in the heats was Gulyev, the former Azeri, with a Turkish record of 20.01. A time as fast as 20.39 was insufficient for advancement to the semi-finals.

Gatlin and Bolt quickly drew clear of the field, and coming off the bend, Bolt was slightly ahead. Running hard over the next 75m, the Jamaican built up a lead of more than 2m, and eased down slightly to finish in 19.55 and take an outright record 10th gold medal from the IAAF World Championships. Gatlin finished in an excellent 19.74, while Jobodwana set a national record, just two thousandths ahead of Edward.

The most watched incident of the entire Beijing World Championships came during Bolt's lap of honour. A host cameraman riding a Segway accidentally swerved into the back of the Jamaican. Both men tumbled to the ground, and Bolt did a further head-over-heels. It looked bad – but no harm was done. After the following day's medal ceremony, Bolt sportingly agreed to meet the apogetic CCTV cameraman Song Tao. The two shook hands and everyone was smiles as the Jamaican cracked jokes about the mishap.

Germans Weber and Skamrahl would be his biggest rivals but Franks (pre-1983 best of only 48.74) proved to be his closest challenger. Third place went to another American, Nix, who made up four places in the finishing straight and only made the final as fastest loser.

Nineteen eighty-seven saw the emergence of Reynolds, who cut the world low-altitude best to 44.10 and clocked a total of eight sub-44.50s prior to the World Championships. Unfortunately, the American was weakened by intestinal problems in Rome and struggled to qualify for the final. Egbunike, meanwhile, impressed greatly with a 44.26 semi-final (21.11 at halfway).

The Nigerian (lane 7) went out quickest in the final but was tracked by Schönlebe (lane 3), who had placed sixth as a teenager in Helsinki. The tall, bespectacled East German – unbeaten all year – proved to be much stronger and passed Egbunike in the last 60m to win. He broke his own European record in the process. Despite his problems, Reynolds took the bronze.

It looked as if the title would stay in Europe when Black led into the straight after passing 300m in 32.06. The two-time European Champion continued to run strongly and only the American duo of Everett and Pettigrew could stay in touch. As the Briton struggled in the last 15m, Pettigrew, the shorter of the Americans, went ahead to win by just 0.05. Black just managed to hold off the fast-finishing Everett for the silver.

"When we came off the turn I said 'Hey, it's time to do what I was supposed to do,'" reflected Pettigrew. "I did that and I won the race, and I thank God for that."

There is an appalling postscript to this exciting race, because on August 10, 2010 Pettigrew was found dead in the back seat of his car, having committed suicide after having taken an overdose of medication. Two years earlier he had admitted taking EPO between 1997 and 2003 and was stripped of three world and one Olympic relay gold medal won in that period.

A very strong American trio comprised world record holder Reynolds – returning from a doping suspension – Olympic Champion Watts and Tokyo 200 winner Johnson, who had yet to lose a 400 final.

All three qualified comfortably for the final in which the Nigerian Bada set the pace. He led at 200m, but by 300m it was Johnson from Reynolds with Watts fifth. Reynolds was running one of the best races of his comeback, but was no match for Johnson who had clocked 10.47 for his third 100. He pulled further away in the straight to win with the third-quickest time ever. Kitur was a distant third. Watts's poor run was explained when it became known that the sole of his left shoe broke in the middle of the race.

Johnson became the first man to retain a world or Olympic 400m title and came frustratingly close to the seven year-old world record of Butch Reynolds.

The 27 year-old American was an instant hit with the crowds and was cheered wildly all the way around his opening heat held on the first morning of competition. In the final, Johnson was timed at 21.26 at 200m; then he let rip, clocking 10.29 for the third 100m and overtaking Reynolds in the process. He ran the last 100m by himself and finished in 43.39, just 0.10 outside Reynolds's record. It was Johnson's 46th successive win in a 400m final, and he had the biggest winning margin at this level since 1896.

No stranger to making athletics history, Johnson notched up a couple of more firsts: he became the first "wild card" winner of a world title (under the new arrangement all current world champions are entitled to defend as of right) and the first to win a third world title at 400m.

Johnson's victory on this occasion was by no means a foregone conclusion; not fully race-fit following injury, he had in June sustained his first one-lap defeat for eight years. In Athens he nearly blew it after easing up too drastically in his quarter-final, finishing fourth. He had an anxious wait before learning that his time of 45.39 sufficed – by 5/100ths – to advance him as a fastest loser. He won his semi in a non-nonsense 44.37 before using all his experience and judgement to take the final in 44.12. That may have been a time he had bettered on 14 previous occasions but he was more than content to prove that, while some way short of his best, he could still outgun his rivals.

He eased his way through 200 in 21.64 in seventh place while Thomas blazed through in a personal best of 21.00; by 300m he was in third place and in the final straight he was too strong for the others, led home by Kamoga, Washington and Richardson, all of whom ran life-time bests. "I feel that I am a champion and champions go out and win, whatever the situation," said Johnson.

Finishing stronger than anyone but Johnson was former champion Pettigrew. Eleven years later, Pettigrew was suspended by the IAAF after admitting to using human growth hormone and EPO dating back to 1997. He made the admissions during the trial of coach Trevor Graham, who was convicted of lying to agents investigating the BALCO affair. All his results from January 1, 1997 were cancelled, including three World Championship relay golds and three individual 400m finals. His 1991 world title was not affected.

Having achieved everything else he could have dreamed of, Johnson had just one more major goal ... to succeed Butch Reynolds as world record holder for 400m. Just as the Atlanta Olympics was the setting for his fabulous world 200m record of 19.32, so it was another major occasion which provided the backdrop for the swiftest 400m ever run. After pulling up in Stockholm a month earlier, there had been a question over his fitness but any doubts were dispelled when he sauntered to a 43.95 clocking in his semi.

Drawn in lane five in the final and finding conditions ideal (hot and no wind), Johnson went for it. Reaching 100m in 11.10, 200m in 21.22 and 300m in 31.66, he maximized his strength in the finishing straight by covering the final 100m in an astounding 11.52 for a time of 43.18, 11/100ths inside Reynolds' mark. That won him a $100,000 bonus on top of his $60,000 first prize and brought his tally of world titles to eight, equalling Carl Lewis' record. Though unlike Lewis or anyone else with as many world titles, Johnson only ever won gold medals. Johnson's winning margin over Parrela of 10m was the widest ever in a world or Olympic 400m final.

Young and Pettigrew originally placed fourth and fifth, but were each disqualified in retrospect for doping violations. Both had been drawn in the second semi-final, so two men from that race (Šestak and Wade) were robbed of their rightful place in an historic final.

Michael Johnson had not quite retired in 2001, but decided to run in relay races only. The way was therefore clear for a new individual champion, and the 1.97 tall Moncur immediately impressed with a 44.88 heat. An even taller man, Schultz (2.01), starred in the semis with an unexpected pb of 44.66. In the final, Moncur (lane 4) led at 300m from 1995 bronze medallist Haughton and Schultz. The Bahamian continued to run strongly, Schultz came through for the silver and Haughton just held off 1991 winner Pettigrew for the bronze, though of course Pettigrew would eventually be disqualified. The US therefore failed to win a medal at this event for the first time.

The favourite was Washington, silver medallist in 1997 and unbeaten so far in 2003. He won the second of three semi-finals, the other victors being Raquil and Young. Those three drew lanes 4-5-6 in the final in which Washington had a slight lead at halfway. Young then pulled away to gain a clear lead by 300m, while Raquil was a clear last. At this point Harrison was third so the US looked set to win all three medals.

Washington gained slightly on Young while Blackwood passed Harrison. Then to the delight of the home crowd, Raquil ate up the ground between him and the others. Running the last 100m in 11.7 compared with 12.4 by Young, the gangling Frenchman tore through the pack, catching and dipping past Blackwood with his final stride to break the French record. "I tried to stay with them," explained Raquil, "but I always have the same problem in the bend. My concentration goes and I lose the plot. I had to throw everything into the finishing straight."

Unfortunately, Young's time in Paris won't be remembered for this win. During the championships, reports emerged identifying him as an athlete who had committed a serious doping violation in 1999 without incurring any penalty. In summer 2004, the Court of Arbitration for Sport declared that Young should have served a two-year ban from June 1999 to June 2001, meaning that he was stripped of his fourth place in Seville 1999 and his 2000 Olympic relay gold. A further violation at the 2004 Paris Golden League resulted in a life ban, but he retained his 2003 world gold ... until further revelations in 2009 resulted in the IAAF cancelling all of Young's results since the start of 1999, 2003 included. In the meantime, the Paris results were twisted further when in 2004 it was confirmed that Harrison (originally sixth) had also failed a doping control test in June 2003 and should therefore have had two years of results annulled from that date.

Two men who were eliminated after having cracked 45 seconds in the semi-finals (Al-Bishi and Kikaya) were thus cheated out of a place in the final by the American pair.

1, [3] Jeremy Wariner	USA	43.93	21.1/22.8
2, [7] Andrew Rock	USA	44.35
3, [4] Tyler Christopher	CAN	44.44
4, [8] Chris Brown	BAH	44.48
5, [1] Tim Benjamin	GBR	44.93
6, [6] Brandon Simpson	JAM	45.01
7, [5] Darold Williamson	USA	45.12
8, [2] John Steffensen	AUS	45.46

Wariner had lost three times in 2005 (two to Williamson, and one to Benjamin) but was the unanimous favourite. None of the prospective medalists were eliminated in the heats, with Benjamin the fastest at 44.85. Cold, wind and rain slowed the times in the semi-finals, with Christopher the fastest (45.47), as only seven runners ducked below 46 seconds (24 had done so in round one). Gary Kikaya, winner of three Grand Prix races in July, was the top rated non-qualifier

Two nights later, the weather was warmer and drier. Wariner reacted quickly in 0.150 [only Simpson's 0.147 was faster], and led at the 200m mark in 21.1. Pouring it on, he reached 300m in 31.9, with Christopher in second place 3m behind. Wariner maintained form throughout the final 100m, even if he did lose a metre to Rock. Christopher just edged Brown for the bronze medal, as all of the first four ran lifetime bests, with Wariner becoming the seventh man (and first Caucasian) to duck under 44 seconds.

Osaka 2007

Final (Aug 31)

1, [6] Jeremy Wariner	USA	43.45	20.92/22.53
2, [5] LaShawn Merritt	USA	43.96	20.88/23.08
3, [4] Angelo Taylor	USA	44.32	20.90/23.42
4, [8] Chris Brown	BAH	44.45

6, [3] Tyler Christopher	CAN	44.71
7, [9] Johan Wissman	SWE	44.72
8, [2] Avarad Moncur	BAH	45.40

A lifetime best of 43.50 in Stockholm just before the championships showed the condition of defending champion Wariner. The American easily won both heat and semi-final. Taylor and Merritt were the other semi-final winners, suggesting that the three medals would travel America's way. Indeed the standard of the heats was higher than ever with marks of 45.44, 45.47 and 45.50 not good enough for a place in the semi-finals, from which Commonwealth Champion Steffensen was eliminated, despite running 44.95.

Merritt, with Wariner in his sights, was just ahead at halfway in the final thanks to a second 100 of 10.11. However, Wariner produced a superb third 100m of 10.66 to lead by a metre at 300m. He flowed imperiously to a five-metre win in a personal best of 43.45, and third place on the world all-time list. Merritt produced his first sub-44 clocking with 43.96, while Taylor held off Brown for the bronze. For the second World Championships, the Bahamian placed fourth with a national record. In Helsinki it was 44.48 and Osaka 44.45.

1, [4]	LaShawn Merritt	USA	44.06	21.49/22.57
2, [6]	Jeremy Wariner	USA	44.60	21.41/23.19

Brown – who had placed fourth in Helsinki 2005, Osaka 2007 and Beijing 2008 – led at halfway in 21.31, a metre ahead of Wariner, with Merritt a further metre back. Merritt burned the third 100 in 10.83 seconds, and led by inches from Wariner at 300m, with Brown beginning to flag, and the rest 5m further back. As in Beijing, Merritt went away from Wariner in the last 100m, though less decisively. Behind the top two, Quow finished much faster than the rest, moving from seventh to third in the last 100m which he covered in the same time (11.70) as his first. Brown surrendered fourth place on the line to Henry.

Though this race was absorbing, it was clear that standards fell in 2009, with no-one breaking 44 seconds for the event for the first time since 2004.

Daegu 2011

1, [5]	Kirani James	GRN	44.60	21.6/23.0
2, [4]	LaShawn Merritt	USA	44.63	21.5/23.1

Defending champion Merritt was fortunate to be in Daegu, having served a 21-month doping suspension which extended past the 2011 US Championships. That was a meeting in which American athletes would normally be required to compete in order to gain selection, even those with an IAAF wildcard as was the case with Merritt. The USA Track and Field board of directors eventually recommended that he could be part of the team, even though his suspension did not end until July 27.

The American immediately emerged as the top contender after his superb 44.35 heat, the fastest ever first round race in a major championship. The atmospheric conditions were a little less favourable for the semi-finals, the slowest of which was won by teenager James in 45.20.

Merritt led the field through the first 200m in 21.5, a metre up on the Grenadian, with Gonzales and the Borlée twins in close contention. Merritt (32.5) still led by a metre at 300m from James, with Gonzales, Bartholomew and Kevin Borlée close behind. The two leaders drew clear as the straight unrolled, and the 18 year-old James proved the stronger, holding his form to win by 30cm from the faltering Merritt. Both Daegu 400m finals were won by a margin of 0.03. One day earlier in the women's event, Amantle Montsho defeated Allyson Felix, 49.56 to 49.59.

1, [6]	LaShawn Merritt	USA	43.74	21.3/22.4
2, [4]	Tony McQuay	USA	44.40	21.8/22.6

7, [5]	Kirani James	GRN	44.99	21.4/23.6
8, [2]	Anderson Henriques	BRA	45.03	21.6/23.4

The seeded lanes in the final were filled by Masrahi, McQuay, and the previous two champions, James and Merritt. The latter started quickest and the long-striding James had to work hard to stay in contact as Merritt flashed through 100m in 11.1. The American gained another metre by 300m (32.0) from James on 32.3, Borlée 32.4, with a three-metre gap to the rest of the field.

Rather than engaging in a duel with Merritt as had been the case in Daegu two years earlier, the Grenadian uncharacteristically tied up. The American cruised away to win by nearly six metres in a personal best of 43.74. Behind him McQuay and Santos moved from equal sixth at 300m to take the minor medals, with Borlée just edged out. James ended up in seventh. He was as bemused as the crowd with his uncustomed failure. "I died in the last 100," he admitted. "I don't know what happened."

Final (Aug 8)

1, [6]	Wayde van Niekerk	RSA	43.98	20.78/23.20
2, [4]	Steven Gardiner	BAH	44.41	21.01/23.40

[7]	Isaac Makwala	BOT	DNS

An unwelcome but unavoidable moment of London 2017 was when 43.84 performer Makwala was withdrawn from the 400m final by the IAAF Medical Delegate. He'd been diagnosed with an infectious disease (norovirus) on August 7 and put into quarantine for 48 hours. "The IAAF is very sorry that the hard work and talent of Isaac Makwala won't be on display tonight but we have to think of the welfare of all athletes," it was explained in a press release on the night of the final.

So the championships were denied van Niekerk versus Makwala, but Gardiner emerged as a potential champion with his Bahamian record of 43.89 in his semi-final. Such a time would not be matched in the final which took place two days later in conditions described as "freezing".

Van Niekerk led the final from the gun, passing 200m in 20.78. He led by 3m at the 300m point in 31.64, with Thebe in second place, just ahead of Gardiner and Allen. Van Niekerk maintained his advantage over Gardiner to the finish, as others fell back, with the sole exception of World Junior Champion Haroun. He moved from eighth to third in the last 80m.

Beijing 2015

1, [6]	Wayde van Niekerk	RSA	43.48	20.72/22.8
2, [8]	LaShawn Merritt	USA	43.65	20.8/22.9
3, [5]	Kirani James	GRN	43.78	21.0/22.8
4, [7]	Luguelin Santos	DOM	44.11
5, [4]	Isaac Makwala	BOT	44.63
6, [3]	Rabah Yousif	GBR	44.68
7, [2]	Machel Cedenio	TTO	45.06
8, [9]	Youssef Masrahi	KSA	45.15

The heats were remarkable, with 16 of the 44 entries running lifetime bests. Eighteen men ran faster than 45 seconds and two of those (Masrahi and McDonald) set substantial national records of 43.93. The principal trio of Merritt, James and van Niekerk all qualified easily. Of those, James looked most comfortable in the semi-finals, from which Yousif became the fastest-ever eighth qualifier for a final with his 44.54.

Merritt and van Niekerk were the quickest on the first curve of the final, passing 100m in 10.8, with the South African covering the next 100m in 9.9 to reach halfway in a searing 20.7. van Niekerk took control in the second half of the final bend, passing 300m in 31.4, with James (31.7) closing in on Merritt (31.6). The Springbok held his form throughout the final 100m and won by 1½m from Merritt, with James a further metre back. The winning time was the quickest ever by a non-American and for the first time in one race, three men cracked 44 seconds. There weren't too many initial celebrations for the winner as he was taken to hospital with severe exhaustion. Happily he recovered fully for the following day's medal ceremony. "I just had normal lactate after the race," he explained when he finally got to the mixed zone.

All this news was forgotten after a terrific final which brought one of the surprise results of the championships. The two youngest finalists, Cruz and Elliott, set a fast pace from the start. The Brazilian raced through 200m in 24.4 before Elliott took over by the bell (50.58). The rest of the field, headed by Ferner and Wülbeck, were in touch but running in single file. Elliott refused to be overtaken despite pressure from Cruz. The Briton held the kerb all the way round the final bend before the Brazilian finally regained the lead. Wülbeck then made his move, catching Elliott and passing Cruz 70m from the finish. Druppers also finished strongly, coming from 5th place to pip Cruz for the silver medal. The 28-year-old German became the fifth-fastest man ever.

There was disappointment before the event began when world record holder Sebastian Coe was forced to withdraw with illness. Olympic Champion Steve Ovett would have been a willing substitute for Great Britain, but it was too late to make such a change to the entry. Another shock followed in the opening round when 1976 Olympic Champion Juantorena broke a bone in his right ankle at the end of his heat.

For the second World Championships, a Brazilian set a fast pace in the final. Barbosa passed 200m in 24.32 and 400m in 50.59 – virtually identical to the corresponding splits in the 1983 final. The Brazilian held his form on the second lap but was passed by the favourite, Konchellah, on the backstraight. In the 84% humidity, the only other runner to live with the pace was Elliott, fourth in Helsinki.

The three rounded the final bend together before the Kenyan kicked again in the finishing straight to pull away for victory. Elliott also finished well to overtake Barbosa on the inside.

Tokyo 1991

1,	Billy Konchellah	KEN	1:43.99
2,	José Luiz Barbosa	BRA	1:44.24
3,	Mark Everett	USA	1:44.67
4,	Paul Ereng	KEN	1:44.75

6,	Johnny Gray	USA	1:45.67
7,	Andrey Sudnik	URS	1:46.36
8,	Tomás de Teresa	ESP	1:47.65

Poor health, including tuberculosis and asthma, had prevented Konchellah from consolidating his Rome win. He missed the 1988 Olympic Games and did not run at all in 1989. His best run of 1990 was only 1:46.72. At the end of that year, the US-based Kenyan moved his home from Los Angeles to the clear air of Albuquerque, New Mexico. This undoubtedly helped Konchellah to return to the highest level in 1991.

Gray (400m: 51.01) set the pace. Barbosa, the 1987 bronze medalist, took over on the second lap, followed by Olympic Champion Ereng. The Brazilian looked set for victory before Konchellah's superior speed carried him from 4th place at 600m to victory by 2m.

1,	Paul Ruto	KEN	1:44.71

8,	Tom McKean	GBR	1:46.17

A brilliant win in the first of the semi-finals made Konchellah the favourite to repeat his wins of Rome and Tokyo. It seemed that no-one could match the 31-year-old Kenyan's devastating finish. So it proved: but in the final in Stuttgart, he left his effort a little too late to secure another gold medal.

Konchellah had already worried his supporters with his run in the heats, when he only gained an automatic qualifying spot at the last possible opportunity. In the final, he was content to run near the back while the third-string Kenyan, Ruto, set a pace of 24.80 at 200m and 51.16 at 400m. He was still 5m in front at 600m (1:17.96), while Konchellah was last (1:19.16). D'Urso, who won his semi-final in a personal best, made a big move to try to catch Ruto in the straight. He cut back most of the Kenyan's lead but Ruto held on for victory. Meanwhile Konchellah had suddenly closed on the leading pair, but could not get past. His final 200m of 25.73 (compared to Ruto 26.75 and D'Urso 26.30) brought him only the bronze medal, and he admitted to over-confidence after the race.

Kipketer – a Kenyan who moved to Denmark in 1990 – was favourite to take gold for his new country after clocking 1:42.87 in Monaco shortly before the championships. He confirmed his status with a brilliant finish to his semi-final clocking 23.9 for the final 200m.

A slow pace in the final favoured the fast finishers. The first lap was covered in 52.53, at which point Kipketer was 6th in around 52.7. Rodal was the leader at the bell and continued on in front. Motchebon challenged at 600m, tracked by Kipketer. Rodal, however, stayed in front throughout the final bend. Kipketer, running wide, hit the front as the field swung into the final straight. He won comfortably after a 25.3 final 200m and was the only finalist to run his second lap (52.4) quicker than his first.

Hatungimana – dropped by his coach after running poorly at the 1995 World Indoor Championships – also passed Rodal to win the silver medal.

That most aesthetic of movers, Kipketer issued a simple challenge to the rest of the world's élite ... catch me if you can. He had the justified self-confidence to lead every step of the way, as he had earlier in the year when setting a stunning world indoor record at the World Indoor Championships. He tested the opposition with splits of 23.47 and 49.68, eased up on the third 200 (76.99) and then accelerated hard to destroy the hopes of the others. Barely out of breath at the finish he retained his title in 1:43.38, just the 16th quickest of his career at that time.

After this consummate display it came as no surprise to anyone when he broke Seb Coe's long standing world record a few days later. Alberto Juantorena, a former world record holder, paid him this tribute: "I admire him, not only because he is running so smoothly but also because he is not only using his legs but his brain too." Juantorena's compatriot Téllez, a 400 semi-finalist at the previous World Championships, finished second, while a spectacular kick brought Kenah past Konchellah for the bronze with Olympic Champion Rodal only fifth.

Kipketer completed a hat-trick of world titles, but only after having to make an uncharacteristically undignified lunge for the line. The man who pressured him so hard was 1996 Olympic silver medalist Sepeng, who had impressed in the semis with a sub-25 last 200. The final was fast thanks to Kimwetich speeding through 200 in 23.49 and Saïd-Guerni leading at the bell in 50.11.

Sepeng caught Kipketer napping when he accelerated along the back straight to reach 600 in 1:16.47, followed by the surprising Algerian with Kipketer some five metres down. The world record holder had to pull out all the stops to edge past Sepeng in the finishing straight but the South African came again and Kipketer's dip brought him victory by just 2/100ths. Saïd-Guerni, who set personal bests in all three of his races, held on brilliantly for third ahead of five men who, on paper, were all faster than him.

Edmonton 2001

1,	André Bucher	SUI	1:43.70	50.6 /53.1
2,	Wilfred Bungei	KEN	1:44.55	50.41/54.14

Switzerland won their first World or Olympic track title through André Bucher, who ran a faultless race. Bungei provided a fast pace (24.73, 50.41), and was followed closely by Bucher and Yiampoy. The bespectacled Swiss then accelerated to lead at 600m (76.39). He pulled further clear and was never threatened. Bungei held on to the silver, and it looked as if Yiampoy might win the other medal for Kenya, but he was caught by Czapiewski. The Pole improved from seventh to third in the homestraight and covered the last 200m in 26.7 to Bucher's 27.3.

1,	Yuriy Saïd-Guerni	ALG	1:44.81	52.6 /52.2
2,	Yuriy Borzakovskiy	RUS	1:44.84	53.0 /51.8

8,	Osmar dos Santos	BRA	1:46.28	53.0 /53.3

Three-time champion Kipketer was almost eliminated in the heats after slowing up prematurely at the finish. He duly progressed to the final where he led at 200m (24.56) and the bell in 52.46. In sixth place (53.0) was Borzakovskiy, a former World Indoor Champion who was famed for his strong finish. Usually the 22 year-old Russian hung further back from the leaders so many felt he was in a good position to win.

A strong third 200m by Borzakovskiy put him in front at 600m. Kipketer couldn't respond and it was Saïd-Guerni then Mulaudzi who gave chase. The Russian stayed ahead, then in the final 50m the Algerian inched closer. The South African was moving faster than the other two but came from too far back to challenge for the gold. Saïd-Guerni snatched the title as Borzakovskiy lost form in the last 10m, though it was so close he did not immediately know he had won the race.

"It was a real reward because I haven't forgotten that in 2001 the doctors told me to stop running," said the winner whose Paris home was just 3000m from the Stade de France.

The defending champion Bucher went out in the semis, meaning that none of the Edmonton men's winners at events from 100m to 800m contested the corresponding finals in Paris.

1,	Rashid Ramzi	BRN	1:44.24	52.8 /51.4

7,	Belal Mansoor Ali	BRN	1:45.55	52.48/53.07
8,	Gary Reed	CAN	1:46.20	52.8 /53.4

The pre-race favourites were Borzakovskiy, Bungei and Mulaudzi. None had beaten 1:44 in 2005, though the South African had run 1:44.08 in Helsinki two weeks before the championships. The fastest time in the heats fell to 1500m winner Ramzi with 1:46.17. In the semis, Ramzi then ran a pb 1:44.30 just behind Olympic Champion Borzakovskiy. Mulaudzi fell well short of qualifying in the second heat with 1:45.73, beaten by Ali (1:45.35) and Baala (1:45.40). Gary Reed was the surprising winner of the third semi-final in 1:44.30 ahead of co-favourite Bungei.

Ali led the final, passing 200 in 24.96, before slowing to 52.48 at the bell. Borzakovskiy, always thought to be at his most dangerous in a slow race, was seventh in 52.7. At 600m, Bungei had moved into the lead (1:18.24), with Ramzi fourth (1:18.4), and Borzakovskiy still in seventh (1:18.9), hemmed in behind Baala. Ramzi moved into the lead early in the home straight, and the tactically naïve Borzakovskiy eventually edged the surprising Yiampoy for silver, with Bungei a further 3m behind. Ramzi subsequently won the Olympic 1500m title in 2008, but was stripped of that title because of a doping violation.

8,	Mohammed Al-Salhi	KSA	1:47.58	55.8 /51.8

The winning time in the final was the slowest yet, but the preliminaries were the toughest. Fastest in the heats was Kamel, a transferee to Bahrain from Kenya, whose father was the 1987 and 1991 champion Billy Konchellah. In every one of the six heats, the fastest non-qualifier was quicker than the previous record of 1:46.45 from 1995. In the semis, Kamel went out despite clocking 1:45.31.

The final started slowly, led by Reed at 400m in 55.08. Chepkirwok slipped by the Canadian, and led by a metre at the 600m point (1:22.18), with Borzakovskiy (1:22.6) four metres behind the leader. Reed edged past with 120m to go, and Kirwa Yego began to challenge with 75m left. Reed held off the Kenyan until the last two strides, and the margin of victory was the closest in World Championship history. The Kenyan's last 200m had taken just 24.6 compared with Reed's 24.9. Behind them Borzakovskiy overtook Bungei and a fading Chepkirwok with 10m to go. With less than five metres covering the whole field, it was an exciting finish to a less than stirring race. The winner, who was eliminated in the first round in Helsinki, became the youngest-ever World 800m Champion. Defending Champion Ramzi went out in the semi-finals.

1,	Mbulaeni Mulaudzi	RSA	1:45.29	53.44/51.85

9,	Jackson Kivuva	KEN	1:46.39	(54.0/52.4)
10,	Yeimer López	CUB	1:47.80	(54.2/53.6)

Of 2009's four fastest prior to Berlin, three failed to make it to the final. Kaki [1:43.10], tripped while leading in his semi-final and failed to finish the race. Two men brought down by Kaki (Som and Lewandowski) were advanced to the final. Kiprop [1:43.17], the Olympic 1500m Champion, was bumped twice at the 600m mark in his semi-final and gave up, while Rudisha [1:43.52], who would run 1:42.01 later in the season, missed the final by one place.

In the final Mulaudzi went to the front as the athletes broke, and passed 200m in 25.02. The South African kept the lead at 400m (53.44) with the pace slowing to 28.4 in the second 200m. Just 5m covered the field at this point. Mulaudzi cleverly kept the lead through 600m (1:19.82) from Symmonds (1:19.8) and Kamel (1:20.10), with defending champion Kirwa Yego in seventh place (1:20.31). Mulaudzi held the curb and the lead to the finish, with Kirwa Yego finishing fastest of all to catch Kamel on the line, half a metre behind the South African. Curiously the first two had been the two fastest "losers" from the semi-finals, and each had been forced to share their lane at the start with the reinstated fallers.

1,	David Rudisha	KEN	1:43.91	51.33/52.58
2,	Abubaker Kaki	SUD	1:44.41	51.6 /52.8

8,	Mohammed Aman	ETH	1:45.93	51.9 /54.0

Rudisha, unbeaten since Berlin 2009, made his intentions crystal clear in the final, blasting through 200m in 23.81, before easing down to 51.33 at halfway. Speeding up slightly, the Kenyan passed 600m in 1:17.99, just over a metre clear of Kaki and Borzakovskiy. Rudisha led by a metre from the Russian veteran as they entered the finishing straight, but he then drew clear to win from Kaki, who overtook Borzakovskiy 25m from the finish. For Rudisha it was his 24th successive 800m victory (or 31st including heats).

Solomon went out too quickly in the final, passing 200m in 23.59 according to the transponder chip in his bib. Virtually level with him was the Ethiopian junior Aman (23.62). The American slowed to reach halfway in 50.28, with the more than usually positive Symmonds beside him and Aman inches behind.

Solomon still led at 600m (1:16.80) with Symmonds, Aman and Souleiman close by. Symmonds overtook his teammate with 100m remaining and briefly looked as if he would win, but Aman caught him with 40m to go and got home 1½ metres clear. Solomon went from first to sixth in the last 90m, with a transponder clocking of 14.74 for his final 100m compared with 13.35 by Aman. A lingering knee injury put defending champion and world record holder David Rudisha out of contention.

Rightful finalist: Marcin Lewandowski POL

Cheruyiot led at 200m in the final (25.06 by photo-cell) before Rudisha took control as the pace slowed. The fourth 100m section was covered in only 14.84, giving a bell time of 54.15 by photo-cell (or 54.17 by transponder). Five metres covered first to last before Rudisha increased the tempo on the last backstretch. Kszczot also accelerated and unsuccessfully attempted to overtake the Kenyan on the inside at around 550m.

The Pole continued to chase to the finish, but there was no catching Rudisha who clocked 12.08 for his last 100m. Tuka ran his own last 100m even quicker (12.02) to edge past Cheruyiot for the bronze. Defending Champion Aman would have been a finalist again, but was disqualified for obstruction in his semi-final.

8,	Brandon McBride	CAN	1:47.09	50.78/56.31

The final was not a vintage race, but it did produce a great surprise. As expected, McBride forced the pace, reaching 200m in 24.19, while Bett and Amos behind him bounced off each other like pinballs. McBride led from Amos at 400m in 50.76 by photo-cell (or 50.78 transponder). Bett and Amos moved by McBride at 550m but dramatically sweeping past both was Bosse with his 12.54 100m to 600m.

The Frenchman increased his lead with another sub-13 100m around the last bend, which gained another 3m over the field. It looked as if he might be reeled in, but the African challenge receded, Kszczot left his finishing effort too late and the gold went to France. Finishing faster than anyone (13.11) was Langford, who was warmly greeted by the home crowd for his unexpected fourth place. The entertaining Bosse happily reflected. "I could not understand why no-one was going past me. Even when I crossed the line I couldn't believe it".

A tactically perfect race by Cram continued Britain's great run of success in championship 1500m races of the 80s. One of the best quality fields of the championships set off at a pace slower than the women's final (400m: 64.98, 800m: 2:07.73). The Cram camp had been warned that Aouita – world leader at 3:32.54 – would make a move 500m from home. This proved to be perfectly true. The Moroccan bolted ahead and Cram responded to follow Aouita into the last lap. The favourite, Scott, was also in close contention but world record holder Ovett was boxed.

Cram went past Aouita with 200m remaining and led from the Moroccan into the finishing straight with Scott third. Running wide, the American moved into second and, for an instant, looked as if he would overtake Cram. Aouita also continued to run strongly. But they could gain little on the long-striding Briton who was able to cross the line with fists clenched in triumph. Ovett, who ran the last 300m quicker than anyone else, just fell short of catching Aouita for the bronze.

"I think the reason for the slow race was the fact that most of the front runners had been knocked out in the semi-finals," concluded the winner, whose preparation for the championships had been limited by injury. "This race went perfectly for me."

After another slow start to a world championship final, (400m: 63.46), Cram and Cheshire speeded things up. With 450m remaining, the Briton made his bid to retain his title. He was unable to shake off González or Bile, who had set an impressive championship record in the semi-finals. The Somali passed Cram on the final bend and sprinted away for a handsome victory. The defending champion was also overtaken by González, before fading to jog across the line in eighth place.

The intermediate times showed the brilliance of Bile's finish. He ran the last 1000m in 2:16.6 and the last 800m in 1:46.6. The winner, one of 15 children, was the reigning UO Collegiate Champion.

Morceli, whose older brother Abderrahmane was eliminated in the 1983 heats, started as favourite. Unbeaten all year, he kept set the world indoor title and clocked times of 3:31.00 and 3:31.01. Kibet set a reasonable pace for the first kilometre, closely followed by the confident Algerian. The reigning 5000m champion, Aouita, was also prominent before fading in the last lap.

Morceli took the lead just before the bell and accelerated dramatically to win by 15m in a championship record. His final lap took just 51.55 and was one of the fastest ever finishes to a race won in 3:32.

"I am not tired, because I am used to running fast," said Morceli. "Aouita has been the athlete of the eighties, I will be that of the nineties." Kirochi, who beat Morceli for the world junior title three years earlier, while the bronze went to Fuhlbrügge. Another German, Herold, would have placed third in the race had he not eased up before the line to celebrate.

Morceli, the world record holder at 3:28.86, was anxious to make amends for his disappointing seventh place in the Barcelona Olympic final. In the first semi-final he faced the only other men to have won this title, Bile and Cram. He won from the Somali while Cram went out, as he did at the same stage in Tokyo.

After several changes in the lead over the first lap, Taki settled in front with splits of 60.85 and 1:59.32. Morceli made his move at precisely the same point as in Tokyo two years earlier. Just as in 1991, no-one could live with the Algerian's last lap. This time he clocked 50.64 for the last 400m (37.83 last 300m). The silver went to Olympic Champion Cacho ahead of Bile, who was added to the semi-final after a fall in his heat which was not his fault.

Another scorching final lap, this time in 51.28, brought Morceli his third consecutive title at the front of an African medal sweep.

McMullen, the American champion, led through the first lap in 57.43. Niyongabo – considered a threat to Morceli – edged in front briefly at 800m (1:59.69) before making a break with 500m to go. He was shadowed by Morceli, who himself hit the front approaching the bell and flew away with a 25.2 200m split between 1100m and 1300m. He built up a lead of 10m by the finish, where he slowed to blow kisses to the head-on camera. El Guerrouj caught Niyongabo in the last 40m.

Seeking a fourth world title, Morceli came away without a medal, pipped at the post for bronze by young Estévez. The race marked the moment when El Guerrouj, who had fallen in the previous year's Olympic final, took over the mantle of world's leading 1500m runner. The early pace was slow (2:02.04 at 800m) but the Moroccan's speed over the final 600m was impressive. Five metres up at the bell (2:43.35) he reached 1200m in 2:55.63 and completed the last 400 in 52.48 and 800 in 1:48.9. The 1992 Olympic Champion Cacho, always highly competitive when medals were at stake, moved into second on the last turn and was unexpectedly joined on the podium by his compatriot Estévez. Morceli's poor form was understandable as he was in mourning for an elder brother, killed in a road accident the week before.

No one had ever before broken 3:32 in a World Championship or Olympic 1500m, but in this fabulous race two Africans and three Spaniards did so as El Guerrouj produced what was then the fifth quickest ever time of 3:27.65, slowing down to blow kisses to the crowd before the finish after slaughtering the opposition. To the dismay of the big-kicking Spanish trio, who would have liked a slow race, El Guerrouj's team-mate Kaouch sped through 400m in 54.31 and 800m in 1:52.15 with El Guerrouj hitting the front some 50m later to pass the bell in 2:33.78. Ngeny was overtaken at that point by Estévez, but regained second place 200m later. By then El Guerrouj (2:46.79 at 1200 following a 54.4 third lap) was away and flying, covering the last lap in 53.87.

"This guy is incredible," gasped Seb Coe, a particularly expert onlooker. "He made the others look ordinary and they are far from that." Ngeny – destined for Olympic glory in Sydney – trimmed his Commonwealth record to 3:28.73 and Estévez ran his fastest time to take bronze. Three-time champion Morceli dropped out at the bell after fading from medal contention.

In 2000, El Guerrouj was shockingly beaten to Olympic gold by Noah Ngeny, his first defeat since 1996. The Kenyan was absent from Edmonton and the Moroccan had resumed a winning streak. He confirmed his form by running the third lap of his semi-final in 53.24. In the final, El Guerrouj led initially, but he was simply waiting for Kaouch to take over and maintain a fast pace as he had done in the 1999 final. The younger Moroccan reached the lap markers in 55.41 and 1:53.69, at which point the field were strung out in single file. El Guerrouj then took over and stretched away convincingly. Lagat and Chirchir followed before Maazouzi moved through to split the Kenyans. Their battle closed the gap considerably on El Guerrouj, who slowed up to celebrate before the line.

Former World Junior Champion Kaouch jogged home in 11th place. For the second successive championships, he had sacrificed his own chances.

Hicham El Guerrouj won a fourth title, this time without any help from unofficial pacemakers. In fact it was the Moroccan who wore down the opposition with a quickening tempo after moving to the front himself just before 700m. Baala was the only one to keep in close touch with the world record holder who covered the third lap in 54.99. At the bell Estévez and Chouki looked clear in third and fourth places.

El Guerrouj ran the six 100m segments from 700m progressively quicker, from 14.2 to 13.2 down the last backstraight. Yet Baala remained within striking distance while his compatriot Chouki moved into third spot. However, the French could not close the gap on the Moroccan, who clocked 53.90 for his last lap in comparison with Baala's 55.3. Meanwhile Chouki faded from third to eighth in the last 100m as Heshko stormed through from sixth place to claim the bronze. The French number two was later disqualified for a doping violation.

The first heat saw Paris runner-up Baala outkick Boukensa 3:36.56 to 3:36.70, with a full 10 men qualifying for the next round. One of the favourites, Daniel Kipchirchir Komen, let himself be lulled by a slow pace in heat two, and missed qualifying by one place and 0.04. Ramzi, another favourite, and clearly in good form, could barely restrain himself as he ran 3:38.32 in the final heat. Kaouch won the first semi-final, the slowest for 12 years, in 3:40.51, with Nick Willis (NZL) and Baala the most notable of the eliminated. Webb pushed the pace in the other semi, as he had done in the first round, reaching 800m in 1:55.67, before Ramzi took over at the bell and again won by more than a second in 3:34.69.

The final was a tactical race, with Estévez – contesting his fifth final – leading the field for two laps (2:03.78), before Webb surged through the next 100m in 12.3. The American led at the bell (2:43.69) before Ramzi went by, reaching 1200m in 2:57.52 after a 53.5 lap. Ramzi continued at the same rate with Heshko and Kaouch in hot pursuit. The Ukrainian faded in the finishing straight as Silva finished fastest of all with a 13.3 split for his last 100 [Ramzi 13.9 and Kaouch 13.7], but Ramzi's combination of speed and strength gave him a well deserved victory. The four-time champion Hicham El Guerrouj – for Defending champion Ramzi did not race at all in 2007 before Osaka because of a lingering foot injury, but he qualified comfortably from the heat and won the second semi-final. The first semi featured a dramatic finish when two men fell as a consequence of pushing by 2003 silver medalist Baala, who originally qualified for the final but was disqualified.

The world leader Webb set the pace in the final, passing 400 in 58.63. Eighteen year-old Kiprop moved from last at 600m to first at 800m (1:58.08). Kiprop still led at the bell (2:41.51), with Webb, Lagat and Korir poised for the kill and Ramzi nearby but boxed in. Kiprop held off the challengers all the way till the last 60m, when Korir came up to his shoulder, and almost simultaneously Lagat came past. In his wake was Ramzi, who edged past Korir in the last few metres to take silver. Lagat – who was representing the USA for the first time at a championships – won his country's first global gold at 1500m since 1908.

The final included three Moroccan and three United States representatives, and two from Kenya and Bahrain, though Kenyan-born athletes numbered six in all. After 100m, defending champion Lagat found himself in the lead, and as the pace inevitably slowed, Choge took over. The Kenyan led the field through laps of 58.54 and 61.64. Choge still led approaching the bell, but the pace had done nothing to test the kickers, and Mekonnen (2:44.02 at 1100m) and Moustouai quickly went ahead with Kamel and Lagat just behind them and Kiprop at the back of the field. Mekonnen withstood a challenge from Moustouai and led into the finishing straight with nine men in contention. Meanwhile Kiprop made up much ground but was having to run in lane three as the field rounded the last bend.

Suddenly Kamel sprung from the pack and smoothly sprinted past four men in quick succession. He won by half a metre with Lagat a metre back and Kiprop – with far too much to do in the finishing straight – fourth a further two metres behind. His last lap (51.6) was the quickest of the race. For the Bahrain athlete it was the third gold medal in the family, his father Billy Konchellah having won the 800m in 1987-91. Lagat completed his medal collection in the event, having won gold in 2007 and silver in 2001.

The two favourites were Kenyan Champion Kiplagat and Olympic Champion Kiprop. The Kenyan number three Komen was the fastest in the first round with 3:38.54, but was found wanting in the semi-finals, when his tempo running (57.08/1:55.88) was easily covered by the field. Kiprop won that race in 3:36.75, with Willis the seventh and final qualifier in 3:37.39. Centrowitz was the surprising winner of the other semi-final, won in a tortuously slow 3:46.66.

Willis was a reluctant leader in the final, passing through the first two laps in 2:01.71. Kiprop then went to the front, increasing the pace without surging. At the bell, Kiprop (2:44.24) led from Gebremedhin and Kiplagat. Kiprop was overtaken by Kiplagat just before 1200m (2:57.01), but slid back in front on the inside with 250m to go. The tall Kenyan never looked like being overtaken by his teammate. Finishing faster than either Kenyan was Centrowitz, the son of 1976 Olympian Matt Centrowitz, who moved from fifth to third in the last 100m to complete a final circuit of 51.4. For Kiprop it was not just a personal triumph, but the first world title in this event for a Kenyan representing Kenya.

The reigning champion and favourite Kiprop won the slow tactical first semi-final. The second heat, which was 10 seconds quicker at the bell, saw the elimination of five big names including world mile leader Souleiman and Olympic bronze medalist Iguder.

Kiprop led the final for the first lap (59.79 by transponder), then Chepseba took over, reaching 800m in 1:59.35. At this point, he held a lead of 7-8 metres from Kiprop and a seemingly mesmerised field. Chepseba pushed the pace in the third lap, passing the bell in 2:42.76 with Kiprop and his followers now within touching distance. The lead was maintained by Chepseba until the finishing straight where Kiprop effortlessly flowed away with a transponder-timed 12.52 last 100m. He won by four metres from 2011 bronze medalist Centrowitz. Cronje crept up on the inside to pip Chepseba for the bronze. "It felt much more comfortable than two years ago," said the winner.

Just six nations were represented in the final which featured four Kenyans and three Americans. The Kenyans ran a team race, with Manangoi leading for most of the first lap (photo-cell 59.14), succeeded by Cheruiyot, who took the field through 800m in a photo-cell 1:58.52. Kiprop, the favourite, moved up from last to eighth after two laps. At the bell Centrowitz with Manangoi stopped the photo-cell clock at 2:42.17, while Kiprop was still lagging near the back of the pack.

Olympic Champion Makhloufi sped to the front with 300m to go. This thinned out the field and enabled Kiprop to easily pick off those ahead. The Algerian led into the straight, but was threatened by Iguder, and the now flying Kiprop. The defending champion went to the front with 30m remaining and won by 2m from the fast-closing Manangoi, with Iguder edging the exhausted Makhloufi for third. Kiprop's last lap of 51.53 was much the fastest of the field. "I never panic in the race," admitted the winner. "I knew what to do and what I was trained for."

Cheruiyot and Manangoi were in front for the entire race, and for a while a Kenyan sweep looked possible. Kiprop took closer order on the second lap and the three were 8m up at 800m (Cheruiyot 1:57.55 cell / 1:57.59 transponder). Surprisingly, the defending champion then fell back on the third lap as Ingebrigtsen and Mechaal gained ground while contesting third place.

In the straight, Manangoi finally edged in front for victory with a 13.08 last 100m. Mechaal (13.78) ran a marginally quicker finishing straight than Ingebrigtsen, but the Norwegian held on for a hard-fought bronze. Holuša ran a blistering 12.71 for his last 100m, substantially quicker than anyone else at any point in the race, but not enough to get among the much slower-finishing men contesting the medals. He'd earlier lost vital ground at 800m as the others forged on.

The biomechanical analysis concluded that Manangoi appeared to have performed like a cyclist, "drafting" behind his compatriot for most of the race, before sprinting ahead at the finish.

to move first. He completed the penultimate lap in 58.2 and held a 12m lead at the bell from Coghlan and European Champion Wessinghage. The crowd were cheering on Vainio, who was still in contention.

Down the backstraight of the final lap, Wessinghage surprisingly faded and only Coghlan was able to gain on the Russian. He drew level on the final bend, looked at the straining Dmitriyev and knew he could win. The Irishman's gesture of ecstasy provided one of the most memorable moments of the week. He sprinted away to win so easily that he was able to salute the Irish team in the stands before the finishing line.

There was a dramatic battle for the minor medals. The gallant Dmitriyev was caught first by Schildhauer – already the winner of the 10,000m silver. Then, to the wild cheers of the crowd, Vainio's desperate dive at the line relegated the unlucky Soviet to fourth place.

Aouita kept his rivals guessing by provisionally entering the 800m, 1500m, 5000m and 10,000m, but he opted for the event in which he had become the Olympic Champion in 1984. He must have been slightly worried by the little-known Ngugi, who set a championship record to win his heat.

The Kenyan led through 2000m (5:34.93), 3000m (8:16.19) and 4000m (10:58.60) before fading dramatically. Aouita, always well-placed, uncorked a 52.92 final lap for victory. Domingos Castro – whose twin brother was 8th – took the silver medal.

Like the other Helsinki men's distance races, the early pace was slow. All the field were in contention at 4000m, at which point Bulti led at 11:03.27 (13:50 pace). It was the bespectacled Dmitriyev who decided

While the rest of the field wondered what was happening, Kirui covered the sixth lap in 60.21 and opened up a 20m gap within the space of 200m. He passed 3000m in 7:45.62 and continued to pull away. At 4000m, his lead was 40m.

The Ethiopian trio took turns to lead the chasing pack but made no impression until the final 600m when Bayissa and Gebrselassie pulled clear of the rest. Kirui's lead was 25m by the bell, but the Ethiopian pair were running for just the silver medal until the final straight when Gebrselassie finally realised that the young Kenyan might be within range.

The Kenyan managed to speed up sufficiently in his final lap (59.59) to hold off Gebrselassie (56.5). Bayissa took the bronze to add to his 1991 silver. Kirui not only broke his own world junior record, but also became the youngest ever male world champion at 18 years 177 days.

Ondieki established himself as favourite with a brilliant 13:01.82 in Zürich shortly before the championships. He fulfilled this promise with the most courageous of runs. He held back after a slow first lap in the final before making his move on the fourth bend of the race. In hot (30°), humid conditions, he ran the second lap in 59.88. He followed up with laps of 60.47, 60.61, and 61.50, reaching 2000m at 5:09.43 (12.54 pace!). Skah and Bayissa tried to stay with the Kenyan, but even though he slowed in the third kilometre, he had a 50m lead at 3000m (7:46.37). Ondieki's final two kilometres slowed to 2:43.0 and 2:45.4. Bayissa closed to within 15m, but he never looked like catching the Kenyan. "I was thinking many times that maybe this was a mistake, and I can't keep on till the end," admitted Ondieki. "I didn't know where the others were, because I didn't look back."

In the absence of the two most recent world record breakers – Moses Kiptanui and Haile Gebrselassie – the pace was slow, just 2:17.66 after 800m. The race speeded up on the third lap thanks to defending champion Kirui. He and Bikila took turns to lead through 2000m (5:28.98), 3000m (8:05.20) and 4000m (10:44.25). As the pace quickened, the non-African challengers fell back. Instead the race was down to three Moroccans (Boulami, Sghir and Lahlafi), two Kenyans (Kirui and Kororia), and Bikila.

The Ethiopian edged ahead momentarily with three laps remaining, but thereafter Kirui was in front. The relaxed Kenyan speeded up when Lahlafi challenged with 500m to go. He led all the way around the last lap (56.56), repelling another attack from Sghir and withstanding the finishing kicks of Lahlafi and Kororia.

The title remained in Kenyan hands even though Kirui, seeking a hat-trick of victories, failed to survive his heat. With Gebrselassie opting only for the 10,000m, the overwhelming favourite was Komen whose exploits during 1997 included a Commonwealth 1500 record of 3:29.46, a Kenyan mile record of 3:46.38, a barrier-breaking world 2 miles best of 7:58.61 and a world 5000 record of 12:39.74. In Athens the early pace was very slow before first Baumann and then Nyariki pepped it up with a third kilometre covered in 2:32.12. Shortly afterwards Komen bolted ahead, running a sub-58 eighth lap and building up a big lead. He was 40m up at the bell and although the gap was narrowed considerably on the last lap by Boulami, who outkicked Nyariki for silver, Komen completed his final 3000m in 7:33.9!

Led by Hissou, natives of Morocco claimed three of the top four places in a race in which the first non African-born finisher, Kennedy, filled ninth place nearly half a lap behind the winner. Kennedy led at 1000m in a steady 2:38.16 but on the fourth lap Hissou tested the opposition with a 59.91 before conceding the lead to Limo. Hissou tried another burst leading up to 3000m (7:52.54), opening up 6m over Limo and Lahlafi with defending champion Komen next. He eased again and Komen took over for a lap before Hissou regained the lead.

With 600m to go the race was between Hissou, Lahlafi and Mourhit (a Moroccan running for Belgium contesting his first major track final), with Limo and Komen detached. At the bell (12:01.94) it was Lahlafi ahead, and 200m out (12:30.39) it was Mourhit, but Hissou sprinted to victory. The fastest finisher was Limo, who moved from fourth to second in the late stages with a 26.9 final 200m. The first four broke 13 minutes and the championship record of 13:02.75.

The Kenyans worked together to defeat the Algerian favourite Ali Saïdi-Sief. First Richard Limo raced through the first lap in 59.07, then Sammy Kipketer took over to pace 1000m in 2:31.51. He led by 15m at 2000m (5:09.48) and was still 10m up at 3000m (7:51.18). Then Saïdi-Sief moved ahead and his 61.32 10th lap succeeded in reducing the leading pack from 10 to three: himself, Limo and Olympic Champion Wolde. The Algerian ran strongly, but he had no response when Limo launched his finishing kick. The Kenyan sprinted past during the last bend and covered the last 100m in 13.2 to Saïdi-Sief's 15.2. The winner's final lap was covered in 55.3.

"We decided that it was the time to get the Kenyans back to winning races," said Limo, "so we sat down and planned how the race would be won."

Saïdi-Sief was later disqualified and suspended for two years after failing a doping control test.

9, Juan Carlos de la Ossa ESP 13:21.04; 10, Abderrahim Goumri MAR 13:23.67; 11, Abiyote Abate ETH 13:23.81; 12, Alejandro Suárez MEX 13:24.51; 13, Christian Belz SUI 13:26.02; 14, Moughled Al-Outaibi KSA 13:38.92; 15, Jorge Torres USA 13:43.37

El Guerrouj and Bekele each were bidding for a second Paris gold. The former had won at 1500m four days before this final, while the Ethiopian had taken the 10,000m title one week earlier. It was Bekele who attacked at the start, covering the first three kilometres in 2:31.94, 2:35.33 and 2:38.17 (7:45.44 at 3000m). In the seventh lap, with eight men in contention, the pace slowed with Bekele a reluctant leader. World junior record holder Kipchoge took over and presided over a 2:43.02 fourth kilometre.

El Guerrouj then repeated his tactic from the 1500m final, to wear down the opposition with a kick 800m from home. He ran the penultimate lap in 59.7 and the race was down to five: himself, Kipchoge, Bekele, Kibowen and Chebii. The two elder Kenyans lost touch, but Kipchoge and Bekele closed in on the Moroccan on the final bend. Could El Guerrouj hold on like in the 1500m final? No, because the 18 year-old Kipchoge edged past in the final 50m. Bekele's finishing sprint wasn't quite as quick as in the 10,000m and he settled for the bronze.

Kenenisa Bekele was only running the 10,000m in Helsinki, and El Guerrouj now retired, the heats still promised much, as Isaac Songok took the first race in 13:20.36 with the fourth placer (and last automatic qualifier) running 13:21.20. The other heat was the fastest-ever preliminary as reigning champion Kipchoge won with 13:12.86 just ahead of Mottram and Sihine.

Having made the final, each of the runners decided that he had the best finish, with the result that no-one wanted to lead. The time at 3000m was 8:27.74, more than 20 seconds slower than either heat. With four laps to go Bakken upped the pace with laps of 60.8 and 61.9. Just after 4000m Sihine took the lead, and ran the penultimate lap in 60.9, with Kipchoge and Mottram the closest followers. With 200m to go Limo was fourth, having cut off Saïdi-Sief who attempted to overtake on the inside. Limo accelerated past Kipchoge with 60m to go and passed Sihine 30m later. Mottram just caught Kipchoge before the line to take bronze behind Sihine. Limo's last 200m was covered in 25.8, and his last mile in 3:58.9.

The first heat brought a shock when both Kenyan representatives were outside the automatic qualifying zone in what was a slow race in sapping conditions (29°C, 71% humidity). Former champion Kipchoge won the second heat in 13:33.37, but his compatriots did not advance.

Logic dictated that for any athlete to beat the new 1500m champion, it would be necessary to take the sting out of his finish. However the tempo was slow from the start, the opening lap taking 68.41. The first three kilometres of the final saw that of the finalists hoping to beat Lagat, none did enough to test the American. An opening kilometre of 3:00.35 from defending champion Limo, was followed by sections of 2:46.72, 2:49.92 and 2:45.47.

The lap to the bell took 58.4 with Farah leading. Kipchoge took over with 200 to go, as Lagat cruised comfortably in fifth place. The American finally took the lead with 80m to go, and held off Kipchoge by a metre, to become the first athlete to win the World 1500/5000 double. Lagat had run his last 400 in 52.3, and his last kilometre in 2:23.0. "That was good for me," he said "Everybody waited until the last lap. I think I ran a smart race. I waited until the last 100."

The heats were notable for the tribulations of new Ethiopian Ali Abdosh, who accidentally lost a shoe in the first lap then spent 16 seconds trying to replace it before re-joining the race and valiantly attempting to make up lost ground to huge applause from the crowd. He fell three places short of qualifying by right, but was generously advanced to the final by decision of the referee.

The pace in the final was slow with the first kilometre covered in 2:54.35. The pace picked up with kilos of 2:39.82, 2:40.46 and 2:37.59 without significantly breaking up the pack. Bekele covered the penultimate lap in 60.21 seconds, but there were still 12 athletes in contact. Former champion Kipchoge ran alongside Bekele down the final back straight, but slipped back as Bekele ran his penultimate 100 in 13.02. In the meantime Lagat worked himself into an ideal position at Bekele's shoulder with 100m left. The American attacked and edged ahead with 80m to go, but Bekele fought back and won by two metres, completing the final circuit in 53.71.

Rightful finalist: Abraham Kiplimo UGA

The final was a slow affair, with the athletes apparently playing into the hands of 2007 winner Lagat. Of the first 11 laps, only two were quicker than 63.9, the slowest being 72.8. Farah led with two laps to go, when 14 men were still in contention. A lap of 62.3 dissuaded nobody, though Longosiwa was unlucky to fall 550m from the finish. Farah was just behind Kipchoge at the bell, then edged in front with Gebremeskel on his shoulder.

The Ethiopian briefly took the lead early in the back straight, but Farah held the inside and regained first place for good with just over 200m to go. Behind these two Merga elbowed Koech, and in the finishing straight edged Lagat out into lane three just as the American was making his bid to win. Up ahead Farah maintained his form to finish two metres clear of the Kenyan-born American. It was the first time a Briton had been first in a global 5000m since Charles Bennett was the winner in the 1900 Olympic team race. Both Farah and Lagat clocked 52.6 for their closing laps. Merga overhauled Gebremeskel for the bronze and duly appeared on the podium, but then was disqualified as it was noticed he had run several strides inside the kerb as the field bunched just after the bell. Inexplicably, the defending champion Kenenisa Bekele was declared for the heats despite already having left Korea following his failure in the Daegu 10,000m.

Daegu winner Farah was the man to beat. He had since won two Olympic golds and set a European 1500m record of 3:28.81. Six days earlier, he had won the Moscow 10,000m with the fastest closing sprint.

The Kenyans appeared to try a surging tactic in this final, which Koech opened with a 71.54 lap followed by one of 61.27, according to the transponder on his bib. Longosiwa followed, but then the field closed up and Farah himself took control as the pace settled down. Koech was again in front by 3000m, but that point was reached in a funeral 8:27.87. The Kenyan – who later described himself as a “sacrificial lamb” – surged again with a 61.02 lap to 3400m.

Farah duelled with Alamirew before returning to the front with around 600m to go, having covered the penultimate backstraight in a snappy 13.67. The British runner characteristically rebuffed all efforts to overtake him with a last lap of 53.44 by transponder (or 53.51 by photo-cell), having covered his last personal 1000m in 2:22.12. Koech and Longosiwa threatened in the finishing straight, but even quicker in the last 100m was Gebrihiwet, whose 13.05 carried him past the two Kenyans to snatch the silver medal by one thousandth.

At the previous year's European Championships, Alberto Cova had unexpectedly outsprinted the German Werner Schildhauer for the gold medal. The fact that history repeated itself in Helsinki did not detract from the most exciting of finishes to a long distance race.

On paper the Portuguese pair of Lopes and Mamede were favourites, and the latter won his heat in a fast 27:45.54. Mamede was not to be a factor in the final, run at a fluctuating but generally slow pace. Shahanga, Kedir and Debele took turns in front. The time at halfway was 14:07.11, with the field closely packed. On the 19th lap, Vainio spurred ahead with a 62.9 lap, but the pace slowed to 71.0 for the next circuit with Kedir in front.

With three laps left, Kedir and Lopes were at the front with 13 men still in contention. Halfway down the finishing straight before the bell, the imposing Schildhauer burst to the front. Kunze and Vainio followed, then the German pulled away to lead by 5m down the back-straight. Shahanga and Cova completed the chasing group of four behind Schildhauer.

The German showed no signs of fading, but Kunze gradually closed the gap around the final bend. Schildhauer hung on in front as the other four ran wide on the finishing straight. The race was almost over but any one of the five was still in a position to win. Try as he might, Kunze could not get past his team mate, and it looked as if Vainio would take a bronze behind the two Germans. Suddenly Cova, running in lane 4, began moving quicker than anyone. He went from fifth to first in the last 30m, having clocked 54.4 for the last lap in comparison with Schildhauer's 55.0.

Knowledgeable observers had pencilled in Kipkeoch as a probable winner after his victory at the 1987 African Championships, where he clocked 28:34.77 at high altitude. He dominated the race, unsettling the other runners with a 60-second fifth lap before allowing the pace to slow to 14:13.07 at halfway. At this point, Kipkeoch surged again, this time sustaining the pace. He clocked 2:36.8 for the seventh kilometre, by which time he had dropped Panetta, the only man who had tried to cover the change of pace. The Kenyan, wearing a white headband, won in a championship record, having run the second half of the race in an unbelievable 13:25.57.

Several runners were confused at the finish by the lap marker which had been displaying only the number of laps required by the leaders. As a result, some stopped a lap too early and some, like Vainio, who would have placed in the first six, did not bother to restart.

The Kenyan trio ran as a team to meet the challenge of the two-time World Cross Country Champion Skah. While Chelimo, the world junior record holder, and Tanui set a fast pace, Osano was under instructions to slow the pace of the chasing pack which would include Skah. The race went to plan, with Chelimo passing halfway in 13:30.27, well inside world record pace. Tanui was 25m back and a similar distance in front of Antibo and Skah.

Tanui, the Kenyan champion, caught the slowing Chelimo on the 17th lap by which time the two had a lead of 60m. Antibo, reportedly suffering from a blackout, dropped back. The chasing group comprised Osano, Skah and Nerurkar. The Moroccan appeared to be the only one capable of preventing a Kenyan victory, but he got no help in trying to close the gap. Skah was unwilling and the Briton was already running above himself. Skah made up 20m on laps 22 and 23 but was still 35m behind at the bell. This gap closed further on the final lap but the Kenyan pair were never in danger. Their own private battle was won by Tanui in the finishing straight.

Once again Chelimo – who briefly held the world record the previous month – and Tanui were representing Kenya. Both took turns in front, but the pace was erratic. The leader at halfway (13:59.38) was 5000m bronze medalist Bayissa, but the Ethiopian dropped out soon afterwards, leaving Chelimo in front. Surprisingly the young Kenyan fell back, and at 8000m the race had developed into a duel between Tanui and Gebrselassie, who had narrowly failed to win the 5000m six days earlier. Unusually, the 10,000m was being staged on the final day of the championships.

The Ethiopian upset the Kenyan by refusing to lead and catching his heels when Tanui slowed the pace. With six laps to go the Kenyan turned to remonstrate. The situation boiled over at the start of the final lap when Tanui kicked off his left shoe. Then with one bare foot, he sprinted vigorously and was 10m up on the Ethiopian on the last bend. Gebrselassie, finishing even more quickly than he did in the 5000m final, closed the gap and flew past in the homestraight. His last lap took 54.98 to Tanui's 55.66.

Tanui was furious after the finish and, after retrieving his lost shoe, angrily waved it at Gebrselassie when the Ethiopian attempted to shake hands. "He kept stepping on my shoes," complained Tanui. "You tell me how my shoe fell off without him making it happen."

There was a sensation in the first round when Kenyan champion Machuka raced to a championship record of 27:29.07. Eleven men broke 28 minutes behind him. The other heat was slower and significantly all three medalists came from the first race.

The first lap in the final was slow (70.44). Then Williams made a brave bid for a medal by racing into a lead of 60m after three laps. He was caught on lap nine by Kimani, who was shadowed by Gebrselassie, the world record holder and defending champion. Skah, Hissou, Kimani, Machuka and Franke completed the leading pack at halfway (13:46.20). Franke was the first to be dropped, followed by Kimani then Machuka. Hissou took over with 600m to go and at the bell (26:16.83), he led from Gebrselassie, Skah and Tergat.

Suddenly on the final bend, the Ethiopian unleashed a breathtaking sprint to leave the other three with no chance. He was timed at 25.1 for the last 200m despite launching his kick with only 180m to go. The Ethiopian's final lap was 56.0, and he lowered the championship record again to 27:12.95. Skah and Tergat also produced fine closing sprints, but were 20m down at the finish. Later that evening, Gebrselassie could be seen running around the streets of Gothenburg thronged by a huge group of Ethiopian supporters.

Unhappy running on such a hard track, and at the final championships where a 10,000m heat was required, Gebrselassie expended the least possible energy in stretching his world title win streak to three. As he remarked, "my win was very easy, unlike the one in the Olympics." Content to sit in while his compatriot Jifar led past halfway in a leisurely 13:58.79, and patiently bidding his time as Koech picked up the pace after 7000m, Gebrselassie struck 530m out. His initial burst of speed was awesome and a 56.0 last lap allowed his closest pursuer, Tergat, no opportunity of getting on level terms, although he did narrow the deficit with a 55.2 last lap. Gebrselassie covered the second half in 13:25.1 with a final kilometre of 2:30.7. The first three finished in the same order as at the Atlanta Olympics – the only individual event in which that occurred in Athens.

Still only 26, Gebrselassie strengthened his claim to be considered the greatest of all long distance track runners by capturing his fourth successive world title at this distance. Run in searing heat, it was not surprising that the race opened cautiously, with Ramaala leading for most of the first half, until Gebrselassie took over for a while just prior to 5000m (14:17.17). It was during the eighth kilometre that Chelule injected a 62.88 lap but then the pace slowed again to 69s and there were still ten in contention with four laps remaining. The next took 66.25 and then European record holder Pinto burst ahead at 9 kilometres to rip through the 23rd lap in 62.21 with Gebrselassie in hot pursuit.

At the bell (27:02.90), after a 61.35 circuit, it was Gebrselassie ahead of Pinto, Mezegebu, Tola and Tergat, and a 54.37 last lap carried him to victory. The last kilometre took just 2:24.9. Tergat mustered a 55.1 last lap but although he moved into second place he never looked like catching the master.

Haile Gebrselassie was racing for the first time since an operation on his Achilles tendon in November 2000. The pace was moderate and none had been dropped as the large pack reached halfway in 14:15.11. The lead changed frequently but the four Ethiopians and three Kenyans were always prominent with Gebrselassie usually in second spot. With two laps to go, there was a pack of nine in front, the seven East Africans and two Spaniards.

Kosgei led at the bell, then Gebrselassie got to the pole position with 200m remaining. Everyone was expecting the Ethiopian to accelerate and collect a fifth title, but it was Kamathi who had easily the best finishing speed. He strode past Gebrselassie and smoothly sprinted away. A stunned Mezegebu also overtook Gebrselassie, who suffered his first defeat at 10,000m since 1993. Later it was revealed that the former champion had spent the previous three nights in a clinic suffering from flu.

After watching Kamathi's win, a dentist in Edmonton offered to replace for free the Kenyan's front tooth which had been missing since 1997.

Ethiopia gained revenge for Kamathi's win two years earlier with a display never seen before in a 10,000m race. The first 5000m was unremarkable, reached in 13:52.33 by Bekele, the multi World Cross Country Champion who had defeated his illustrious compatriot Gebrselassie in Hengelo the previous June. The two Ethiopians then worked together at a much quicker rate. Each ran laps of 61.2, and their sixth kilometre took just 2:34.52 (25:45 pace). In third place was the Ethiopian number three, Sihine. Kamathi, Korir and Hassan stayed in touch but not for long. The Ethiopian pair – with Gebrselassie more often in front and Bekele looking more comfortable – continued to operate at sub-13 minute 5000m pace. Only Sihine kept up but he was dropped at the bell, where the elder Ethiopian led. Bekele followed before sprinting clear on the final bend. He won by 10m, having covered the final lap in 55.0, very quick considering the total time of 26:49.57 was the 10th-fastest in history. Gebrselassie's last lap was 56.23, but it was the pair's second half timings which were most remarkable: 12:57.24 and 12:58.8. Defending champion Kamathi – seventh this time – concluded "they were too strong."

In fourth place Hassan smashed the Asian record. Formerly a Kenyan international, he had been issued with a Qatari passport on August 9, 2003.

Twenty of the 23 starters were African-born, though five were representing countries outside that continent. The pace was modest through the first 6000m with the halfway point reached in 13:51.10, but the Ethiopians pushed the pace in the seventh kilometre with Bekele running that 1000m in 2:39. By this point the pack had dwindled to nine [three Ethiopians, two Kenyans and one each from Uganda, Qatar, Eritrea and Morocco]. The pace slowed (to 2:47.55) in the ninth kilometre as the runners prepared for the final rush. Mathathi led from the 9000m point until just before the bell, when Dinkessa led the Ethiopian charge. Only Mosop was able to latch on, and Bekele took the lead with 250m to go. Bekele ran his last 200m in 25.9 as he sped away to win by 4m, though frequently darting quick looks over his shoulder to ensure he was safe. Sihine held off Mosop for the silver. Bekele had retained his title with a tactically-run last half of 13:15.9, and a last 800m in 1:56.7.

Having beaten Bekele at the World Cross-Country Championships in sweltering conditions, Tadese took on the pace in the hot (30°C) and humid (65%) Nagai Stadium. Kilometre splits varying between 2:43.2 and 2:45.6 took the field through halfway in 13:42.98, and burned off half of the contenders. By 8000m (21:54.58), only four were left in contention, with Bekele, Sihine and Mathathi latched on to the Eritrean.

Mathathi took the lead with three laps to go, and Tadese immediately lost touch. The Kenyan's next lap was covered in 61.12, but did not dissuade the two Ethiopians. Sihine went past Mathathi just after the bell, and raced ahead by up to eight metres. Some felt that Bekele might be heading for defeat, but he was effectively toying with the opposition. He simply changed gears and reeled his teammate in with 150m left, then flowed past in majestic fashion to win by 20m. His last lap took 55.51 compared with Sihine's 59.0, both substantially quicker than Mathathi's 62.2. For both Ethiopians it was a third consecutive 10,000m medal.

The first four kilometres were run at 27:40 pace, and then Masai threw in a 2:35.70 kilometre to pass halfway in 13:40.45. Three hundred metres later, Tadese took the lead, and after four laps a group of 12 had dwindled to three followers of the Eritrean – Masai, Kogo and, inevitably Bekele.

The 3000m (to 8000m) took 7:57.28, and by then Kogo had been broken. The next lap took 62.1 seconds and it became a duel. In humid conditions at the 2007 World Cross Country Championships, Tadese beat Bekele, but he had never done so otherwise. The Eritrean led at the bell, but Bekele then kicked and went away to win in 26:46.31 – his fastest championship win ever. Tadese finished a magnificent second 30m behind, 50m ahead of Masai. The first 14 men either set lifetime or seasonal bests. For Bekele it was his fourth consecutive World title, equalling Gebrselassie's record, and his 12th win in 12 races over the distance. Remarkably the slowest time in Bekele's career at this point was 27:08.33, and his 12 lifetime races averaged 26:45.7, a time beaten by just 12 other athletes in the sport's history.

The biggest question in the lead up to the race was whether four-time champion Bekele would start. The great Ethiopian had been out of action for 19 months with a ruptured calf muscle. There had been several announced comebacks in that period which did not materialise, so he appeared at the start with no races to his credit in 2011. Sadly he ran off the track in the sixth kilometre having lost touch with the leaders. It was his first ever defeat at the distance.

The race was led at halfway by Kirui (13:52.51), though most of the pace setting was done by Tadese to 8000m. At this point eight were in contention, and this was whittled down to three (Farah, Merga and Jeylan) after the Briton took the lead with 600m remaining. Farah surged with 450m to go and appeared to have the beating of Merga, but Jeylan gave chase. The Briton led by five metres with half a lap remaining, but the Ethiopian continued to gain and edged in front with 25m remaining to win for victory. Jeylan's gold medal was Ethiopia's ninth, while Farah won Britain's first ever medal in the event. The last laps of the gold and silver medallists were respectively covered in 52.7 and 53.36.

The first lap timed by transponder in 63.32 (by Ayeko) suggested that a fast race was in store, but a second lap in the 69s set the tone for a comfortably-paced first half. Halfway was reached by Tanui in 13:50.02 by transponder (or 13:49.95 by photo-cell). Farah, who had led briefly from 2400m, was lurking in the pack. Tanui still led at 8000m (22:11.50) with Farah's training partner Rupp on his shoulder. Farah took the lead with 4½ laps to go, but the next two circuits brought only a slight pace increase. Ritzenheim went ahead briefly, passing 9000m in 24:55.58. Within 200m, Farah was in front again and picked up the tempo with a 24th lap of 60.63. At the bell, it was Farah with five others still in close contention. Tanui and Kuma were the Briton's closest chasers until 180m remained, when reigning champion Jeylan moved ominously into second place, poised to outkick Farah as he had done in 2011. This time the Briton stayed ahead with a 12.82 final 100m compared with the Ethiopian's 13.15. Farah's last lap took 54.41 by transponder (or 54.49 cell).

Stephen Mokoka RSA 28:14.67; 21, Byron Piedra ECU 28:50.72; 22, Patrick Tiernan AUS 29:23.72; Nguse Amoslom ERI & Polat Kemboi Arikan TUR DNF

The standard was the highest ever at a major championship, with the inexperienced Hadis finding that a sub-27 minute clocking was good enough only for seventh place. The Ethiopian played a part too, maintaining a 63 second lap pace in the ninth kilometre when others might have preferred it to have eased off. For the top 11, the second half had been quicker than the first by as much as 40.06.

That extreme differential came from Cheptegei, who led at 3000m (8:09.13 photo-cell). It was Karoki (aka Muchiri) who was in front at 5000m (13:33.74 transponder), with a pack of 14 still in touch. Contenders started to fall back when Cheptegei took over again before the stint of Hadis, who was replaced at the front by Farah with two laps left. At the bell, Farah led from the three Kenyans and Cheptegei. The defending champion stumbled twice on the penultimate bend, but still burnt off more opposition, leaving just Tanui, Karoki and Cheptegei in contention. Farah kicked from the front to retain his title, while the Ugandan finished strongly for silver with Tanui third again.

The Kenyan team of Kamworor, Tanui and Karoki tried to take the sting out of Farah's kick. All took turns in front, but halfway was reached in a modest 13:40.82 according to the photo-cell timer. The leading group of 13 was whittled down to five by the 8000m point with Kamworor leading from Farah, his two teammates, and Rupp. The 2:42-43 kilometre pace was maintained past 9000m (photo-cell 24:32.27). Farah typically went to the front with 500m left, but almost fell when clipped on his heels by Kamworor on the first bend of the last lap. The Briton eventually went clear in the finishing straight to win by 5m from Kamworor with Tanui an isolated third. After Karoki and Rupp there was a yawning gap to sixth place. Farah's last lap took 54.14 by cell (or 54.15 by transponder).

Two of the world's three best marathon runners – Lopes and Salazar – opted for the 10,000, leaving Commonwealth Champion de Castella as the favourite. The racing began at around 26Km when three Africans, Masong, Balcha and Robleh, opened up a gap of about 100m. The break was not decisive and by 30Km the trio were caught by the chasing pack of 20. De Castella moved to the front on an uphill section at 35Km. Only Balcha could follow and the two were 100m clear at 37Km. “Deek” struck again on another hill and dropped Balcha three kilometres from home. He won by 24 seconds from the Ethiopian, who became one of only three Africans to win a medal in Helsinki.

The bronze went to two-time Olympic Champion Cierpinski, who outspurred the Swedish veteran Ståhl after the two had entered the stadium together.

One of the biggest surprises of the championships was the performance of Japanese-based Kenyan Wakiihuri. He was one of a group of 18 which formed in pursuit of the early leader Maher. In 83% humidity, the Canadian raced through the first half of the race in 65:37 but thereafter the chasers began to gain. The pack, down to six, caught the Canadian at 28Km. Wakiihuri, Salah and Moneghetti broke away after 35Km, before a 15:13 split by the Kenyan gave him a winning lead of 30 seconds.

Even though the race started at 06:00, the temperature was 26° with 73% humidity. It was not surprising that victory went to a runner from the host nation, and therefore familiar with such conditions.

Taniguchi was one of three Japanese in the leading group of 13 which passed halfway in 66:25. He surged at 30Km, taking with him only Shinohara and Huruk. The pace slowed, allowing the Italian pair of Bordin and Bettiol to join the leaders. Bordin, the Olympic Champion, went in front at 33Km, but was soon replaced first by Shinohara then Taniguchi. After 36Km, Taniguchi made another move which was covered by Shinohara, Salah and Huruk.

The 31 year-old Taniguchi, his face contorted in pain, was able to surge yet again at 38Km. It proved to be the winning break. Salah repeated his 1987 silver, while the bronze went to the fast-finishing American Spence, who was only 26th at halfway.

The race developed into a two-way battle between two runners with South African origins, Namibia's Swartbooi and Plaatjes, who was born in Johannesburg but became an American citizen in July 1992. The Namibian, third in the Boston marathon the previous April, made a decisive break at 25Km. By 30Km he had a lead of almost one minute. At this point Plaatjes was running conservatively in the second chasing pack, but he improved to catch the group behind Swartbooi at 35Km. He was still 90 seconds behind the leader but closing. At 40Km he could see the Namibian, and it was only after another kilometre that he felt he could catch the leader. This he did with just 1000m remaining. "I felt horrible passing Lucketz," said Plaatjes. "He did so much work and was brave to take the race out and destroy the field."

The race started slowly at 14:00, virtually the hottest part of the day (26°C). The first 5Km was completed in 16:08 and Tanzania's Akonay led through 10Km in 31:59 and 15Km in 47:13. Turbo passed half way in 66:54, but the first serious break came at 27Km, when Santos moved into a lead of 30m. Cerón was second with European champion Fiz third plus Whitehead, Nerurkar and Juzgado.

Cerón and Fiz were in front at 30Km, with Santos safe in third place. The Mexican broke clear at 38Km and seemed to be heading for victory until Fiz made his move approaching 40Km. His 5Km to that point took just 14:48 and he strode past the Mexican to win by 32 seconds. It was his fourth victory in five marathons.

"When Cerón sped up I had to let him go," said the winner, "but I never gave up." Having forgotten his own kit, Fiz ran in a vest borrowed from 20Km walk medallist Valenti Massana.

Fiz came close to becoming the first marathoner to retain a world title but had to concede to the superior finishing powers of his compatriot Antón, a man who has run 1500m in 3:37.5. It was another Spaniard, Roncero, who led at halfway in 67:08, the hot weather and severity of the historic Marathon to Athens course ensuring times would not be fast. At that point Fiz and Antón shared fourth place in 67:15 but they drew clear of the field in the 29th kilometre. Fiz tried all he could to shake off his opponent, but Antón, the reigning European 10,000m champion running only his third marathon (having won the previous two), easily outstrided him over the final 500m. With Roncero finishing sixth Spain won the World Cup team race held in conjunction. Moneghetti, contesting his fifth World Championships, collected his first medal in third place.

At 36 years and 308 days, Antón became the oldest IAAF World Championships gold medalist in a running event, and joined Abebe Bikila and Waldemar Cierpinski as the only marathon men to have won a second global title. Since outkicking his Spanish colleague Fiz for the world title in Athens, Antón had experienced his ups and downs: 4th in 1997 Fukuoka (2:10:27), 1st in 1998 London (personal best of 2:07:57), non-finisher 1998 New York, 3rd 1999 London (2:09:41). But on home soil in Seville (his first ever marathon in Spain) he was back to vintage form.

Damaoui was about a minute clear of the main contenders at halfway in 67:24 only to be caught at 27 kilometres. Sato then built up a big lead by 35 kilometres ahead of Modica, Antón and Biwott. During the 38th kilometre, first Modica then Antón, dropped Biwott, and then Antón on his own spurred away in pursuit of Sato, whom he caught and passed approaching 39 kilometres. Covering the second half in an exceptional 65:10, he won by 27 seconds from Modica with Sato third. His time of 2:13:36 was impressively fast in the heat of the evening. Italy and Japan each had three men in the top ten, finishing in that order on aggregate times in the concurrent World Cup competition. This was the final world championship marathon in which no African placed in the top eight.

The organisers had the novel idea to stage the race in conjunction with the opening ceremony, and they were rewarded with the greatest finish ever to a championship marathon. Unfortunately for the runners, August 3 was the hottest day so far in Edmonton in 2001. Even at the 6:45pm start, the temperature was 28°C.

Trinidad's Holassie led for 55 minutes before being caught before halfway (66:59) and dropping out. London marathon winner El Mouaziz took up the pace and held a lead of around nine seconds at 30km from Abera, Biwott, Baldini, Tola and Aburaya. The course then featured a climb up from the North Saskatchewan River, during which El Mouaziz was caught.

After two hours of running, Abera surged and dropped all but Biwott. Thrillingly, the two entered the stadium together with Biwott just ahead. The pair had 300m to run and Abera kicked with 200m to go. Biwott didn't fold and chased closely, but it was the Ethiopian who reached the finish line a second in front, covering the last 300m in 44.7. He therefore became the first man to simultaneously hold Olympic and World marathon titles.

The race started at the historic Hôtel de Ville in the centre of Paris. Happily the temperature (18°C) was considerably cooler than earlier in the week. The pace (64:45 at halfway) was quick by championship marathon standards, yet a huge pack were in contention at 30Km though not the defending champion Abera, who dropped out injured. In the 32nd kilometre Gharib broke away along with 2:06:33 man Rotich. European silver medallist Rey tracked the two Africans and moved into second place when Rotich surprisingly fell back. Edmonton bronze medallist Baldini moved into third place after 40K. The leading pair entered the stadium tunnel together, but on their emergence Gharib had pulled away. He ran the second half of the race in 63:45 and his winning time of 2:08:31 was not only a championship record but the fastest-ever summer marathon. It was a pitiful race for Ethiopia and Kenya, with a total of seven non-finishers between those two distance running superpowers.

Ninety-five athletes started the race, with 34 failing to finish. The pace over the first half was solid, and the halfway time was 64:17, with defending champion Gharib leading the way. The field stayed together over the next 8Km, and it was only at 29Km that Gharib made a concerted effort to break away. Just Stefano Baldini responded, but within 2Km dropped out with a hamstring problem. By 35Km Gharib was 23 seconds clear of Ogata, Ramadhani and Melese, with Isegwe another seven seconds behind. Isegwe finished fastest, and ended just 11 seconds behind the Moroccan after a 15:48 uphill 5Km split to the 40Km mark. Gharib became only the second marathoner to successfully defend his title.

The race began at 7:00 when the temperature was already 28°, with 81% humidity. By the time the race ended the thermometer would be registering 33°. Sensibly, the athletes went off cautiously, with the first 5Km covered in 16:37. The time at halfway was 68:29, with some 30 runners in a bunch. At the 25Km mark, Kenyans Kiplagat and Kibet, and Shami of Qatar (formerly Richard Yatek of Kenya) led the field uphill towards Osaka Castle. Kibet took the lead for good just after 30Km, and reached 35Km with a 23-second lead over Shami. The margin was extended to well over a minute by the finish, as Röthlin, closing fastest of all over the last 2Km, improved from sixth to third, missing the silver by seven seconds. Although the slowest win in the meeting's history, it was also the largest ever winning margin. Japan, with fifth, sixth and seventh positions, wound up an easy winner of the World Cup trophy.

The course comprised four 10Km loops through the centre of Berlin and past many historical and cultural sights, plus an extra 2.195Km loop from Berlin Cathedral to Alexanderplatz and back.

With the temperature rising from 18° at the start of the race (11:45) to 21° at the end, the heat was not too great a problem. The first 10Km was covered in 30:08, and the pace quickened to 59:42 at 20Km, with eight men still in contention, including three Kenyans and three Ethiopians. By 30Km (1:29:43) the Kenyans were accompanied only by Merga. After Cheruiyot fell off the pace, Kirui and Mutai opened up a small gap on Merga. The Ethiopian was to drop out at 39Km after being passed by Kebede. Meanwhile, Kirui began to move away from Mutai. A gap of 20 seconds at 40Km (2:00:10) grew to 54 by the finish at the Brandenburg Gate. Behind the two Kenyans Sebaya won the battle of the Ethiopians ahead of Tesgay. Cheruiyot placed fifth to give Kenya its first team victory.

The rush to the marathon by Kenyan runners has overwhelmed the rest of the world. In 2009 sixteen men ran under 2:07, of whom 12 were Kenyans! Neither Olympic champion Wanjiru, nor Kibet and Kwambai who had both run 2:04:27 earlier in the year were selected, but Kenya still won two medals and the team title.

On a warm and humid day (24°C, 65%), a slow pace was expected, and the halfway point was passed in 65:07 with 22 men in the pack. Kirui had taken the lead at the 20Km point, and covered the next 5Km in 14:43, reducing the leading group to four – himself, Kiptanui, Kiprotto and Lilesa. The defending champion separated himself from the others with a 14:18 split to the 30Km mark, and proceeded to win by the record margin of 2:28. “When it comes to a race where you have strong competitors, you also have to be wise,” said Kirui of his tactics. “Running is not only legs. It’s also the mind.” The race started and finished at Gukchae-bosang Memorial Park and comprised two loops of 15Km and one of 12.195Km.

The team race was won easily by Kenya from Japan. In third place initially were Morocco (6:42:18), but they fell out of the rankings when it was confirmed that three of their five entrants – including fourth-placed Bouramdane – had committed doping offences according to their Athlete Biological Passports.

Due to diminishing interest in the format, the IAAF had already decided before Daegu to drop the World Marathon Cup after 2011. It was, however, agreed to continue allowing up to five individuals per country to compete in 2013.

Tola was the early leader, passing 10Km in 31:22, but was caught by the leading pack before the 15Km point (46:39). The leading group totalled 22 athletes and reached halfway in a cautious 65:12. Tola continued to lead, with 5Km splits of 15:21, 15:25 and 15:24 leading up to 35Km, at which point the leaders were three Ethiopians, two Ugandans and a Kenyan.

Olympic Champion Kiprotich and world leader Desisa emerged to duel the gold in the final kilometre. The Ugandan made a few unexpected diagonal movements as the two approached the stadium, leading Desisa to follow needlessly in his footsteps. This unsettling tactic worked and Kiprotich went clear enough to be able to tap hands with spectators in the compound before entering the stadium to win.

The race started and finished in Moscow's Luzhniki Stadium and comprised principally of three laps along the embankment of the Moskva river to Red Square and back.

The race started in Yongdingmen Park and finished in the National Stadium. A temperature of 22°C, with humidity of 73%, put paid to any notions of a fast time. At 5Km (16:06), one of the contestants from the parallel mass race was among the leaders. Pertile led at halfway in 66:55 – compared to the time of 62:34 in the 2008 Beijing Olympic race, which was staged in similar conditions though on a different course.

At 27Km the unheralded Lesothan Ramonene burst clear and led by 19 seconds at 30Km (1:35:02). By 36Km, he had been caught by Ghebreslassie, and the 19 year-old Eritrean moved 12 seconds clear at 40Km. Ghebreslassie continued to pull away and eventually won by 30 seconds. The 41 year-old Pertile was fourth, having stopped for almost a minute at around 30Km to answer a call of nature. He might otherwise have challenged for the bronze. Favoured Kenyans Kimetto and Kipsang both failed to finish.

The race comprised four laps of 10Km, with the start and finish on Tower Bridge in central London.

Things began slowly, with the first lap covered in 31:36. The second 10Km (30:39) was much quicker, and Kipketer led a group of 17. He, Tola and Kirui moved clear of the field at halfway (65:28) and led by 12 seconds at 25Km.

Three became two at 30Km with Tola and Kirui dropping Kipketer. The next 5Km portion was the fastest of all (14:43) and Tola began to fall back. By 40Km, Kirui led by 52 seconds. Tola was being caught rapidly by Simbu, who moved from 1:10 behind the Ethiopian to within two seconds at the finish. Behind the medallists, Britain's Hawkins was the quickest, lifting himself from tenth after 25Km to fourth at the finish. The winner concluded: "this was the best course and the best crowd I have ever seen at a marathon."

Henry Marsh was the man who crossed the finish line first at the 1981 World Cup but was disqualified for missing a water jump. His misfortune continued in Helsinki when he dramatically fell at the final barrier when contesting the gold medal. There was also drama at the start of the final when, to the crowd's delight, Ekblom suddenly sprinted to a lead of 10m.

The Finn stayed in front until 600m from the finish. Scartezzini took over and was ahead at the bell, but was soon overhauled by European Champion Ilg. Maminski and Marsh chased the German and the medals looked to be between these three. After the water jump, Marsh overtook the Pole and looked to be gaining on Ilg. Just as a US gold medal looked possible, Marsh mis-timed his take-off before the final barrier and banged it with his right knee. Ilg saw nothing of this and sprinted away to win. Meanwhile, the American crashed to the track and rolled over as Maminski swerved past on the inside. The luckless American got up to jog across the line in eighth place.

Panetta showed he had fully recovered from his run in the 10,000m five days earlier when he won his heat in the fastest ever time for a preliminary. The Italian, nicknamed "Rambo", ran the final from the front at a pace close to the world record. His biggest opponent, Kipkemboi, fell at the hurdle on the backstraight of the fourth lap. This seemed to spur on the Italian, who passed 2000m in 5:26.62 and continued to run strongly. Only in the final lap did he start to lose form, but he still had enough energy to start celebrating before he reached the finishing line. Yet he still clocked the fourth-fastest time ever.

Defending champion Panetta went to the front at the start of the final, tracked by the Kenyan pairing of Sang and Kiptanui (8:07.89 in 1991). At 2000m (5:33.03) the leader was Kiptanui – the reigning World Junior 1500m champion – while Panetta fell back. The third Kenyan, Olympic Champion Kariuki, moved up to form a powerful Kenyan presence at the front of the race. Kiptanui still led at the bell with only Brahmi and Diemer in touch. A Kenyan sweep looked possible, but just as Kiptanui was getting the better of Sang for the gold, so Brahmi overhauled Kariuki for third place.

Kiptanui had missed the Olympic Games but later in 1992 lowered the world record to 8:02.08. He retained his title comfortably in a race which saw, for the first time, five men run quicker than 8:10. The defending champion made the running, taking himself and Sang into a 10m lead after the first kilometre. At 2000m (5:26.71) Kiptanui still led, but there was a surprise three laps from the finish when the audacious Khattabi joined the leading pair. The Moroccan could not live with Kiptanui and Sang, but a Kenyan sweep of the medals was prevented by Lambruschini, who overtook Birir on the backstraight.

Kiptanui was in such tremendous form that he could afford to hold back on the final lap yet still win by 50m and clock one of the fastest times ever seen. The barefoot Kosgei had surprisingly beaten Kiptanui in their previous clash in Sweden at the Stockholm Grand Prix, but there was only one winner in Gothenburg. The defending champion led from start to finish, reeling off successively faster kilometres of 2:44.06, 2:41.70 and 2:39.36.

At the bell Kiptanui had eight metres on Birir, who was around 5m ahead of Kosgei and Al-Asmari, the only man able to stay with the pace of the Kenyans. With 300m remaining a Kenyan medal sweep looked likely. Then Birir fell heavily at one of the hurdles after being knocked by the inexperienced Kosgei, who had suddenly accelerated in pursuit of Kiptanui. This left Al-Asmari in third place. Birir – the Olympic Champion – quickly got up but lost any chance of catching the Saudi athlete when he fell again at the last water jump. He jogged in to place ninth. Kiptanui won from Kosgei with history's third-fastest time. Al-Asmari won his country's first medal.

The winner stirred controversy when he admitted that he had been saving himself for the following week's Zürich Grand Prix. There, he lowered his world record to an historic 7:59.18.

For the first time in the World Championships, Kenyans filled the first three places in the steeplechase – and it might have been first four had Kenya taken advantage of the “wild card” rule and fielded an additional runner. Kiptanui was not simply a defending champion; he was seeking his fourth title, and he came very close to succeeding. Al-Asmari was still in contention at the bell but was left 50m behind at the end of a fantastic last lap covered in 57.5! Kiptanui, who led for most of the race (2:45.86, 5:31.08), was overtaken by Boit Kipketer at the final barrier while Barmasai – who had fallen early in the race – shared Kiptanui's time. Just one fifth of a second covered the three of them at the end.

The heats were amazing, as the previous fastest ever preliminary time (8:15.63 by William van Dijk at the 1988 Olympics) was bettered by nine men, and four ran faster than the eventual winning time in the final. Two went sub-8:20 but were eliminated. The Kenyans, with Boit Kipketer included as a defending champion, had hopes of filling the first FOUR places but had to settle for 1-2-5-7 in a dramatic race which saw the previously all-conquering Barmasai fall away to fifth. The Kenyans said afterwards that they had (as usual) worked as a team until the final lap.

After a hesitant beginning the race got faster: an opening 2:48.08 kilometre (Ionescu) was followed by one of 2:45.46 (Barmasai 5:33.54) and the last in 2:38.22. The fireworks came on the last lap with Christopher Kosgei moving from fifth to first approaching the 200m mark. Boit Kipketer, whose form had been patchy most of the season, chased after him and overtook him at the water jump, but Kosgei came again to win his first major title. Ezzine and Kallabis fought it out for the bronze, the young Moroccan prevailing.

in contention at the bell with the three Kenyans in front. Olympic Champion Kosgei proved to be the strongest of the trio, for Yator fell at the water jump while Barmasai was caught by Morocco's Ali Ezzine on the run-in. "There will be more [from Kenya] who will do what I did today," concluded Kosgei.

This event was given a fascinating twist when it was confirmed in early August that Kenya's Commonwealth Games Champion and 7:58.10 performer Stephen Cheronó had become a Qatari citizen, largely to avoid the restrictions of the Kenyan selection system. He would be known as Saif Saaeed Shaheen. This meant that there would be five Kenyans in the field for Paris: Shaheen, defending champion Reuben Kosgei and the first three in the Kenyan trials: Ezekiel Kemboi, Abraham Cheronó (Shaheen's younger brother) and Mike Kipyego.

Unfortunately, Kipyego fell in the heats and Kosgei failed to finish in the final, which developed into a duel between Shaheen and Kemboi. On August 15 in Zürich, the Qatari had beaten the Kenyan by one hundredth. The Paris race was dramatic and absorbing. First, Saifeldin and Shaheen sped away to a sub-60 second first lap. Shaheen maintained the quick tempo to reach 1000m in 2:36.24, more than three seconds inside actual world record pace. He soon had a lead of around 30m.

Shaheen then slowed to 2:43.34 for the second kilometre and suddenly Kemboi closed in. The two Africans then slowed further, such that the two Spanish Martins and – to the excitement of the crowd – Tahri had also caught up by the bell. The race then turned into a thrilling all-out sprint between the two principals. First Kemboi led down the backstraight, then Shaheen took over. They cleared the last barrier together and Kemboi moved ahead before Shaheen came again with one last sprint. The other Kenyan Cheronó finished behind the three Europeans in fifth place. Another brother of his and Shaheen's was the 1999 World Champion Christopher Kosgei.

The final was held in pouring rain, and the runners seemed blunted by the conditions. Blanco led the pack through 1000m in 2:52.13, and the pace improved only slightly in the second kilometre, with Boulami leading the field (5:40.39). Shaheen took over with 600m to go, and covered the penultimate circuit in 61 seconds, with only Kemboi and Boulami in touch at the bell. Shaheen increased the pace in the last lap, finishing with a 57.8 including the interior water-jump. Kipruto just edged the fading Boulami for the bronze medal, leaving three Kenyan-born athletes as the medalists. Six of the finalists were of Kenyan origin, and Shaheen won his 22nd consecutive steeplechase at 2000m or 3000m (a streak he extended to 28 [26] finals) by the end of 2006).

The heats saw Taher (formerly Denis Keter of Kenya), as the fastest qualifier, while all three of those representing Kenya qualified easily. Three athletes failed to finish the heats, with Weidlinger needing hospital treatment after smacking face first into a hurdle. The final started slowly, with Mohamed leading the field through 1000m in 2:52.63 before speeding up to 2:44.80 in the second third of the race. Mohamed stayed in front until the bell, when he was supplanted by Taher, race favourite Kemboi, and Kipruto. The Kenyans accelerated away and led by 10m at the last water jump, at which point Kipruto, hurdling the barrier, moved away from Kemboi. Behind them Mateelong went past Mohamed and Taher just after the water jump. Kipruto's victory was the seventh win by a Kenyan-born athlete at the World championships, and headed the second clean sweep. The champion in Paris and Helsinki, Saif Saeed Shaheen, was injured throughout 2007 while the world number one Paul Kipsiele Koech (seventh in 2005) was not selected.

Talk of a possible world record attempt by Kipruto, who had missed that record by 0.01 seconds six weeks earlier, was quickly muted when Ramolefi led the field through a cautious first kilometre of 2:47.63. The pace was still slow at 2000m with Araptany leading in 5:33.42. The Ugandan teenager still led at the bell, and continued to hold off Kemboi until 2200m from the finish. At that point the Kenyan erupted from the field, and held a 10m margin coming out of the last water jump. Certain in the knowledge that he had retained his title, Kemboi drifted out to lane seven by the time he reached the line, and pumped his fists in celebration. Behind him Kipruto was a solid second and never in danger of losing to Mekhissi, despite the closeness of the times. This was Kemboi's fifth consecutive medal in the World Championships, a clear testimony to his remarkable competitive record.

The Kenyans hoped to finish 1-2-3-4, and their chances were helped when Mekhissi, the Olympic silver medalist, failed to finish his heat, and 8:09 man Chatbi withdrew from the final after testing positive for Clenbuterol. The heats were all similarly paced with Kenyan winners – Mateelong, Kipruto, and Kemboi.

The final was led by Ramolefi, who had only been allowed into the championships at the last moment after having been omitted in error from South Africa's entry forms. He took the field through 1000m in 2:41.90, before Koech went ahead and increased the pace slightly with a 2:40.89 kilometre. Kemboi, Tahri and Mateelong were the only runners in touch, with Olympic Champion Kipruto falling back. Kemboi took the lead just before the bell, and pushing hard in the back straight was never headed. Koech, second into the finishing straight, was passed on the inside by Mateelong and then Tahri in the last couple of strides. For Kemboi, victory was particularly sweet after three silver medals. And after eight previous global finals races, Tahri not only won a medal but also broke the European record.

Kipruto posed a serious threat to defending champion Kemboi, having defeated him three times before Moscow in 2013. In the final, he led the field through 1000m in a moderate 2:45.94. Koech was slower yet in the second third of the race, reaching 2000m in 5:31.95. Kipruto went to the front with 600m to go, then just before the bell Koech moved slightly ahead. The two Kenyans collided at the start of the bend with Kipruto refusing to be overtaken. They were followed by Kemboi, Jager and the fastest heat winner Mekhissi.

Kemboi found himself boxed on the backstraight but spurted clear with 200m to go, moving quickly from fourth to first in the space of 30m. Meanwhile, Kipruto was overtaken by Mekhissi after the last water jump, but recovered to gain slightly on Kemboi despite landing awkwardly after the last hurdle. Mekhissi repeated his Daegu bronze. The defending champion could afford to ease up before crossing the line, yet his final lap was timed by transponder in 60.20, half a second faster than anyone else. His victory celebration included stroking his mohawk haircut, showing off a message on his tee-shirt and performing a dance on his victory lap.

The final began slowly with a first kilometre in 2:51.81, then Jager speeded things up from the fourth lap, passing 2000m in 5:35.46. Only Kipruto, El Bakkali and four time champion Kemboi stayed in contact. Kemboi was dropped in the next lap covered by Jager in 63 seconds, and the American led at the bell in 7:11.50. Kipruto moved ahead with 250m to go and led El Bakkali by 2m at the final barrier. The Kenyan went on to win by 3m. Jager held off Mekhissi for the bronze. The Frenchman made up almost 30m in the last 450m.

The biomechanics team working in London noted that Kipruto was the only one of the leading male contenders who hurdled the water jump barrier, saving himself considerable time on each circuit. Even though he landed in the deepest water, he did not spend much more time in it as some of his rivals who had needed to step on the barrier.

As usual, the Kenyans were favoured to win, but Jager had impressed mightily a month earlier when running 8:00.45 in Paris, despite falling at the final barrier. The Kenyans had four entries in Beijing because Kemboi was granted a wild card as defending champion.

The early pace in the final was set by Kipruto. Jager stayed with the Kenyans until Kemboi made a sprinter's break for home with 250m remaining. Conselus Kipruto followed with his own sprint, but the American had no answer. Kemboi's win was sealed with his seamless clearance of the final barrier, while C. Kipruto stuttered. Another Kipruto (Brimin) took the bronze, with Birech completing a Kenyan sweep of the first four. Then it was Huling who emerged as the best American rather than Jager. Kemboi's unique medal collection from seven successive World Championships: three silvers, then four golds.

A capacity crowd turned up in the hope of seeing Finland's first medal winner. Arto Bryggare had already impressed with a national record in round one, but the favourite for the gold was US Champion Greg Foster, who won his semi in 13.22. The tall Finn got to the first hurdle first in the final and led for four flights. Foster then took control, but was lucky to stay on his feet after hitting the ninth hurdle square on the crossbar. He also went right through the tenth hurdle. It almost cost him the race. "I've never hit a hurdle like that," said Foster. "I've never been that off-balance. I wanted to stop, but something kept me going."

Despite beating their favourite, Foster endeared himself to the crowd by waving a Finnish flag at his medal ceremony.

Defending champion Foster confirmed his status as favourite by winning the first heat in a championship record of 13.20. Bryggare unfortunately injured himself warming up for the final, leaving double Commonwealth Champion McKoy as Foster's biggest threat. In the final the Canadian got a great start, but hit the first three hurdles badly and was out of contention. Foster's nearest challengers were a pair of 20 year-old Britons, Ridgeon and Jackson. Ridgeon actually gained slightly on the American in the second half of the race, but said he dislocated a toe in his right foot in the process.

Foster became the first athlete to win three consecutive world titles, but he cut it very fine. Foster started well and held a narrow lead during the second half of the race, but a tremendous run-in by Pierce – fourth in Rome – brought him level with his older team-mate. The two men embraced after the finish, not knowing which one had taken gold even after watching the slow-motion replay on the scoreboard. Foster was eventually named as the winner. Jarrett's bronze was some consolation for Britain, who lost Rome bronze medallist Jackson through injury after the first round.

"As far as I'm concerned, we finished in a dead heat and we're both gold medallists," said the winner. "I would have been just as happy with second."

Three-time champion Foster did not make the US team, yet the event was of the highest quality. This was evident from the semi-finals, where Mark Crear clocked 13.38 but was eliminated. Jackson, third in Rome and injured in Tokyo, was unbeaten thus far in 1993 and was the favourite. However, the Tokyo silver and bronze medallists Pierce and Jarrett were each impressive semi-final winners.

The Welshman ran a virtually perfect race in the final. Away quick-est, he was pressured only by Dees, one lane to his right. The American was heading for a possible silver medal before faltering at the fifth hurdle and fading to last place.

Jackson brushed the tenth barrier before crossing the line 0.01 inside the four year-old world record of Roger Kingdom. The place times were phenomenal. Jarrett improved his best by 0.13 to take the silver. Pierce, who again displayed a strong finish, matched his silver-medal winning time of Tokyo.

"I wanted to be precise, accurate and fast," said Jackson, who touched just two of the hurdles.

Third in 1987 and winner in a world record 12.91 in 1993, Jackson completed a set of medals by taking silver this time. Normally he would have been dejected at losing such an important race but the Welshman was delighted by his best run (13.05) for three years, returning to the highest level after many had written him off. Johnson retained his title brilliantly. Quickest away, he was a metre clear of Jackson at halfway and held his form superbly to clock 12.93, the fifth-fastest ever time and just 1/100th away from the American record he shared with Roger Kingdom. Kováč outdipped Schwarhoff for the bronze, Slovakia's first World Championship medal. "I achieved the time I thought could win the gold," said Jackson, "but Allen produced a fantastic performance."

1,	Allen Johnson	USA	13.00	0.143
2,	Tony Jarrett	GBR	13.04	0.129
3,	Roger Kingdom	USA	13.19	0.153

There was certain to be a new champion as Colin Jackson suffered an adductor injury in the lead-up to Gothenburg and ruled himself out of contention. In any case, a serious challenge to the Briton's dominance had emerged in the shape of Allen Johnson, who in March became the first man to beat Jackson in a hurdles race since 1993.

The new American star almost went out in the second round when he stumbled badly on the run-in. He got it right when it mattered in the final, setting a personal best into a headwind despite hitting the final hurdle. Jarrett, who committed a false start, collected his fourth non-gold world medal and described himself as "the Merlene Ottey of men's track."

Allen Johnson joined Greg Foster as a three-time winner. The 30-year-old American was off to an excellent start, though he proceeded to knock down five hurdles, allowing Olympic Champion García to close in the second half of the race. The Cuban couldn't get level with Johnson and wound up second again in 13.07 to Johnson's 13.04. Those first two times were exactly the same as in 1999. In third place, Dorival won Haiti's first ever World Championship medal.

The USA, who had provided the winner of five of the previous six finals in this event, suffered a double blow when Crear, the only man under 13 seconds in 1999, was disqualified from his quarter-final for two false starts and Johnson (seeking his third world title) strained a calf muscle warming up for his semi and withdrew. However, the USA still fielded a strong contender in Ross (4th in their Trials and thus competing only because Johnson had a 'wild card') who was fastest in the quarter-finals (personal best of 13.13) and semis (13.14). Also impressive in the other semi was García, who edged Jackson in 13.18.

Both García (with a Central American record) and Ross ran their fastest ever times in the final, but world record holder Jackson used his unrivalled dip to regain the title he last won in 1993. His time was a season's best of 13.04 and he made history by becoming the first Briton in any event to win a second world title. "Lots of people had written me off as past it but I knew I still had another championship in me," he said.

8,	Maurice Wignall	JAM	13.39	0.144

Liu and Trammell were the only sub-13 performers in 2007, with the Olympic Champion from China the marginal favourite in Osaka. It was his compatriot Shi who was the fastest in the heats with a personal best of 13.22. Behind him Payne ran 13.27. Three days before that race Payne was at home in Virginia, but flew to Osaka when Dominique Arnold had to withdraw with an Achilles injury.

World record holder Liu was drawn in lane nine in the final because he had eased off in his semi-final and was only the second-quickest of those who placed second in that round. Despite a reaction more than 0.03 slower than any other finalist, Trammell was the leader at the first hurdle, with Payne and Robles just behind. Trammell moved away from Payne, but Liu began to move up, and was second by the sixth barrier. Liu's momentum was irresistible, and he caught Trammell at the ninth hurdle, and won by almost half a metre with the first sub-13 at the World championships since 1997. Trammell also dipped below 13 seconds, and needed it to hold off the remarkable Payne who ran 13.02.

The heats were run into headwinds during thunderstorms and the fastest man was Liu (13.73). Defending Champion Johnson clocked 13.92 into a wind measured at 5.1 metres per second and noted "I've never run into a headwind like that. I felt like I was being blown backwards." Conditions were not much better the next day, and the three races were won by Doucouré, Trammell and Johnson.

Johnson was out quickest in the final, with Doucouré inches behind at the first hurdle. The Frenchman, with his upright stance, high lead leg and quick snapdown, took the lead at the third hurdle, with Johnson and Trammell closest to him. Liu came next and the slow-starting Arnold was in sixth place. Doucouré and Johnson both hit the last hurdle hard, allowing the fast-closing Liu to catch up. Doucouré looked like a clear winner across the line, but Liu's closing lean helped him to get within 1/100th of the statuesque Frenchman. Johnson won an unprecedented fifth medal [his first non-gold] in holding off the fast-closing Arnold 13.10 to 13.13.

1,	Ryan Brathwaite	BAR	13.14	0.157
2,	Terrence Trammell	USA	13.15	0.141
3,	David Payne	USA	13.15	0.122

8,	Ji Wei	CHN	13.57	0.144

The event was weakened by the absence through injury of defending champion Liu Xiang and the injury to new world record holder Robles. The Cuban failed to finish his semi-final, at which stage Brathwaite was the fastest, having improved his Barbadian record to 13.18.

Payne, Brathwaite and Trammell were drawn in lanes 3-4-5 in the final, and for almost the entire race it was difficult to determine who held the lead. All three went across the third hurdle in 4.61 seconds, and it was only at the sixth hurdle that Payne could be seen to have dropped back slightly. At the 10th barrier Brathwaite held a lead of 0.03 over Trammell and was 0.04 ahead of Payne, but the Americans closed sharply, and it took the judges some minutes to decide that the Barbadian was the winner, again with a national record. Sharman edged Wignall for fourth, after being in contention with the top three for half the race. Brathwaite became the first athlete from Barbados ever to win a medal in the World Championships, while Trammell won his fifth global silver medal since 2000.

			To 1000th

Robles and Liu were best away in the final, while Oliver was left behind in the blocks. By halfway, Robles was leading by just under half a metre from Liu, with Richardson in third place and beginning to draw clear of Merritt. Liu drew level with Robles as they went across the ninth hurdle, but the Cuban, one lane inside Liu, caught Liu's left arm with his right hand. Liu's momentum was thrown off slightly, and Robles again hindered Liu as they went across their 10th hurdles.

The Cuban was first across the line in 13.14, just ahead of Richardson with Liu a metre behind. While Robles himself had been slowed by the collisions, it was clear that Liu had been more seriously affected. The Cuban was predictably disqualified for obstruction after a protest by the Chinese team, leaving Richardson as the slightly bewildered champion. Liu afterwards said "Robles hit me twice, but it wasn't intentional. If not for that I would have been gold medalist". Behind them Turner edged by 0.008 the out-of-form Oliver.

8,	Andrew Riley	JAM	13.51 0.135

Former world number one Oliver made a wonderful comeback in 2013 and was much the quickest in the preliminaries. In the final, he and Riley were off quickest, but Oliver had the lead by the second hurdle. World record holder Merritt hit the sixth hurdle and was then out of the reckoning, while Wilson held second place. Shubenkov moved up from sixth with four hurdles remaining to take the bronze medal ahead of defending champion Richardson, who clipped the final barrier. Oliver, meanwhile, scored a clearcut win with the world's fastest time of the year.

8,	Garfield Darien	FRA	13.34	0.178

McLeod led initially in the final, then Shubenkov went from third to first in between hurdles four and five to win with his fastest-ever time. Parchment ran a superb second half, moving from sixth to second, just ahead of Merritt. The American won even more plaudits when it was revealed that he had been suffering with a diseased kidney. Four days later he underwent an organ transplant, the donor being his sister LaToya Hubbard. Cuba's Orlando Ortega was 2015's fastest man prior to Beijing with 12.94, but could not compete as he was in the process of gaining Spanish citizenship.

Olympic Champion McLeod led the final from the gun, with defending champion Shubenkov his closest pursuer. The Jamaican hit hurdle six quite hard, but still managed to improve his speed on the approach to hurdle seven. He went on to draw clear from the Russian, who was the cleanest hurdler of the race. As his country had been suspended from international athletics since November 2015, Shubenkov became the first "Authorised Neutral Athlete" to win a World Championships medal.

Darien moved into third place but struck the last three barriers, and was pipped for the bronze by the longer-striding Baji, who won Hungary's first ever world track medal. The biomechanics from Leeds Beckett University reported there were three right-leg lead men in the final ... and all three won medals.

400 Metres Hurdles

Helsinki 1983

1, [2]	Edwin Moses	USA	47.50
2, [7]	Harald Schmid	FRG	48.61
3, [1]	Aleksandr Kharlov	URS	49.03
4, [8]	Sten Nylander	SWE	49.06
5, [6]	Andre Phillips	USA	49.24
6, [4]	David Lee	USA	49.32
7, [3]	Amadou Dia Bâ	SEN	49.61
8, [5]	Ryszard Szparak	POL	49.78

Moses, one of the greatest track athletes in history, reached his peak in 1983. He was the most commanding of champions in Helsinki, winning by 10m from European Champion Schmid, who six years earlier had been the last man to beat the American. It was the 81st consecutive win in a final by Moses, who became the first Olympic gold medalist to win a world title.

The American (lane 2) ran a controlled first half before pulling clear around the second bend. Phillips looked set for a medal, but took the eighth hurdle badly and slipped out of contention. The winner ran the second half of the race with his left shoelace undone.

Tokyo 1991

1, [6] Samuel Matete	ZAM	47.64
2, [5] Winthrop Graham	JAM	47.74
3, [4] Kriss Akabusi	GBR	47.86
4, [7] Kevin Young	USA	48.01

6, [1] Derrick Adkins	USA	49.28
7, [2] Kater Keter	KEN	49.99
8, [8] Niklas Wallenlind	SWE	50.28

The United States' domination of this event was cracked by the rapid progress of Zambia's Samuel Matete, who just before the Tokyo World Championships had clocked the second-fastest time in history, 47.10. He was expected to contest the gold medal with Rome silver medalist Harris, but the preliminaries showed that Akabusi and Graham would also be strong factors.

In the final, Matete surprised everyone with an uncharacteristically fast start. He led down the back straight from Graham, Young and Harris. Into the finishing straight, Graham caught Matete. The two were two metres up from the American pair, who had been joined by Akabusi. Harris made a mistake at the ninth and fell back. Meanwhile, Matete got away from Graham to win by a metre. Akabusi outprinted Young for the bronze.

The winner said that he had risked selection for Tokyo by missing the Zambian trials. He made it up with the authorities and carried the Zambian flag at the opening ceremony.

While Helsinki provided Moses with an opportunity to exhibit his crushing domination, Rome saw the American retain his title by a thrillingly narrow margin. Moses's win streak had been brought to an end by fellow American Harris the previous June. Schmid, meanwhile, had been in the form of his life, with two sub-48 clockings earlier in the summer.

Drawn inside his two great rivals in the final, Moses went off quickly and held a 2m lead from Schmid on the final bend. The American, 32 the day before, surged further ahead in the finishing straight. Harris drew level with Schmid and the two gained on Moses down the homestraight. It was clear that the American would not enjoy his usual margin of victory, but it was not until after the tenth hurdle that Schmid and Harris sensed they too had a chance to win. Their final touchdown times, according to IAF's scientific report, were Moses 42.15, Schmid 42.32 and Harris 42.42. Harris finished strongest, and the three crossed the finish line together.

At first sight, Moses looked the winner, but the television replay, which revealed the desperate dips of all three men, caused second thoughts. Finally the announcer confirmed the result, in which the first five placings were the same as at the Olympics in Los Angeles three years earlier. Moses was the only one to maintain only 13 strides between all the hurdles.

The reputation of world record holder Young had been dented when he was beaten by both Matete and Graham before the championships. These three each won their respective semi-finals, but in the final it was a Frenchman, Diagana, who went off fastest. Aware that Graham and Matete possessed quick finishes, Young made a big effort between hurdles seven and eight. He came into the straight with a lead he held to the finish. For much of the finishing straight, Diagana was in second place before being caught by Graham and Matete. He wound up fourth in the fastest non-medal time ever.

"I shut them down with my left, I shut them down with my right. I'm the big daddy in the house," said the charismatic winner. "Seriously, this was a fun race for me."

It wasn't quite as exciting as the epic 1987 final, but once again three men raced almost level down the finishing straight in the final. Adkins (lane 4), contesting his third world final, started quickest and withstood challenges from former champion Matete (3) and European record holder Diagana (6). Despite labouring over the final hurdle and dipping early, he held on to win by 0.05.

"I may have gone out a little too fast because I was running out of energy at the end of the race," admitted Adkins, "I was very worried."

The race provided one of the highlights for the home crowd – Nylander's fifth place in his third world final.

The advantage of having a World Championships only a year after the Olympics is that athletes who failed for whatever reason to make their mark in the Games have a quick opportunity to make amends. Diagana was such an athlete. The European record holder, who had to miss Atlanta with a stress fracture in his right foot, had the knack of peaking just right for major championships and here he timed it perfectly. His season's best before Athens was 48.44 but when it really mattered he won his semi-final in 48.14 and the final in 47.70 ahead of two men who had beaten him the previous month, Herbert and Bronson. Herbert, only 20, set a South African record of 47.86 from lane one to pip the American favourite. Among other national record breakers were Mori of Italy and a newcomer to the event, Mužik of the Czech Republic. Defending champion and Olympic gold medalist Adkins failed to reach the final.

What with injury preventing the fastest (Llewellyn Herbert) and third quickest (Chris Rawlinson) performers of the year from competing, and the favourite Taylor – who would make handsome amends in the Olympics – being eliminated from his heat when mistakenly believing the first three qualified when it was actually first two, the final was wide open.

Diagana, improving in each race following early season injury, put up a stout defence of his title and led for much of the race. But Mori, who had been disqualified for running inside his lane in his semi and then reinstated, employed his usual fast finish (after a faster than usual start) to better effect than ever before to race through to victory in the Italian record time of 47.72. A protest about him running out of lane in this race was not upheld. Despite hitting the last hurdle Diagana salvaged second just 1/100th ahead of Swiss revelation Schelbert, whose very fast finish brought him a national record and bronze medal in an exceptionally close battle for 2-3-4-5.

Angelo Taylor's World Championship jinx struck again. The reigning Olympic Champion almost fell over the final hurdle in his semi and was eliminated, and for the first time, no American qualified for the final of a senior global 400m hurdles championship.

In the final the small Japanese Tamesue impressed most down the backstraight. Around the last bend Al-Somaily held a slight lead and was just ahead of Tamesue at the 8th and 9th barriers. Then Sánchez (lane 5) and defending champion Mori (lane 4) came through, each with strong finishes. It was Sánchez, with a flashing red band on his right wrist, who prevailed, winning the Dominican Republic's first World Championship medal.

Sánchez had been unbeaten since before his Edmonton win and so was one of the biggest favourites in Paris. In his semi-final he appeared to ease off in mid-race before storming through with the day's quickest time of 48.16, though Iakovákis had reduced his Greek record to 48.17 one race earlier.

In the final Sánchez did not hold back. He was 5m ahead by the eighth barrier and went on to win by a Moses-like margin of 0.93. His time of 47.25 was the 10th-fastest ever. It looked as if Herbert might repeat his 1997 silver, but the South African fell at the final hurdle.

Tamesue was away fastest in the final, and led through to the eighth hurdle, with van Zyl, and then Jackson and Carter, his closest rivals. Jackson and Carter battled evenly to the 10th barrier, but Jackson's quickness overcame Carter's strength on the run-in. Tamesue, fighting all the way to the line, took the bronze from Clement, who again had faltered just before the final hurdle.

Defending champion Sánchez failed to finish, but his 48.24 semi-final was a minor miracle, as a series of injuries had rendered him unable to walk three weeks earlier.

Former champion Sánchez signalled his comeback with a win in the second semi in 48.35, though the main story of the race was the elimination of defending champion Jackson who hit the last hurdle while leading, and stumbled out of contention.

Plawgo and Carter were the early leaders in the final, but Clement took over at the fourth hurdle, and led by four metres by the eighth. Despite chopping his stride and running 17 strides between barriers for the last two hurdles, Clement still had two metres margin at the final barrier, and he won by three. Sánchez edged into second place after the eighth hurdle, and held off Plawgo to win the silver medal with his fastest time for three years. Plawgo set a national record in third place, while Carter, in contention for a medal, faded over the last 50m. Clement's win was no surprise, but that he managed to run 47.61 while making so many errors gave cause for speculation that he could be capable of improving Kevin Young's 15 year-old world record.

The biggest surprise in the heats was the non-qualification of Taylor. The Olympic Champion – restricted from training by hamstring problems – ran 49.64 to miss qualifying by 0.12. Fastest in the heats was defending champion Clement who ran 48.39 ahead of 37 year-old McFarlane (48.65) and 17 year-old Gordon, who improved from 49.45 to 48.66. Clement was again quickest in the semi-finals, clocking 48.00 ahead of Sánchez in the first race, while the other two central lanes for the men were gained by Jackson and Greene.

The line-up in the final included all the decade's World Champions. Clement started quickly, while Sánchez hit the first hurdle hard and immediately was out of contention. By the fifth, Clement was ahead of Culson by a metre. Across the 8th, Clement led by 3m from Culson, Gordon and Iakovákis, with McFarlane inches behind, and Jackson a metre further back. Jackson closed fast and caught Gordon in the last 5m, but couldn't reach Culson. The tall (1.98) Puerto Rican set a national record of 48.09 behind Clement. Gordon set a national record and world age-17 best of 48.26 seconds, becoming the second fastest Trinidadian born hurdler ever – after Clement, who was the only one to run 13 strides between every hurdle.

8, [2]	Aleksandr Derevyagin	RUS	49.32

There was first a faulty start, then after the finalists went to their marks for a second time, Taylor was given an official warning for taking too much time. In spite of that penalty, the American was off quickly, but Culson was in front by hurdle three, with van Zyl just behind. The Puerto Rican maintained the lead until the eighth when the South African caught him. Almost level just over a metre behind them were Taylor, Jackson, Greene and Sánchez, who had struck the first hurdle heavily. The Briton moved most freely of that quartet and caught Culson off the last hurdle to win by half a metre.

Memories of 1987 were stirred when we had to wait for a photo-finish reading before we knew who would be champion. Tinsley (lane 3) was out fastest in the final, and led by a metre from Culson and Cisneros by the third hurdle, with Gordon and Bekrić a further metre back. The American still led at the eighth hurdle, by a slim margin from Gordon. The two men ran virtually level down the finishing straight and crossed the line with simultaneously deep dips, both falling to the track. Gordon's name appeared first on the scoreboard with a winning margin of 0.01. He said later that he felt he'd won because he only looked straight ahead approaching the finish. Tinsley had looked across momentarily. Behind the top two, Bekrić surged past two men on the run-in to take the bronze. The Serbian had improved out of all recognition at these championships.

Sánchez reached a record seventh final in style with a world over-35 best of 48.10 in his semi-final.

6, [2]	Yasmani Copello	TUR	48.96
7, [3]	Patryk Dobek	POL	49.14
8, [5]	Michael Tinsley	USA	50.02

At the Kenyan World Championship trial, Bett brought his best down from 49.03 to 48.29, threatening the long-standing Kenyan record of 48.24 set by Erik Keter in 1993. Any doubts about the legitimacy of that performance were swept away when Bett clocked 48.37 in the first round in Beijing from lane 9, despite a stutter at hurdle nine. The semi-finals saw another Kenyan Tumuti (aka Mucheru) also clock 48.29, though the fastest qualifier was Kudryavtsev (48.23).

It was the Russian who led the way as the final climaxed. He led at the ninth with Gibson, Clement and Bett close behind. It was Bett, from lane 9 again, who swept through for victory, shattering 48 seconds in the process. Tumuti was fourth and the third Kenyan Koech (Bett's twin) also performed with distinction to reach the semi-finals. Two previous champions (Jackson and Gordon) went out in the heats.

Final (Aug 9)

1, [5]	Karsten Warholm	NOR	48.35
2, [8]	Yasmani Copello	TUR	48.49
3, [4]	Kerron Clement	USA	48.52
4, [3]	Kemar Mowatt	JAM	48.99

6, [2]	Juander Santos	DOM	49.04
7, [6]	Abderrahman Samba	QAT	49.74
8, [9]	Kariem Hussein	SUI	50.07

The rain was not quite as heavy as in Helsinki 2005, but conditions weren't ideal for the final where Warholm took an immediate lead. Samba, Copello and Clement stayed in range as the Norwegian continued to lead. Clement moved into second as they reached the eighth barrier, with Samba ahead of Copello who was 4m behind Warholm. The positions changed rapidly after the last hurdle, with Copello scything through into second place. Samba had been poised for a medal, but stumbled and jogged to the finish, leaving Clement in third, 4m ahead of Mowatt.

Warholm became Norway's first track World Champion since 10,000m runner Ingrid Kristiansen in 1987. He immediately endeared himself to fans and photographers with a prolonged look of disbelief after the crossing the finish line, followed by a lap on honour wearing a Viking helmet with horns. "For me, this is just a good Norwegian summer, actually, so there was no worries," he said in reference to the conditions. Two big contenders, McMaster and Stigler, were disqualified for running out of their lane in the first round.

Of the six men still in at 2.29, world record holder Zhu had the best record, with no failures from five jumps. The Chinese went on to fail three times at 2.32 and was forced to settle for the bronze – the first medal won at this level by an athlete from mainland China. Meanwhile, a first-time clearance at 2.32 proved to be the winning leap for the little-known Avdyeyenko, a 19 year-old soldier. Formerly a triple jumper, the Ukrainian had been a controversial selection for the Soviet team after placing only sixth in the 1983 Spartakiad.

The silver went to the popular American, Peacock, who was the only other jumper successful at 2.32.

All of top-8 passed 2.10

In the best mass-quality high jump in history, a jump of 2.32 – the winning height in 1983 – was good enough only for seventh place. At 2.35, four of the seven men were successful, with Olympic gold and silver medalists, Mögenburg and Sjöberg having no failures. Paklin failed with his first attempt at 2.38, before world record holder Sjöberg maintained his perfect record to take the lead. Avdyeyenko also failed, as did Mögenburg. The two Soviets managed 2.38 on their third trial, while Mögenburg passed his remaining attempts to try unsuccessfully for 2.40. The leading three also failed 2.40, meaning that Sweden took the gold while the two Soviets shared the silver.

Coming as it did on the final day of the World Championships, the contest was frequently interrupted by medal ceremonies, during which the athletes were not permitted to jump.

In 1989, Sotomayor made history by becoming the first man to leap eight feet (2.43). The Cuban looked set for victory when he cleared 2.36 on his first attempt, but an ankle injury meant that he was forced to retire after one failure at 2.40. This meant that the gold medal went to the unheralded American Charles Austin, who had cleared 2.38 on his second attempt. Sotomayor went over to congratulate both Austin and Conway as soon as he realised he could compete no more.

The 24 year-old Texan had earlier taken a big risk by passing at 2.36. He ended the contest by failing three times at 2.45. The bronze medal also went to the USA, while in fourth place was Grant, who had courageously started the contest at 2.31.

On his third appearance in a World Championship final, Sotomayor finally won the title. He needed just five jumps, but was pushed by Partyka and Smith. A record total of seven men had attempted 2.37, two of whom (Sonn and Conway) passed after failing once, before going in vain up to 2.40.

The Cuban, Polish and British jumpers all cleared 2.37 on their first attempts. This matched the national records of Partyka and Smith, before both went out at 2.40. Sotomayor made this height on his second attempt, then had two tries at 2.46. The second of these was quite reasonable. He passed his final chance, admitting he had been distracted by the runners in the 10,000m final.

"It was not to be today," said the world record holder. "I'm content with the result. The crowd were very good."

The crowd were particularly thrilled by the performance of Sonn, who led briefly after becoming the first man clear at 2.34. This was an outdoor personal best for the German.

Hampered by a foot injury, Sotomayor lost for the first time at a major championship since Tokyo in 1991. The Cuban needed three tries at 2.25 but then shortened his run-up and went over 2.32 and 2.35 with no problems. After this height, five men were still in and the leader was Partyka.

The Pole was to end up with a bronze medal, for only Sotomayor and Kemp made it over 2.37. The Bahamian needed two tries to Soto's three. At 2.39, Sotomayor put on a pair of sunglasses as the sun was shining into the faces of the jumpers. He was very close but knocked down the bar on all three tries. Kemp's attempts were not as near, but he took the gold on countback.

Final (Aug 6)

1,	Javier Sotomayor	CUB	2.37
2,	Artur Partyka	POL	2.35
3,	Tim Forsyth	AUS	2.35

Happily recovered from the injuries which had led to the loss of his Olympic crown the previous year, Sotomayor further enhanced his claims to being considered the greatest of all high jumpers by regaining this title. Five men were still left in as the bar was raised to 2.37 but the Cuban was the only one successful. Another remarkable big time competitor, Partyka, medalled for the third consecutive time, taking silver on countback against Forsyth.

Grant, ever the showman, came in at the greatest starting height ever attempted (2.32), daring indeed for a man who hadn't gone higher than 2.28 all season. His gamble appeared to be paying off when his first time clearance took him into the lead, but the next height of 2.35 eluded him and he had to settle for equal fourth place with European champion Hoen.

With Javier Sotomayor serving a suspension and Smith making it to the final but cruelly handicapped by an Achilles tendon injury, there was no obvious favourite but when the serious jumping started it became clear that the man in form was Voronin, the world indoor silver medalist. He kept a faultless card up to and including a personal best and 1999 world leading 2.37, failing only at 2.40. "I was so excited that my technique deserted me," said the Russian.

Also inspired to new heights – in his case a Canadian record of 2.35 – was Jamaican-born Boswell, the 1996 world junior champion. Aware that his injury might stand up only to two or three jumps, Smith entered at an unprecedented 2.35 but failed once at that and 2.37 before aborting his final attempt in pain. Klyugin, who would be crowned Olympic Champion the following year, could manage only 2.20 in the qualifying contest and failed to advance.

The qualifying standard was the highest ever with some leaps of 2.27 insufficient for advancement. In the final, eight men were in to try 2.32, but only three afterwards. An order was established among those three because Freitag made 2.32 as his first try, Holm on his second and Boswell on his third. At 2.35 all three failed the first time, then in the second round Freitag went clear to consolidate his lead from the Swede. The 2.07 tall South African knelt down to kiss the point at which he took off. After ankle reconstruction one year earlier, Freitag had been told by doctors that there was only a 50% chance he would be able to jump again.

One of the biggest shocks in Edmonton was provided by Germany's Buss. The 1999 bronze medallist had not bettered 2.30 outdoors since Seville, but in Edmonton he chose the perfect time to set a personal best of 2.36. He had failed once at 2.33 whereas Rybakov, Voronin and former champion Sotomayor went over the first time. Those three plus Buss and Holm all failed 2.36 on their first try, then the German surprised everyone by succeeding on the second (and his final) round.

Sotomayor's fourth place marked the end of a long career, but after the championships it was revealed that he had failed a doping control test in July 2001. He later admitted to the offence, which resulted in a life ban as he had already served another suspension in 1999/2000. Consequently, his Edmonton performances were annulled.

The qualifying height for the final was 2.29, but when the two simultaneous pools saw just 10 clear 2.27, the two jumpers with a clean slate at 2.24 (Rybakov and Frösén) were added to the final. The most highly-regarded athlete who failed to make the final was defending champion Freitag. Holm, the Olympic Champion, was favoured to win, but one failure at 2.25 and two at 2.29 meant that he was down in seventh place. Leading were Rybakov and relative newcomer Moya, who had not suffered a single failure. The least-known of the eight men over 2.29 was Krymareenko, and, as the last man jumping, came up for his third attempt at 2.32 with little expectation of success from the crowd. Krymareenko hit the bar, but it stayed on, and the Ukrainian second string jumper became the most unexpected global winner since Robert Shavlakadze's Olympic win of 1960.

The modest heights in the final were perhaps due to the bright sun shining into the faces of the jumpers over the crossbar. Even so Krymareenko's high point on his best effort was measured at 2.40 compared with 2.38 by Moya.

The pre-championship world list was headed by Thomas and Holm with 2.35, but the Swedish Olympic Champion was favourite to win over the inexperienced Bahamian who had only converted from basketball nineteen months earlier. The qualifying saw a record 15 men clear 2.29.

Six men got over 2.30 in the final, with Holm, Rybakov, Moya and Janku all without any losses. Holm and Rybakov cleared 2.33 first time, while Ioannou made 2.33 on his second attempt and Thomas got over on his final try. So it looked as though gold would be contested between the tall (1.98) Russian and the relatively short (1.81) Swede. The form book was then turned on its head, as Thomas cleared first time at 2.35 with his unique variation of the Fosbury Flop which was described as a "reverse wiggle." Rybakov and Ioannou got over third time, and Holm was left out of the medals.

1, Yaroslav Rybakov	RUS	2.32
2, Kyriakos Ioannou	CYP	2.32
=3, Raul Spank	GER	2.32
Sylwester Bednarek	POL	2.32

The wet conditions severely affected the run-up and neither Manson nor Ukhov, two of the three men who had cleared 2.35 earlier in the season, could go higher than 2.23. Such were the conditions that only four men managed to do so. No-one made 2.28 the first time, Bednarek and Rybakov were able to clear on their second jumps. Ioannou and Spank made it on their third.

Rybakov and Ioannou then cleared 2.32 first attempt, and the other two made the height with their second jumps. Spank equalled his best but the ecstatic Bednarek had improved by 4cm. When no-one cleared 2.35, the failures at earlier heights determined the finishing order. For Rybakov, who had won three silver medals previously, this was a sweet moment, though he played down his feelings – "I am not an emotional person ... perhaps when I hear the Russian national anthem I [will] perhaps start to feel something."

Neither of the two previous World Champions (Krymareenko and Thomas) made the final.

The only athletes to have jumped higher than 2.35 in 2011 before Daegu were the three Russians, all of whom had cleared 2.36, and Williams, who cleared 2.37 to win the US title. In two previous attempts Williams had failed to make the final, but this time he was faultless at five heights up to and including 2.35. A group of six men followed Williams clear at 2.32, headed by Barry, who set a personal best in so doing. Dmitrik was the only one of that half dozen to clear 2.35, but did so on his second attempt. He needed 2.37 to win, and with both men failing, Williams was the winner.

It was noted that Williams spent much of the competition sat with his back to the high jump bed. Why? "There were a lot of good guys out there," he explained. "I wanted to be sure I wasn't influenced by what they were doing and focus on myself."

This event had suddenly proved to be one of the strongest in athletics in 2013 with two men (Bondarenko and Barshim) over 2.40. A further indication of standards came when Grabarz cleared 2.29 – as he had done in London 2012 for the bronze – only to finish eighth in Moscow. Seven men cleared 2.32, of which four made 2.35 the first time. The best of those clearances was by the Ukrainian, whose 2.35 looked good enough to make 2.45. He passed at 2.38, which Barshim then Drouin made to temporarily place 1-2. Olympic Champion Ukhov, returning from injury, was eliminated at this point. Watched by his father and coach, Bondarenko went over 2.41 with his second try. With no failures by the Ukrainian at earlier heights, Barshim and Drouin were forced to try 2.44 with their remaining two attempts. Both failed, leaving the victor to try a world record of 2.46. Two of his three attempts were respectable.

As at July 31, 2019, Ukhov's fourth place hangs in the balance, as does his 2012 Olympic title. In February 2019, he was one of 12 Russians sanctioned by the Court of Arbitration of Sport for doping offences related to an investigation conducted by Professor Richard McLaren into allegations of systemic doping practices in Russian sport. They ruled that he should be suspended for four years, starting from the date the ban was announced (February 1), with his results achieved from July 16, 2012, to December 31, 2015, to be disqualified. Ukhov's appeal against the judgement was active at the time this book was finalised, so his results and not been amended here.

Of the big four favourites, only Barshim had any failures before 2.33, but this failure (at 2.29) proved decisive when he and four others all failed three times at 2.36. Of those five, three men had no earlier misses. So Drouin, Bondarenko and Zhang commenced three-way jump-off, the first time this had happened at a World Championship.

All three failed on a fourth attempt at 2.36, but then Drouin cleared 2.34, leaving Bondarenko and Zhang in a tie for second when they missed at that height. "I hoped to make a medal," said the Canadian, "but hoping for and making it actually happen are two different things. I was first on the line-up [to jump], that was good to keep the pressure on the field." For the first time a jump of 2.29 did not guarantee a place in the final.

Barshim was again favourite, but this time lived up to expectations. The Qatari jumper led the qualifiers at 2.31 with a clean slate, and did the same in the final up to and including his winning leap of 2.35. Behind him, the youngest finalist, 20 year-old Lysenko, was the only other man to clear 2.32, while the battle for bronze was won by Ghazal, who earned Syria's first ever medal by a male athlete, edging Rivera and Przybylko. Of those three, it was Rivera who was closest to making 2.32.

The official biomechanical report noted that Barshim was the only man to match the highest point of his best jump with the plane of the crossbar, describing his technique as "requiring extreme levels of elasticity".

All of top-8 passed 5.10

Like the Helsinki high jump, victory went to a little-known Ukrainian. The contest lasted almost seven hours after the qualifying round was abandoned due to heavy rain and strong winds. All 27 men appeared again in the final, where it took five and a half hours for the bar to be raised to 5.60. By then, eight men were in contention. Volkov and Tarev made it on their first attempt while Bubka, the third string Soviet, went over on his third. At 5.65, the two Soviets passed. Tarev failed, but won the bronze because three others who passed at 5.60 also went out.

Vaulting first in distinctive striped socks, Bubka had an easy first-time success at 5.70. The more experienced Volkov failed once at 5.70 and twice at 5.75. The winner, not 20 until December, took three attempts at a world record of 5.82.

Bubka, now firmly established as one of the world's greatest athletes, took just two jumps to retain his title. He came in at 5.70 (same as his 1983 winning height) and returned at 5.85, at which point all but three of the finalists had been eliminated. These three (Gataullin, Vigneron and Kolasa) all went out at 5.85 whereas Bubka cleared easily. The Soviet vaulter then had the bar raised to 6.05.

Just as he was preparing for his first attempt, a fanfare began for the women's shot put medal ceremony, causing an angry Bubka to abort his effort. He returned with two poor tries before retiring.

90 minutes before the final, and these began to wear off after he entered successfully at 5.70. While Bubka received another injection, three men equalled his championship record of 5.85 – Gataullin, Tarasov and Bagyula.

The world record holder returned, limping, to try for 5.90. Gataullin was first to try and failed narrowly. Tarasov went under the bar while the ailing Bubka hit the bar on the way up. Bagyula went clear to overtake the Soviet trio. Tarasov failed twice more at 5.90, while Gataullin had one more attempt before saving his last try for 5.95. He failed, so finished fourth. Bubka decided to take both his remaining tries at 5.95. He missed the first of these. Bagyula, with three tries, also failed first time. Had Bubka failed his second and last try, he would have placed seventh. After waiting for the end of the women's 400m hurdles medal ceremony, he went over 5.95 to win. Bagyula could not respond, and concluded "It's not possible to beat Sergey at the moment."

The soaring standard of world pole vaulting was evident when the qualifying standard was set at 5.75. Four men found vaults of 5.65 insufficient to progress to the final.

Bubka entered at his usual opening height of 5.70. He passed the next three heights, then joined three other men – all ex-Soviets – attempting 5.90. He cleared but so did Yegorov, therefore matching his own Asian record. Tarasov and Trandankov went out, trying for the bronze. The bar went up to 6.00 and Bubka brilliantly maintained his perfect record, becoming the first man to vault so high in an outdoor championship. It proved too much for Yegorov, meaning that Bubka had uniquely won a fourth world title.

The winner then went for a world record of 6.14, but was wrongly timed out after just two minutes on his first attempt. Ten minutes of deliberations between Bubka and the judges followed before the Ukrainian was allowed to go again. He failed three times but got near on his third attempt.

A fifth world championships and a fifth world title for Sergey Bubka. This time, he needed only three jumps in the final. The first was a failure at 5.70, after which he adjusted the uprights by about 15cm. He cleared on his second attempt, and re-entered the contest at 5.92, which he made first time with plenty to spare. Three other men also attempted that height; all were unsuccessful though Brits was near. Bubka then went for 6.15 and was close on his third attempt.

"I kept the run-up the same for the first two attempts. That was a stupid mistake," explained Bubka. "I knew I was in really good condition and I expected a world record, but I didn't beat myself inside, so it's my fault."

Without question, Bubka was the brightest star of the 1997 championships. Here was a man who, at 33, and struggling to regain fitness after an Achilles tendon operation in December 1996, could have been excused had he come up short on this occasion. But no, instead he sailed over the greatest height ever cleared in a major international championship to become world champion for the sixth time over a 14-year span, a sequence that will probably never be matched in any event.

The 5.70 he cleared in the qualifying competition was his best for the season, and after making that height at the second try in the final he coolly passed 5.80 and 5.86. With the bar at 5.91 and with Tarasov and Starkey still in contention, Bubka had to clear – or finish an ignominious seventh. At the second attempt he cleared to take the lead, followed by Tarasov (2nd attempt) and Starkey (3rd attempt). Tarasov then cleared 5.96 first time. Starkey had one failure and Bubka passed! The bar went up to 6.01: Starkey and Tarasov failed their first attempts ... Bubka, with a frighteningly intense look in his eyes, determination personified, cleared with plenty to spare. It was all over although Starkey did have one more try at 6.01, and Tarasov reserved his two remaining attempts for 6.06.

It was an astonishing performance under any circumstances, but from a man who because of continuing Achilles tendon problems, had only started jogging in April and had completed only three pole vault training sessions that year, it was practically miraculous. "My participation was a big risk because pain in my Achilles tendon is still with me," said Bubka. "It was not my best title, but it was the most difficult."

For the first time the world pole vault champion would be someone other than Sergey Bubka, out with an Achilles tendon injury. His heir apparent had long been Tarasov, the 1992 Olympic Champion and a medallist behind Bubka at the last four World Championships, and he grasped the opportunity. The Russian cleared 5.70 and 5.90 first time, 5.96 at the third and 6.02 – adding a centimetre to Bubka's championship record – at the first try. He had to wait until Markov, who passed 5.96, used up his trials at 6.02 (one) and 6.07 (two) before victory was confirmed. "I hope that now, when people talk about pole vault, they will not talk only about Bubka, but also a bit about me," he said. As bigger names floundered, Siberian-born Averbukh (an 8084 decathlete in 1997) surprisingly took bronze for Israel's first ever medal as he was the only man to clear 5.80. Thus, the first three places all went to ex-Soviet athletes.

Few would have predicted Gibilisco for victory before Paris, though they might have done so if they had realised that the Italian's coach was Vitaliy Petrov, the Ukrainian who was once coach to Sergey Bubka. It was Petrov who advised Gibilisco to pass in the final after two failures at 5.75. He came back with a new pole to clear 5.80 and was one of five men to then try 5.85.

The Italian was first to go of those five and went into the lead by clearing on his first attempt. Brits made it on his second, Kristiansson and defending champion Markov on their third. Lobinger, who was the leader before 5.85, went out. At 5.90 Gibilisco again succeeded with his first try and added 5cm to his new Italian record. The others were left to try 5.90 and/or 5.95, but all in vain.

A record 10 men cleared 5.75 in the final. At 5.85, four were successful, excluding Seville silver medallist Markov who was nursing a stubbed toe. He saved himself for 5.90, and had he failed the Belarus-born Australian would have finished just 10th. He cleared first time, while Hysong, Stolle and Mesnil were eliminated. Only Averbukh was left to challenge Markov after saving his last two attempts for 5.95. Markov was over the first time while Averbukh went out. Then the 26 year-old produced arguably the finest performance of the Edmonton Championships by going over 6.05 on his second attempt. This was not only a meeting record, but also the highest ever mark at any major championship. After his win, Markov gave three bottles of champagne to the doctors who had treated his injured toe for 13 hours prior to the final.

The qualifying round featured a long delay after Matti Mononen demolished one of the uprights after failing at 5.45. In that time weather conditions grew worse and after an infield debate including athletes, officials and IAAF Council member Sergey Bubka it was agreed to reduce the qualifying height from 5.75 to 5.60. Ultimately, vaults of 5.45 were sufficient for progression.

The weather was 10° colder for the final. The average lifetime best for the finalists was 5.90, but 5.65 proved too difficult for all but four of the jumpers. The height of 5.75 was too much for European indoor champion Pavlov and his team-mate Gerasimov, but US favourite

Walker and rank outsider Blom cleared on their second attempts. Walker failed once at 5.80 and then, when Blom cleared first time, twice more at 5.85. Blom later said "when I woke up this morning and saw what the weather was like I thought I had a good chance of doing well." He became the first Dutchman ever to win a World or Olympic title.

The final started at 5.51, and only one was eliminated as the athletes attempted 5.81. Ecker, Walker, Pavlov and Mesnil all cleared first time, though only the German had a faultless record at that point. The bar was subsequently raised to 5.86 and then 5.91, but only Walker (first time) and Mesnil (second attempt) were able to clear the former height. For the USA, who had provided the first 16 winners of the quadrennial Olympics, this was the first World Championship win in 11 attempts. Lobinger placed eighth with 5.81, better than the winning height in 2005.

In the qualifying round, 10 men cleared 5.70, and two men who made 5.65 first time (da Silva & Averbukh) qualified, while two men who cleared on their second attempt (Liu & Bukhalov) were eliminated, and had to be content with equalling the highest ever non-qualifying mark.

A second Australian (after Markov in 2001) defied a painful injury to become world champion. Reigning champion Walker scratched because of a hip injury, and Olympic Champion Hooker was suffering from injuries to his knee and thigh. A pain-killing injection enabled the Australian to take one jump in the qualifying round, after which he rose slowly from the landing bed clearly in great pain. Eleven athletes including Hooker cleared 5.65, and four first-time clearers at 5.55 also advanced.

Nine men cleared 5.65 in the final. At 5.75 only Mazuryk and Griptic cleared first time. Dossevi got over 5.75 second time, and Lavillenie, who had cleared 6.01 in the European Cup in June, made the height on his third jump.

Mesnil – who passed to 5.80 after a failure at 5.75 – then cleared 5.80 on his first try to move into the lead ahead of Lavillenie, who also cleared first time. The gold and silver seemed set, but Hooker then appeared. After one failure at 5.85, the Aussie moved to 5.90 because Mesnil had cleared 5.85 on his first try. Remarkably Hooker got over 5.90 to win, because both he and the Frenchman failed at 5.95. He had won the world title with just two jumps, whereas his Olympic gold of 2008 had been earned after 10 such efforts in the final.

"Today was the hardest day of my life," concluded Hooker, who admitted it had been a risk to come in at 5.85 but felt grateful for the 56 hours of rest he'd had since the qualifying round.

European Champion Lavillenie was favourite, even before reigning champion Hooker failed to make the final. The Frenchman was faultless until 5.90. At that point his 5.85 first-time clearance gave him the lead over Michalski, Borges and Mohr. Still left in was the new World Military and European under-23 Champion Wojciechowski, who had cleared 5.75 then passed 5.85 after one failure. He was then the first to clear 5.90 with his second jump at that height. As big a surprise as the Pole was Borges, who, at his final attempt at 5.90, soared over the bar. Lavillenie then missed narrowly, therefore winning bronze as he had in Berlin. Neither Wojciechowski nor Borges was able to clear, leaving the Pole as the gold medalist. Five men over 5.85 equalled the previous championship number at that height from 2001.

Lavillenie, the Olympic and European Champion, was clear favourite to win having produced the top six jumps of the season leading into Moscow. An omen came when his younger brother Valentin was the only jumper to fail the opening height in the final. Lavillenie the elder was never able to clear a height himself at the first attempt, and suffered accordingly. At 5.82, Holdzdeppe, with great gymnastic ability and technical excellence, had a first time clearance. He was followed by Walker, who grazed the bar with his stomach, and Otto, looking as good as Holdzdeppe. For Walker it was his best championship effort since winning in Osaka 2007.

Lavillenie then produced the highest jump of the day with his 5.82. Not technically as good as Holdzdeppe, but an outlandish piece of jumping that would have been successful at six metres. Mohr became the third German to clear 5.82 with his final effort. At 5.89, Holdzdeppe continued his clean card with a first-time clearance, and Lavillenie again was untidy and needed three attempts. Neither man could clear 5.96, so the gold went to Germany, not France.

Often the qualifying standard is set too high for 12 athletes to reach, but on this occasion 16 men cleared the 5.70 required to reach the final. Principal among these was Lavillenie, the IAAF athlete of the year in 2014. The Frenchman waited until 5.80 to take his first jump in the final, and cleared with ease, but then failed three times at 5.90. That left him in a tie for third with the Poles Lisek and 2011 winner Wojciechowski. Ahead of them were the gymnastic Holzdeppe – whose title defence was hindered by misses at 5.80 and 5.90 – and Barber. The Canadian jumped at every height, never failing until the bar reached 6.00, and impressing with his tidy clearances. Barber followed in the footsteps of his father George who had competed at the Helsinki World Championships.

Kendricks had been the world's most consistent vaulter of 2017, and the only man to clear six metres outdoors. So it was no surprise that he shared the lead as the bar was moved up to 5.89, but Xue was most certainly an unexpected co-leader to this point. The Chinese made every height up to a national record of 5.82. With Kendricks and Xue over 5.82 first time, Wojciechowski, Lisek and Lavillenie – who had shared the bronze in 2015 – all passed to 5.89 after first-time failures. Lisek, the first to jump, cleared 5.89, and was followed almost inevitably by Kendricks. Lavillenie then cleared at his second attempt, and the three medals were decided. Kendricks made certain of an outright win by being the only man to clear 5.95.

Lewis, winner of the 100m gold, was required to contest two more titles two days later. Minutes after anchoring the United States to victory in their sprint relay heat, he made a delayed start to the long jump final. Hitting the board well he soared out to 8.55, comfortably further than the 8.29 opener of Grimes. Lewis turned to the stand and raised his arms high in salute to the crowd. After missing the second round, Lewis produced 8.42 before passing the rest of his series to concentrate on the relay final where he anchored his team to a new world record time.

Grimes compiled an excellent series despite never threatening Lewis. A close battle for the bronze was won by Conley – fourth in the triple jump – in the fifth round. For the second time in Helsinki, Lewis had led a United States sweep of the medals.

There was premature excitement after Lewis's first jump when one TV commentator saw the bib number of Lewis – 892 – flash onto the screen and announced this as a new world record.

An expectant crowd hoped to see Lewis threaten Bob Beamon's world record of 8.90. The American, weakened by an upset stomach, did not get the record but retained his title with a brilliant series: 8.67, 8.65, 8.67, 8.43, foul, 8.60. The silver went to Emmiyan, who closed on Lewis with 8.53 in the fourth round but had four other fouls.

According to the IAF Scientific Report of the championship, Lewis actually cleared 8.84 on his first jump. This distance includes two centimetres "lost" on the take-off board and another 15 in the sand. His other "effective" distances were 8.68, 8.67, 8.64 and 8.76.

There was a keen battle for the bronze behind Lewis and Emmiyan. Evangelisti, jumping first in each round, moved into third place with 8.19 in round three. Two jumps later, Myricks overtook the Italian with 8.23. He improved to 8.33 in the fifth and looked set for a medal. Evangelisti responded with a good effort on his last try, and the crowd were delighted when 8.38 flashed on the scoreboard. However, those watching the contest closely felt that the Italian had not landed that far into the pit. There were allegations that the officials had produced a false measurement and the Italian Athletics Federation (FIDAL) requested that the three IAAF Technical Delegates to the championships should investigate. They reported to the IAAF Council meeting in December 1987 that "this competition was correctly conducted and the final result was not to be changed."

However, computer analysis – largely performed by the Italian media – appeared to show that Evangelisti's final leap was no better than 8.15. The Italian Olympic Committee investigated the affair and in March 1988 concluded that FIDAL officials had conspired to falsify the measurement of Evangelisti's jump in order to ensure a medal for Italy. It was reported that film taken during the women's shot ceremony appeared to show an official in the background placing a marker in the sand and measuring a distance before the final jump of Evangelisti.

The next IAAF Council Meeting – at London in April 1988 – noted: "It had become clear that serious doubts had arisen concerning the sixth jump of Giovanni Evangelisti (ITA). As a result, and exceptionally, the Council has decided unanimously:— 1) Notwithstanding the present IAAF Rules, to ignore the sixth jump of Evangelisti and to adjust the result accordingly; 2) To examine the IAAF Rules regarding protests." Myricks was duly awarded a bronze medal.

Bob Beamon's world record of 8.90 finally fell – but not to newly-crowned 100m record holder Lewis. Instead, Mike Powell not only set new record figures, but became the first man to beat Lewis since 1981.

The qualifying round indicated that something special might happen in the event when Lewis had a narrow foul of around 8.80. He followed up with 8.56, the best qualifying mark ever.

The three Americans – Lewis, Powell and Myricks – were favoured to take all the medals in the final. Powell was first of these to jump, managing just 7.85. Myricks fouled but Lewis produced a superb championship record of 8.68. Round two: Powell leapt 8.54 yet looked most disappointed. Myricks moved into third place with 8.20 and Lewis fouled. Round three: European Champion Dietmar Haaf's 8.22w put him into the bronze medal position. Powell managed 8.29 then Lewis propelled himself to a magnificent personal best of 8.83w. Round four: Powell leapt about 8.80, only to see the red flag raised. Myricks moved ahead of Haaf. Lewis then improved to a stunning 8.91. The magical figure of 8.90 had been beaten at last, but the following wind was over the limit at 2.9.

An aggressive Powell finally clicked in the fifth round, landing clearly near to nine metres. The white flag was raised, and a legal wind speed (0.3) flashed up onto the scoreboard along with a smiling face denoting a valid jump. After a suspenseful pause there were plenty more smiles when Powell's jump was confirmed at 8.95. All eyes were on Lewis and he responded fantastically – but unsuccessfully – with legal efforts of 8.87 and 8.84.

"This is a a dream come true," said Powell. "Honestly, I thought Carl would beat me in the last jump. I have conditioned myself for so long to see him come from behind and beat me. I thought he would jump nine metres."

Lewis said: "It was a great competition for me, and even greater for Mike. He had just one great jump, the best jump of his life, but that's all it takes in the long jump."

The winner actually leapt as far as 8.98, including a toe-to-plasticine distance measured at 3cm.

Powell retained his title in commanding fashion, but the contest was a far cry from the excitement of Tokyo, or even Rome. The 30 year-old found 8.16 sufficient to take the lead in the second round. No other jumper could exceed that distance. However, Powell improved to 8.59 in the final round. The minor medals went, unexpectedly, to two former Soviet jumpers. They were helped by an injury to Cuba's Iván Pedroso, who had leapt 8.23 in qualifying.

Carl Lewis was in Stuttgart but had already decided only to contest the sprints in 1993.

Lewis and Powell would have needed to have been at their best to defeat Pedroso, who was unbeaten so far in the championship and had jumped a windy 8.96 in Sestriere the week before the championships.

Lewis arrived in Gothenburg but did not compete because of a hamstring strain. Powell was hampered by a sore back and a broken toe. The Cuban was left to score a convincing win with 8.70 in round 2. Prior to the final jump of the contest, Powell held second place from Ackermann. The last man, Beckford, found the perfect time to produce a Jamaican record of 8.30 and take the silver medal.

Pedroso's strategy was simple: wrap up the gold medal with his first jump and then, in a relaxed mood, go for a barrier-breaking nine metre leap. He succeeded in his first aim, his 8.42 opener sufficing, but he messed up his remaining five attempts (two of his fouls exceeding 8.70).

In the end his winning margin over Walder was a too close for comfort 4cm. The American had by far the better series, averaging almost 8.30 for the six jumps and finishing with 8.38. The Gothenburg silver medalist Beckford was a late addition to the field after the IAAF changed a three-month doping penalty to a public warning. The Jamaican was in bronze medal position with 8.14 until overtaken by Sosunov's 8.18 in the final round.

After a moderate season and an unconvincing qualifying round, Pedroso notched up a ninth successive world title indoors or out with leaps of 8.35 and 8.40. The Cuban produced the first good jump in the final with 8.23 in round two. The top US challenger, Stringfellow, fouled on his first two jumps and did well to move into the silver medal position with 8.22 in the third. He improved to 8.24, and then with his final effort landed a foul in the region of 8.80.

The bronze medal was determined by the second best jumps of Calado and Pate, who had each cleared 8.21. Calado edged the American, 8.18 to 8.09.

Pedroso won his third world outdoor title, but only after Spanish fans inside the packed stadium had been thrilled by Lamela, the man who gave Pedroso such a scare in the World Indoor Championships earlier in the year. He it was who led after the first round with 8.34 in reply to Pedroso's 8.19 and Cankar's 8.20. By the end of round 2 it could hardly have been much closer as Pedroso jumped 8.33 and Cankar 8.32 while Lamela fouled. But Pedroso is nothing if not a great competitor and in round 3 he went out to 8.56. Lamela fouled again but after losing second place to Cankar (8.36) in the fourth round he immediately responded with 8.40.

For the first time in a global championship, four men went over 8.30 as Taurima – revealing some of the flair that would become more evident in Sydney 2000 – leapt an Australian record of 8.35 in the final round, 1cm behind Cankar. The highest-placed jumper from the USA, which had never previously been out of the medals in this event, was seventh. That was Texan Dilworth, who repeated his placing from Athens 1997.

We knew there would be a new champion as Iván Pedrosa pulled out that injured after one no-jump in qualifying. There was another upset at that stage when the 2002 world number one Stringfellow managed only 7.83 and was eliminated.

In the final, the cool weather kept down distances and Phillips, who had pulled his hamstring in Edmonton, led at halfway in 8.22. In the fifth round, Phillips was relegated to third, first by Lamela (8.22 but with a better second leap than the American), then Beckford 8.28. Ending the round, Phillips – wearing a one-piece body suit – responded magnificently with a great jump which was followed up with a little dance as the American left the pit. His distance: 8.32 (actually 8.406 from take-off). The final round changed nothing; Lamela and Phillips fouled, while Beckford cleared 8.14.

Olympic and World Champion Phillips made his intentions crystal clear in the qualifying round with a monster jump (8.59w/3.3), which measured 8.69 from take-off to landing. The next best qualifier was South Africa's rangy (190/73) Mokoena who reached 8.22. Phillips settled matters early on in the final, with the fourth jump of the competition, a superb effort of 8.60, equalling his lifetime best. Sdiri responded with 8.20. The competition was quiet until the third round, when Evilä roused the crowd with 8.16 to move into third place. On the next jump, the slender Gaisah jumped 8.34, which would prove good enough for the silver medal. In the next round Martínez moved into third with 8.24w, but was supplanted to the delight of the home crowd, by Evilä in round six, who leapt 8.25w to take the bronze, Finland's only medal of the week. With Panama's Saladino jumping 8.20w, only five centimetres separated third from sixth. With the pressure off, Phillips followed his opening jump with five fouls.

Reigning champion Phillips and Saladino – the only man over 8.50 in 2007 – were deemed the favourites. Phillips opened his defence with 8.30, to lead from Beckford (8.09) at the end of round one. Saladino, looking as though he was just making a safe jump, then matched the American with 8.30, and in the next round soared to 8.46. The only change prior to round six occurred with Howe's 8.20 in round five to move into third. Round six saw Lukashevich reach 8.25 and dislodge Howe from bronze medal position. Three jumps later Howe used all of the board, and landed at 8.47 to take the lead amid hysterical celebrations including the ripping of his bib number. Phillips then also jumped 8.47 from take-off, but took off 25.2cm behind the plasticine, so was credited with only 8.22. Finally it was Saladino's turn. Looking quicker than usual the Panamanian flew off the board and landed beyond 8.50 for a stirring victory, setting a South American record of 8.57 in the process. While four men had jumped further in World Championship history, none had produced a round six jump that length to ensure victory.

Qualifying was led by Phillips who bounded out to 8.44 (measured from take-off at 8.57), while Rutherford set a UK record with 8.30 (8.42 from toe to heel).

Lapierre produced the first good jump of the final – 8.21, but was quickly superseded by Phillips who reached 8.40 from a take-off point 25cm before the board. Watt, the 21 year-old Australian who had leapt 8.43 earlier in the season spanned 8.28, also in the first round. Phillips then improved to 8.54 (measured from take-off at 8.58). Two jumps later, Mokoena, the World Indoor Champion, reached 8.47 with a jump which featured more vertical lift – but less speed – than Phillips. Saladino produced the shock of the final by fouling out. The best efforts remained unchanged until the fifth round when Watt reached 8.37 with 7cm to spare on the board. So Phillips made it three golds from five World Championship finals.

A thoughtful touch by the organisers was that the medals were presented by Marlene Dortch – grand-daughter of Berlin 1936 Olympic Champion Jesse Owens – and Kai Long, the son of 1936 silver medalist Luz Long.

An Achilles tendon injury which prevented Phillips from training throughout June meant that the great American jumper was not even considered as a contender. Yet he led the qualifying round with a season's best of 8.32, while the highly regarded Saladino, Mokoena, Rutherford and US Champion Goodwin were all eliminated.

Phillips opened the final with 8.31, and then jumped 8.45 with one centimetre to spare on the board. That held up for the gold. Watt got his best jump of the competition – 8.33 – in that second round, overtaking Makusha who had leapt 8.29 (8.43 from toe to heel) in round one. None of the remaining efforts of Phillips were valid but he was assured of victory after his final no-jump. At that point he removed his bib number and held it up to the crowd. It was 1111, symbolising the four world golds he had won to match the feat of Iván Pedroso.

Menkov dominated the proceedings, producing the three longest jumps of the day with consecutive leaps of 8.52, 8.43 and finally 8.56. A simple hang technique with virtually no extraneous movement in the air was enough for Menkov to give the impression of being able to reach 8.75+ in the future. Reif led in the first round with 8.18, but was passed initially by Cáceres with 8.25 using a wild-looking hitchkick. Gaisah – Ghana's silver medalist from 2005, who had since transferred to Holland in 2013 – reached a Dutch record of 8.29. That was enough to keep Rivera, Cáceres, and da Silva at bay for the silver medal. Taking toe-to-heel measurements the best jumps for the top athletes were by Menkov – 8.57 (on his 8.56 jump), Reif 8.39 (8.22), Rivera 8.34 (8.27), Cáceres 8.32 (8.25) and Gaisah 8.31 (8.29).

Wang (18) led the competition after the first round with 8.14, which he improved to 8.18 in the second stanza. Rutherford quickly settled matters with a jump of 8.29, followed two rounds later with an 8.41 featuring a plasticine gap of only 1.5cm. The major change in the last two rounds came with Lapierre's medal-winning efforts of 8.20 and then 8.24. Henderson – who qualified with 8.36 – had a miserable day, managing one valid jump of 7.95. His compatriots fared much worse. Hartfield fouled out in the final while Dendy went out in qualifying. For Rutherford it gave him a full house of championships – World, Olympic, Commonwealth and European – the fifth to complete such a collection only available to Britons and Cypriots.

Lawson led with his opening 8.37, then Samaai (8.25) and Menkov (8.27) also produced good jumps in round 1. Former champion Menkov, the only jumper using a "sail" technique then had five fouls. World leader Manyonga then lived up to his billing with a second-round jump of 8.48 to take the lead for good. Lawson fought back with leaps of 8.40, 8.31 and a final round 8.44. Samaai gave South Africa a second medal with his last-round 8.32.

Both the gold and silver medalists took off 6cm before the board on their best attempts, which meant the "effective distances" of their best marks were 8.54 and 8.50 respectively.

Apart from the Finns, the red-vested Americans were the most popular athletes in Helsinki, and none pleased the crowd more than Willie Banks. The backstraight spectators were delighted when Banks asked them to clap rhythmically when he took to the runway. He rewarded them with the best jump of the first round – 17.08 – before returning to listen to music from “Dreamgirls” on his personal stereo. Under current rules, it would be illegal for him to take such devices infield.

The crowd were also getting behind the other jumpers, who responded by producing a spate of 17m efforts. In round three Conley went ahead at 17.13, only to be overtaken immediately by Banks's 17.18. In round four, neither of the Americans improved, but Hoffmann, jumping last, matched Banks's leading distance and moved into second place on countback. At this point, the first eight comprised four pairs of jumpers each with identical distances.

Banks was unable to improve, but Hoffmann continued his progress in the fifth: 17.35 into a headwind. Banks responded with his longest leap, around 17.50, but it was a borderline foul. The Pole ended the contest with 17.42. He had improved with each one of his jumps.

Once again the United States were thwarted by Eastern Europe. Surprisingly, world record holder Willie Banks and his compatriot Charlie Simpkins did not make the final. World Indoor Champion Conley did, and drew the favourable final spot in the jumping order. But before Conley could take his first jump, European Champion Markov went out to 17.70w. In round two, the Bulgarian improved to 17.73. Kovalenko was a distant second at 17.38, with Conley one centimetre behind. In the fifth round, the mop-haired Markov powered down the runway and hit the board 4cm from the plasticine before leaping out to a legal 17.92, the second longest jump ever. Conley and Sakirkin both overtook Kovalenko for the other medals. The three components of the winning jump were measured at 6.50, 5.30 and 6.12.

Harrison went one better than Willie Banks in 1983 by winning over the crowd and taking the gold medal. The enthusiastic crowd needed little encouragement and clapped every move of the jumpers. Harrison, drawn seventh in the final, managed to attract a little extra support and opened his account in the final with a foul close to 18 metres. In the second round, he got it right with 17.78 into a headwind. Harrison further delighted the crowd by performing a back-flip when the distance was announced.

This proved to be good enough for victory, although Voloshin got close with 17.75 at the start of the third round. The Soviet jumper was lucky; not only did he enjoy a following wind of 1.0, he also came perilously close to marking the plasticine. The bronze medal went to Conley, drawn to jump last as in Rome.

Having filled positions 4-2-3 at the first three World Championships, Conley – now the Olympic Champion – finally became a World Champion. He did so not with his traditional last-round surge, his 17.70 in the third would have been good enough to win. A couple of close to 18m by Voloshin spurred the American to 17.86 in the fifth.

“The crowd helped a lot, I felt like I was at home,” said Conley. “Now all I have to do is pick out the colour of the car,” he added, referring to the Mercedes he was about to collect.

Four times in 1995, Edwards had exceeded 18m but on each occasion the wind was over the allowable limit for record purposes. He did manage to improve the world record to 17.98 at Salamanca on July 18. There was great anticipation to see if he could finally beat the 18m barrier, legally, in Gothenburg.

Normally one has to wait for confirmation from the scoreboard to see if a world record has been set in a field event. This was not the case after the first jump in the final by the 29 year-old Briton. His hop, skip and jump took him to a place in the sand further than the end of the yellow marker board, which itself was longer than 18m. The wind was legal and the distance 18.16, a world record by a handsome margin. There was room for improvement; Edwards had a few centimetres to spare on take-off and lost a few more in the sand. His second attempt was better, and clearly even further. It was 18.29 or a quarter of an inch further than 60 feet. No-one else had ever set consecutive world triple jump records in the same series; Edwards was the first man to set three world records in one season.

The contest for the silver and bronze was between Wellman, Romain and Quesada. The Dominican held second place with 17.59w until the cut, then was displaced by the Bermudan and his 17.62w in round 4. Quesada was possibly further in the fifth but fouled. The Cuban finished with 17.59w, but lost the bronze to Romain on their next best jumps, 17.36 to 17.19. Edwards's only other effort was 17.49 in the fifth.

“If I never come within half a metre again, I’ll have no complaints,” said Edwards. Biomechanical analysis of his record jumps showed that the 18.16 comprised thirds of 6.12, 5.19 and 6.85. The 18.29 was made up of a 6.05 hop, 5.22 step and 7.02 jump. The analysis showed that the Briton was significantly faster than other finalists in his last strides, achieved a near-ideal angle of take-off, and maintained superior velocity throughout the three phases of the triple jump.

It should be noted that those phase measurements have since been questioned by other studies which estimate that the total of Edwards's first two sections in his record jumps were not 11.31 and 11.27, but 11.54 and 11.60. Toe-to-board gap for the two records were estimated to be 13cm, meaning the gross distances would have been 18.29 and 18.42.

Seventh in 1991, twelfth in 1993 and fourth in 1995 (with the same distance as the third placed athlete), Quesada finally not only made it to the medal podium but scored a momentous victory over Edwards. The Cuban set the standard with a 17.60 opener and in the second round he delivered a national record of 17.85 which was to prove the longest jump in the world that year. Considering he was competing for the first time since bruising a heel several weeks earlier, Edwards' performance was commendable (overtaking world indoor record holder Urrutia to place second with 17.69), but he was unhappy. "That's the first time I've gone to a major championships and not felt I've done myself justice. Silver's better than nothing but not much." However, he fared much better than his Olympic conqueror of the previous year, Harrison, who failed to make the cut in ninth place.

Most athletes would be happy to come away from the World Championships with any medal but for Edwards his bronze was "a complete disaster." As he remarked, "I couldn't envisage not winning."

After he had led the qualifiers with 17.30, taking off from behind the entire board, it was no surprise when Dimitrov opened with a personal best of 17.49 in the final. Edwards fell just a centimetre short of that in round 2 but both were overtaken in the fourth round when Friedek followed a 17.19 opener, and two big but invalid efforts, with a personal best equalling 17.59. It was the German's third big triumph within a year, having won at the World Cup and World Indoors.

World record holder Edwards flirted with disaster in the qualifying round, needing three attempts to produce a decent jump. He clicked in the final to regain his world title after six years. In round 2, the Briton leapt around 17.90, but his jump was a foul by a margin of 60mm. By the end of that round, Edwards was fourth at 16.84 behind Olsson (17.47), García (17.40), and Davis (17.20).

With his third try, Edwards went even further than his foul and this time he had 7.8cm to spare on the board. His jump of 17.92 (17.99 from take-off) was the world's furthest since 1998 and comprised elements of 5.97, 5.43 and 6.52. In the fifth round, Spasovkhodskiy (17.44) overtook García for the bronze.

Since Edmonton, Olsson had supplanted Edwards as the world's best. After qualifying with 16.94, the defending champion announced that the final would be his last ever competition.

Edwards opened with just 14.06, having aborted his third phase. Two jumpers later, Olsson soared out to a Swedish outdoor record of 17.72 (components of 6.08, 5.28 and 6.36). Betanzos started with 17.28. These two efforts would secure gold and silver. Olsson's next four tries (17.52, 17.50, 17.52 & 17.34) were all better than anyone else. Meanwhile, Sands moved into third place and just managed to stay ahead of junior star Girat, who could not reproduce his qualifying leap of 17.31. Edwards (16.31 in round 2) passed his final try and so ended his career in 12th place.

With reigning champion Olsson out for the season, Oprea and Gregório were tipped as possible winners. Betanzos led the qualifiers at 17.40w, with Britain's Nathan Douglas (17.64 a month earlier) the most notable non-qualifier. Oprea led the final early on with 17.15, with Davis (17.22w) eclipsing him by the end of round one. The lead was taken in consecutive jumps in the next round by the surprising Taillepierre (17.27) and then Sands (17.39w). Oprea moved ahead of Davis in the next round with 17.22, but the American, who had been behind the board on his 17.22w, then responded with 17.57. Betanzos moved past Sands with 17.42, a jump he repeated in the final round, to hold off Oprea's final effort of 17.40 for the silver medal. Davis's 17.57 (6.25 hop, 5.30 step and 6.02 jump) was the shortest winning effort since the first World Championships, and marked the second global win in the Helsinki stadium by a Walter Davis, the other being the 1952 Olympic Champion at high jump.

Évora made a clear statement of intent in the opening round, reaching out to 17.41, and only reigning champion Davis could get close with 17.33. His countryman Wilson reached 17.21 in an otherwise quiet second round. Tosca opened round three with 17.32, to be followed immediately by Évora's national record of 17.74 comprising an exceptional 6.37 hop followed by a 5.36 step and 6.01 jump. That put a damper on the competition until Gregório moved up from sixth place with his excellent 17.59 in the penultimate round.

Wilson and Évora were the only jumpers to get past 17.30 in the final round. Évora became the first Portuguese male athlete to win an outdoor World Championship gold.

Reigning champion Évora opened with a fine 17.54, then Idowu responded with 17.51 from way (29.8cm) behind the board. The Briton then took the lead with 17.73, an outdoor lifetime best and with "just" 20cm to spare. Behind the top two, Sands had equalled his seasonal best of 17.20 set in the qualifying, but was headed by Girat's 17.26. In the fourth round, Li jumped 17.23 to move into fourth, and Copello had a foul of around 17.70. Sands improved to third in round five with 17.32, but was ultimately overtaken by Copello's 17.36. Évora finished respectably with his best jump of the day, 17.55, so Idowu did not need to take his final effort though was officially shown as having no-jumped due to the lateness of that decision.

Unfortunately, phase measurements were not taken for the triple jump at these championships.

Teddy Tamgho had produced three efforts beyond 17.90 in 2011, but missed Daegu after hurting his ankle at the European under-23 Championships. The event looked like being a battle between reigning champion Idowu and Taylor who beat the Briton in London early in August.

Idowu opened solidly with 17.56 (17.75 from take-off) to lead from Évora and Olsson after the first round. In the third, Claye reached a personal best 17.50, and was immediately followed by Idowu, who reached 17.70 (with 14cm to spare on the board). Taylor moved into third with 17.40, then produced a monster effort of 17.96 in round four. Idowu responded immediately with an off-balance 17.77 (17.94 toe to heel). Copello got close to Claye with a fifth-round 17.47, but there were no medal position changes in the last two rounds. Taylor's magnificent jump overshadowed Idowu's series, which averaged 17.56, easily the best six jump series ever seen in a major championship.

Tamgho led at the end of the first round in the final with 17.65, after Pichardo reached 17.38 with the second jump of the competition. The 20 year-old Cuban then took the lead with 17.68, taking off 2cm from the front of the board. Tamgho and Taylor responded with fouls of round 18m metres.

World Indoor Champion Claye moved into third place with his second jump of 17.33, and cemented his position with 17.52 in round three. Tamgho produced another long foul in the third, and took a countback lead in round four with 17.68. Yet another Tamgho 18m foul followed in the penultimate round, after Claye had reached 17.46 with his final jump (measured at 17.69 from toe to heel).

On his last attempt, the confirmed champion Tamgho managed to hit the board accurately (with 6mm to spare) and produced a jump of 18.04. With phases of 6.16, 5.30 and 6.58, he became only the third man in history to span 18m legally after Jonathan Edwards and Kenny Harrison. Afterwards he paid tribute to his coach, the former long jump World Champion Iván Pedroso. "He taught me to be patient. It was hard to stay calm and he gave me a lot of experience."

Taylor and Pichardo had both been beyond 18m twice during 2015, and Taylor was a slight favourite, having defeated the Cuban 2-1 in their meetings. Pichardo led the qualifying round with 17.43 to Taylor's 17.28, and took early control in the final with his opening 17.52. Round three saw the Cuban improve to 17.60, with Taylor matching that distance. The American took the lead in round four with 17.68 (17.81 from take-off), and then produced a final round reminiscent of Mike Conley to reach 18.21 (18.32 from toe to heel). Pichardo reacted well with 17.73 (17.91), but overall was disappointed. "I cannot be happy for the silver today," he concluded.

Former winner Évora was close to his form of 2007-08 with a final round 17.52 to snatch the bronze medal from Craddock. The winning leap was the second-furthest of all-time and comprised thirds of 5.96, 5.84 & 6.41. The Cuban runner-up had much the longest phase of the meeting with a 6.68 hop on his 17.60.

Taylor, now a double Olympic Champion, retained his title after coming from behind twice to defeat his eternal rival Claye. It was Claye who took the initial lead with his 17.54, backed up by 17.52 in round 2. Taylor, drawn 11th, responded with 17.57. Claye then reached 17.63, only for Taylor to span the winning distance of 17.68 (5.72 hop, 5.56 step, 6.40 jump). All three medal-winning performances were made before the cut, as the 2017 winner Évora had managed 17.19 in round 2. That held up for bronze from three men with bests in the range 17.13-17.16.

Adding in the gap between take-off and the board edge, the longer jumps were Taylor 17.78 and Claye 17.74, though it was estimated that Clay's actual distance in round 3 may have been as far as 17.85 had his bib not made a mark in the sand on landing. A similar fate befell Ivana Španović in the women's long jump the following day. It transpired that the IAAF had already agreed remove the stipulation for horizontal jumpers to wear bibs on their back (from IAAF rule 143.7), though the rule change did not apply until November 2017.

Missing from London was the Moscow and Beijing silver medallist Pedro Pablo Pichardo, who had since defected from Cuba to Portugal.

The biggest upset of the first day of the first World Championships came in the men's shot. Udo Beyer – who raised the world record to 22.22 in June – finished only sixth, and the other big favourite, Laut, also ended up without a medal. The title went to the man who ranked third on the 1983 world lists, but this still came as a surprise.

The 24 year-old Sarul started positively with 21.04. This held the lead until Timmermann – the GDR number 2 – put 21.16 at the end of the fifth round. In the sixth, Beyer did not complete his attempt and showed he had been nursing an injury to his right hamstring. Sarul and Timmermann were the final two throwers in the contest. The Pole dramatically regained the lead with 21.39 on his last throw. The GDR athlete followed with a no-throw clearly below that of the leader.

Alessandro Andrei, who had just raised the world record to 22.91, was under great pressure to win gold for Italy on what was the opening day of the championships. The Italian policeman set a championship record in the qualifying round, but this was broken in the first round of the final when European Champion Günthör put 21.63. Andrei, throwing next, managed 21.12 to hold fourth place. Brenner took over in round 2 with the longest put ever in an Olympic or World Championship, 21.75. In the third, Andrei improved to 21.17, but had slipped to fifth.

Günthör regained the lead with a massive 22.12 in round 4. Andrei then also reached 22m, but his put was a clear foul. The Italian recovered to take second place with 21.88 in the fifth. As Günthör prepared for his final throw he was loudly whistled by the crowd, keen to show their support for Andrei. The giant Swiss responded with another improvement – 22.23. Remigius Machura found 21.39 – same as the winning distance in Helsinki – insufficient for a medal.

Günthör's medal was later stolen from his Rome hotel room, but he was issued with a replacement by the IAAF.

Since his Rome triumph, Günthör had to undergo surgery to his lower back which threatened to end his career. His did not put the shot at all in 1990, and actually competed in bobsleigh for Switzerland. He resumed athletics training in October 1990 and made a triumphant return in 1991, remaining unbeaten for the entire year.

In Tokyo, he duplicated his feat of 1987 by saving his furthest throw for last, though his opener of 21.61 was easily better than anyone else. The silver and bronze went to Norway ... initially. After the championships it was revealed that Andersen had failed a doping control test in July. He was stripped of the silver and the medals were redistributed.

Günthör came back from a disappointing fourth place at the Olympic Games to claim a third world title. He did so emphatically, producing a world-leading 21.97 with his first attempt. The Swiss giant was pushed by the world record holder Barnes, who was returning from a two-year doping suspension. He had two marks of 21.80. The winner announced that he would retire at the end of the year.

For the second consecutive World Championships, a medallist failed a doping control test. This time it was Olympic Champion Mike Stulce, who had been in third place from his opening round put of 20.94.

Godina, who had qualified for the discus final earlier in the day, won with his first put and was never seriously challenged. In fact, nine of the 12 finalists produced their best put of the day in the opening round. One of those who did improve was Halvari, who went from fourth to silver in round 4. Barnes also improved to take the bronze, but could not get near the 21.30 he had achieved in qualifying.

"It was a quick moment of optimism, followed by a long period of pessimism," said Godina of his winning put.

After finishing a despondent fourth in the US trials, Godina must have felt the season was destined to be a write-off. A lifeline was thrown in the form of the IAAF decision to invite 1995 world champions to defend their titles without reference to team selection, but the contest in Athens was a frustrating experience for the American. Although he spun to well over 21m on all five of his valid puts he fell 3cm short of the third-round 21.47 by Bagach. As in the Olympics he had to settle for silver ... until, five days later, came the news that the Ukrainian had tested positive for the stimulant, ephedrine, resulting in a public warning and disqualification from the competition. That meant his $60,000 first prize and the title went instead to Godina.

As usual the qualifying round was on the morning of the first day, with the final eight-and-a-half hours later. There was a considerable change in fortunes between the two rounds. South African Janus Roberts "won" with 21.26 in the morning, but managed only 20.16 in the evening for last place. Conversely, the American duo of Godina and Nelson performed moderately in qualifying yet finished first and second in the final. Godina therefore won a third world gold, and did so with some style, reaching 21.87 and 21.80 in the first two rounds. He said he would celebrate by doing his laundry.

The gold went to a man who had been suspended for a doping violation at the corresponding competition two years earlier. Mikhnevich was originally 10th in Edmonton 2001, but that result was annulled. His suspension ended on August 4, 2003, and on August 8 in Minsk he put a personal best 21.66.

Godina had the best qualifying put of 21.08, but his sparkling World Championship record dimmed in the final. His first two throws left him in ninth place (prior to Toth's disqualification) and the third was ruled a foul and so the American was eliminated. Meanwhile, Mikhnevich had started with 21.24. In the second round he glided his shot near the right edge of the sector and towards to the championship record marker. It landed at 21.69 and he followed up with 21.36. At that point Nelson was eighth, then in the fourth round he improved to 21.26, good enough for a repeat of his Edmonton silver. "I am absolutely stunned that I am the world champion," said Mikhnevich, whose final three efforts were 21.45, foul and 21.44.

The 2005 leader with 22.20, and three-time world champion, Godina failed to qualify after losing 5Kg because of a stomach virus, which followed four separate injuries. The mantle of favourite fell on Cantwell who led the morning qualifiers with 21.11, but Cantwell had a miserable final, managing 20.87 for fifth place and producing just one other legal effort. The opening round was notable, first for 2000 world junior champion Smith's 21.29, and then Nelson's 21.73. Smith managed another 21m effort (21.04) in the next round, while Nelson's four legal efforts were all over 21m, with 21.68 the best supporting effort. The relatively diminutive (1.81/115Kg) American had twice been runner-up in both the worlds and Olympics, so this was a particularly sweet triumph – "I lost my first big championship [in 2000] to the great Finnish shot putter Arsi Harju, and now I reach the top here in Finland, so I have come full circle."

In April 2013, the IAAF confirmed adverse findings from a re-test of the doping control sample which Ukraine's Belonog had given after finishing first at the Athens Olympics one year earlier. He was suspended for two years to 2015, but more significantly all of his results from between August 2004 & August 2006 were disqualified. Included in this span were his Olympic gold and fourth place in Helsinki.

The following month, the IAAF reported that re-tests of sample from Helsinki had shown adverse findings for former champion Mikhnevich, an athlete who had already been disqualified for failing a drugs test at the 2001 World Championships. In July 2013 he was banned for life by the IAAF, who wiped out all his results from Helsinki 2005 and beyond.

Having thrown 22.43 three weeks earlier, Hoffa was the hot favourite, particularly as the number two American Cantwell hadn't made the US team, and defending champion Nelson had only thrown further than 21m once all season. Hoffa opened the final with 21.81, and Nelson responded two throws later with 21.47. The duel continued in the next round, with Hoffa putting 21.64, while Nelson improved to 21.61. Both Smith and Mikhnevich had their best throws of the evening in that second round. Thereafter it was Hoffa's show, as he threw 22.04, and supported his best mark with 21.92 and 21.58, averaging a shade under 21.80 for his night's work.

Mikhnevich was later disqualified as noted in the report for Helsinki 2005, so the bronze went instead to Smith.

Cantwell set a difficult target in the final with his opening throw of 21.54, and Majewski responded with 21.36. Nelson (21.11) and Hoffa also went beyond 21 with their openers. There were no changes until Bartels moved into second place in round three with 21.37. Majewski took back the lead in round four with 21.68 and progressed to 21.91 in the next round. Cantwell finally clicked in the fifth and launched the shot out to 22.03 to win. Of the top eight, four were rotational throwers (the Americans and Vodovnik) and four were traditional O'Brien technique throwers.

For the first time in World Championship history, a man (Al-Hebschi) put beyond 20m and did not qualify for the final. Though the Saudi (and Australia's Anlezark) can consider themselves finalists following the retrospective disqualifications of Mikhnevich (2013) and Lyzhyn (2017).

The pre-Daegu rankings showed consistent Armstrong leading the world with 22.21, but with six others at 21.60 or better, the competition was very open. Stori surprisingly led the qualifiers with a lifetime best 21.50.

Hoffa was the best in the first two rounds of the final with 20.90 and 20.99, until Stori unloaded another best, this time 21.60. Mikhnevich was the first to react positively, with 21.40 in the next round. Armstrong then moved from fifth to first with 21.64, and Cantwell closed in on the medals with a fifth-round 21.36. Rising to the occasion, the 21 year-old Stori then set his third personal best with 21.78 on the penultimate throw of the competition. Armstrong was unable to react, so Storl became the youngest winner of the event. "At the beginning of the year my plan was to be in the top six," admitted the new champion. "I really started to think about the gold medal in the last round today."

Mikhnevich was stripped of the bronze medal following the imposition of a life doping ban from August 2005. He became the first athlete to be disqualified from five separate World Championships.

World leader Whiting had the first throw of the final, and his effort of 21.57 would remain in the gold medal position for more than half the competition. Storl was in silver medal position with his first two throws of 21.19 and 21.24 while Hoffa and Armstrong were battling for bronze.

Whiting backed up his lead with 21.35 in the third round, but it was in the following round that the drama occurred. Storl, demonstrating his usual championship temperament, produced a massive throw and walked out of the back of the circle. The throw was judged a foul for what was thought to be a touch on the top of the board. Storl made an immediate oral protest. This was upheld by the referee on inspection of the on field video. The flag judge was quickly overruled, and the throw was measured at 21.73 to give Storl the lead and ultimately the gold medal.

Armstrong moved into third place with his fifth-round 21.34. Whiting finished with 21.22, meaning that all his measure puts were beyond 21m.

Defending champion Storl and new star Kovacs were felt to be the two best, with the German leading 2-1 in their clashes of 2015. Kovacs was the only man over 21m in round one, but Storl overtook his 21.23 with 21.46 in the second round. The shocks came in the next two rounds. First, Richards equalled his national record of 21.69 to move into the lead, and then Walsh set an Oceanian record of 21.58. Kovacs – a Pennsylvanian of Hungarian descent – then put 21.67 to relegate Storl to an unaccustomed fourth place.

The American then took the lead for good with 21.93, and Storl responded with 21.74. This magnificent competition, staged in uncomfortably humid conditions, saw a championship best ever fourth place distance for the unfortunate Walsh.

Walsh won the qualifying round with 22.14, then swapped first place with Kovacs in the first two rounds of the final. In the third, both men improved again, the New Zealander to 21.75 and the American to 21.66. Olympic Champion Crouser then produced a fantastic effort measured at 22.31. It would have been a winning mark, but the judge ruled that his left foot had illegally touched the back rim of the circle. The IAAF rule penalising such moments (187.14) was to be relaxed from November 2017, as it was generally felt that such ineffectual contact provided no advantage. That was too late for Crouser, whose longest legitimate mark in London was 21.20.

Walsh steamed on, with throws of 21.70 and 21.63 before unleashing his best of the day, 22.03, in the last round. One put before, Kovacs produced his own long foul of 22.08. He was red-flagged because his foot grazed the stop board at the front of the circle. Half of all the attempts in rounds 4-6 were fouls and Žunić's 21.46 from round 2 held up for bronze.

At the first World Championships, this final comprised 11 gliders (putting the shot in a linear movement) and just one rotator (spinning around before the put). Thirty-four years, later there were 11 rotational throwers and just the one glider, Storl.

The qualifying round – notable for the elimination of world record holder Yuriy Dumchev – provided a preview of the final with Bugár, Delis and Valent leading the way. In the final it was Bugár, the European Champion, who started the best with two 67m throws.

In the second round, Huuonen briefly went into second place before Delis got into his stride. In the fourth round, Bugár produced his third 67m+ of the series. Valent moved into third. The best finish was from Delis. In the fifth round he ignored the noise from the marathon medal ceremony to come dangerously close to the leader with 67.36. He followed this up with 66.48 but had to settle for a silver.

The story of the event was not so much the winning performance of Schult – who finally lived up to his status as world record holder after a poor record at major championships – but the silver medal of Powell. The 40 year-old American became the oldest athlete to win a World Championship medal thanks to an opening throw of 66.22. Powell, two times an Olympic bronze medallist, actually led the competition until Schult threw 68.74 in round 2, the longest ever throw at a major championships. He backed this up with two more throws worthy of gold.

Delis repeated his 1983 charge. He was only seventh after four rounds but improved to fourth, then third, with his final two throws.

The gold medal again went to a German but it was not defending champion Schult nor former world record holder Schmidt. It was a 24 year-old who was competing at his first senior championship final. Riedel was the best of the qualifiers and he went even further in the first round of the final with 66.20. The conditions were not ideal for long throws and it became obvious that this throw might well hold up for victory.

Horváth held second place until the last round, when an ecstatic de Bruin moved up from fourth spot with 65.82.

The crowd were pleased to see Schult – the 1987 Champion – take the lead after the first round, and delighted when defending champion Riedel went ahead in the second with an excellent 67.22. Schult also improved with his second throw and Germany were to hold the first two positions for most of the competition.

With his final throw, Shevchenko produced 66.90 to split the Germans. In fourth place was Olympic Champion Ubartas, but his name was removed from the order after he failed a doping test.

The 46,200 spectators clapped and cheered when each of the Germans went into the ring, but during the contest Riedel and Schult took the unusual step of issuing a statement to ask the crowd to please be quiet at these times. A small section of the crowd appeared to ignore this request, but they simply had not seen the statement as the main scoreboard was not visible from their seats!

August 11, 1995 was a good day for repeating world champions. Sergey Bubka won a fifth pole vault title, Moses Kiptanui a third steeplechase gold, Michael Johnson regained his 200m title and Lars Riedel won a hat-trick of discus titles.

The giant German had more trouble in the qualifying rounds than the final, because he needed all three throws. In the final he led from the first round and set a championship record of 68.76 in the second. This was then the second longest throw ever at a major championship.

The order of the other medalists changed in each of the last three rounds. Horváth was the unlucky one, slipping from second to fourth behind two throwers from Belarus.

Riedel's status as a latter-day AI Oerter was enhanced when he unleashed two mighty throws beyond 68m to claim his fourth successive world title. Although his sequence, which began in 1991, doesn't match up to Oerter's four Olympic golds spaced four years apart from 1956 to 1968, it is still an outstanding example of consistency and longevity at the highest level. Another thrower who has been at or near the top even longer, world record holder Schult (age 37), actually led for the first round with 66.14 and that held up for a bronze to add to his gold of 1987 and bronze of 1993. The silver went to Alekna, who had only qualified for the final at his final attempt. Godina, in fifth, place produced the best shot/discus showing at global level since Bud Houser's Olympic double in 1924.

One of only four athletes to appear in all seven editions of the World Championships, having placed 5th in 1983, 1st in 1987, 6th in 1991, 3rd in 1993, 5th in 1995 and 3rd in 1997, 39 year-old world record holder Schult was actually in the lead (with an excellent 68.18) as the last round got underway. Even Riedel, bidding for a fifth world title but handicapped by a hip muscle injury, was kept at bay. However, a German 1-2 was foiled in the last round when 33 year-old Washington, previously in fourth place with 66.29, at last came up with the sort of throw when it matters for which his supporters had been waiting for years. He threw 69.08, a distance which only Riedel (69.40) in the Atlanta Olympics) had ever bettered in a global championship. "To tell you the truth I don't know how the heck I did that," was his engaging comment. "I'm glad to show that a family man with a full-time job can win a world title."

On 2001 form, Riedel was ranked only 8th of those competing in Edmonton. The former champion had missed four week's training with a knee injury, but he worked his World Championship magic again to win a fifth gold. Only Sergey Bubka, with six pole vault golds, has a better record in a single event than Riedel's five golds and one bronze.

It was not an easy victory for the giant German. Before his fourth throw, he lay fourth with 67.10 behind Olympic Champion Alekna (69.40), Möllenbeck (67.61), and Shevchenko (67.16). Riedel overtook them all with 69.50, followed by 69.72, the furthest ever in a major championship.

"Had my leg been a little quicker during my spin I would have thrown over 70 metres," said the winner.

Up to Paris, the European Champion Fazekas had the best season and was 4-0 versus Olympic Champion Alekna. When it mattered, the Lithuanian shone. In the qualifying round Alekna threw 68.29 first time. In the final his first try was 69.69, his longest in two years. The top six stayed in the same order throughout the second half of the contest, so five-time champion Riedel (36) was left without a medal. Kaptyukh repeated his bronze from Göttingen.

Reigning champion Alekna led the qualifiers with 68.79, ahead of five-times winner Lars Riedel, whose 66.22 was a seasonal best, and marked the eighth world discus final that the German had reached. Rome led the first round with 64.22, and then Alekna asserted himself with throws of 67.90 and 68.10. At the halfway point Möllenbeck was second with 65.24, just ahead of Kanter (65.10), with Riedel out of the reckoning in ninth. Kanter then launched a surprise with a throw of 68.57. Alekna managed 66.75 and then a foul. With the last throw of the competition Alekna hurled the 2Kg implement out to 70.17 – the first 70m throw in a global championship.

"It was do or die in the end," said the winner. "I always try to make the winning throw with my first attempt but today it didn't work."

In 45 meetings during their career Kanter had managed just two wins against Alekna. In 2007 the great Lithuanian thrower had a 4-0 record versus Kanter and had not lost to anyone since August 2005. Kanter led in round one of the final with 64.89 from Harting and Smith. Harting improved in round two to 65.59, with Kanter throwing 65.37 in response. The Estonian then launched the platter out to 68.94 to settle matters, and Smith, throwing next, moved into silver position with 66.42. Alekna, who was favouring a knee injury, reached 65.24 in the same round. The surprising Harting moved past Smith in the penultimate round with 66.68. Kanter in relaxed mode in the final round, having already won, had another big throw – 68.84 – to round out his first major championship win.

Six of the seven available global titles between 2000 and 2008 had been won by Alekna or Kanter. With Kanter heading the 2009 world list (71.64), and Alekna ranked second with 68.94 it looked as though the title again might be decided between these two.

This view was immediately shaken when Malachowski, the Olympic silver medallist, opened with 68.77, and was followed later in the round by Harting, the Osaka runner-up, with 68.25. Alekna threw 66.36 to move into bronze medal position. This state of affairs remained until round four, when Kanter moved past Alekna with 66.88. Malachowski's response was to increase his lead with a Polish record of 69.15. Harting, urged on by the enthusiastic and knowledgeable crowd then made the greatest throw of his life to win with 69.43. "I owe the last metre of my sixth attempt to the audience," he said later.

Harting was receiving pain-killing injections because of an injured left knee, and wanted to end the competition quickly. The third throw of the final saw him reach 68.49, well beyond the range of any other thrower on the day. Hadadi reacted well, immediately throwing 65.29, but no-one else surpassed 65m until Kanter finished off round two with 66.95. Hadadi cemented his hold on third with closing throws of 65.50 and 66.08 to hold off Harradine's 64.77. But the day was Harting's. In spite of his injury, he progressed to 68.97 in the fourth. After his last effort, the German repeated his shirt-ripping ritual from Berlin and performed his lap of honour topos.

Alekna, sixth with 64.09, equalled Riedel's discus record of eight world championship finals.

him Kanter was heading Malachowski 65.19 to 64.49 after two rounds. The Pole moved into second place with 67.18, and the giant German promptly responded with 69.11, supporting his winning effort with 69.08 on the final throw of the competition. The medallists were exactly the same as in 2009, and in the same order. The trio had taken 10 of the available 12 medals since 2007.

Harting's celebration included his usual short-ripping display, but he was prevented from completing a lap of honour by a security guard. "There was no discussion," revealed the winner. "The guy was probably about 25kg more than me." Harting's younger brother Christoph missed the final by one place.

The medals were decided with the first three throws of the second round. Finley, who had already set a lifetime best of 67.07, went into the lead with 68.03. Then the favourite, Ståhl, registered 69.19. The quick-spinning Gudžius then propelled his discus out to 69.21, a lifetime best, and the title was won.

Behind the medallists, Dacres was a solid fourth with three marks over 65m, while former champions Malachowski and Harting took the next two spots. The twelfth place of 2007 winner Kanter emphasised the changing of the guard in the event.

Biomechanical analysis showed that despite their size, Gudžius (2.00m/130kg) and Ståhl (2.00m/145kg) each managed to move across the circle about a tenth of a second quicker than the average time taken by the other finalists.

For the first time, throws in excess of 63m were not enough to make the final.

The three-time champion Robert Harting missed all of 2015 with injury, so the way seemed clear for Malachowski to improve upon his collection of two silver medals. In a relatively uneventful competition, the Pole immediately went into the lead with his opening effort of 65.09, and followed it up with the winning throw of 67.40 in round two. Milanov improved his national record to 66.90 to take the silver medal. Urbanek made it two Poles on the podium with his penultimate throw of 65.18, denying Kanter his sixth consecutive world championship medal. "My technique was not that good today but I was maybe lucky and it flew far enough," said the modest winner.

Sergey Litvinov's only disappointment was that his victory was slightly devalued by the absence of Yuriy Sedykh. The defending champion started the final with a moderate 74.76, but won with his next effort of 83.06.

The battle for the other medals was ferocious. At the halfway point in the competition, Nikulin's 79.48 was second with Weis's 79.02 third. The order stayed the same in the fourth round, but there were fireworks from round five. First, Sahner threw 79.50 to overtake Nikulin by the smallest possible margin. Next to throw, Nikulin responded with 80.18. Weis immediately matched that distance. Both were then overtaken by Haber, who closed the round with 80.76.

In round 6, Tamm threw 80.84 to move from sixth to second. Sahner, who had slipped from second to sixth in the space of one round, moved up again to fourth with his final throw. In all, six men bettered 80m, the most ever.

Everyone was expecting Sedykh to continue his winning sequence at major championships which already included two Olympic Games and two European Championships. Instead, the title went to his younger team-mate, the world record holder Litvinov.

Litvinov won the qualifying round before watching Sedykh open with 79.22. The younger Soviet responded with 82.68 four throws later. Sedykh improved on his next three throws, but could not get near this mark. Meanwhile, Litvinov – previously noted for his inconsistency – produced a marvellous series including two more 81m+ throws. Not only did the “wrong” Soviet win, but the USSR were deprived of their customary medal sweep in this event by the inspired Pole Kwasny. He went into third place after the second round with a personal best of 79.42. Then with the last throw of the contest, Kwasny unleashed 81.54 to overtake Sedykh for the silver medal. However, video footage of the throw showed that the Pole clearly had a rim foul at the front of the circle. After a Soviet protest, the throw was annulled,

At 36, Sedykh won the only title to have eluded him. On this occasion the world record holder was not favourite. Igor Astapkovich was expected to add the World title to his European gold of 1990. The qualifying round was led by a third Soviet, Andrey Abduvaliyev (80.36).

In the final, Sedykh, throwing first, outclassed everyone with 81.38. He followed this with throws of 81.70, 81.06 and 80.26. No-one else got further than 80m until a determined Astapkovich managed 80.94 in the fifth. Weis, unlucky to miss a medal in 1987, confirmed his third place with 80.44 on the last throw of the contest. Abduvaliyev could not match his qualifying form, and the USSR lost its final chance for a World Championship medal sweep.

The winner said he had no plans to retire. "For the past 24 years, all my good memories are connected with this sport. As long as I have the ambition and desire, I'll keep competing for the time being. This is such enjoyment. I was expecting a medal but not that kind of medal."

The former USSR republics accounted for eight of the 12 finalists. These included the two-time former champion Litvinov. His opening throw held up for the bronze medal at the halfway point, but he dropped to seventh thereafter. Once again, Astapkovich was the favourite. But as he had in the Olympic Games, Abduvaliyev beat him when it mattered to become the first Asian men's World Champion. His winning throw of 81.64 was also an Asian record – though not a national record, as that had been set in 1990 when Tajikistan was part of the USSR.

"My best throw was the best one from the technical point of view. My coach, Anatoliy Bondarchuk, who is now coaching in Portugal, phoned me to say "You know what to do..."

The winning throw came in the sixth round, and the two other medal-winning efforts came with the very next two throws from Astapkovich and Gécsek, who had earlier produced a foul in excess of 80m.

Uniquely, the medal distribution was the same as it had been at the previous World Championships. And for the third successive global championship, Abduvaliyev upset the form books by beating Astapkovich. He did it in the final round, before which he was only third. "I had only four meetings before Gothenburg," said Abduvaliyev, "so I wasn't sure of my form."

Astapkovich, three times world and once Olympic silver medallist said: "I must be the record holder for second places in big championships."

For the first time the title went to an athlete who did not represent the Soviet Union or one of its former constituent republics. Abduvaliyev, who placed fifth in 1991 for the USSR and was champion in 1993 and 1995 in the colours of Tajikistan, was making his international début for Uzbekistan but he met with disaster in the qualifying round and failed to reach the final. The qualification was led by Olympic Champion Kiss but he was unable to duplicate that 80m+ form in the final, which developed into a fascinating three-way battle.

Weis, the 1991 bronze medalist, was the first to throw over 80m (80.24 in round 3) but in the next round European champion Sidorenko threw 80.38 – only for Weis to respond immediately with 80.52. Sidorenko regained the lead in round 5 with 80.76 but again was trumped by Weis's 81.14. This exhilarating contest was not yet over, for with his final throw Skvaruk – previously languishing in sixth place with 78.04 – shot into the lead with 81.46. Sidorenko fell short but Weis was not to be denied: roaring the implement on, it landed at 81.78 and Germany had won its first global hammer title since the 1936 Olympics.

There was carnage in the qualifying round, the victims including title holder Weis, Olympic gold and silver medalists Kiss and Deal, and former world and Olympic Champion Abduvaliyev. Even without Kiss, Hungary must have felt confident of securing two medals but had to settle for one as Gécsek, with seven contests over 80m that season, fell short when it counted most. The very first throw, 80.24 by 1999 world leader Kobs, was never bettered.

At the midway point Skvaruk was second but he was overtaken first by Piskunov, using five turns, and then by Gécsek in round 5. Németh had barely qualified for the top eight throwers, but advanced to sixth in the fifth round and then snatched the silver in the last round, as he knocked his compatriot Gécsek out of the medals. Kobs achieved the three best throws in the final and celebrated with a spectacular dive into the steeplechase water jump.

Olympic Champion Ziółkowski and world leader Murofushi staged an exciting battle. First the Polish team captain led with 81.88, then his Japanese rival went ahead in round 2 with 82.46. That remained the longest effort until the end of round 5, when Ziółkowski managed 83.38, a personal best and championship record. Murofushi – whose father Shigenobu was 10th in the 1972 Olympics – was next to throw and got near with 82.92. Neither man improved in the final round.

The three-time silver medalist Astapkovich won the qualifying round at 79.66. In the final he had three no-throws, but Belarus still provided the champion in Tikhon, whose greatest previous honour had been a close fourth place at the Sydney Olympics.

Tikhon's entry form for Paris revealed that he had thrown a personal best of 84.34 in Minsk on August 8. Murofushi had an even better seasonal best (84.86), but was hampered with an elbow injury. It was the Japanese who led after round one with 79.97 though Tikhon had a foul throw which landed further than that. In the second round the Belarusian – coached by former champion Sergey Litvinov – clicked with 80.69. That would have been enough for victory, yet the 27 year old progressed to 81.77 in the third and 83.05 in the sixth. "I dedicate this victory to my son," said the winner.

Olympic Champion Murofushi was injured, but would have had his hands full with Tikhon and Devyatovski, who with 86.73 and 84.90 headed the list of entrants. The Belarusians led the qualifiers with 79.26 and 81.20 respectively, though Tikhon only progressed with his third and final effort. In the final Esser was the early leader with 78.57 and 79.11, and Devyatovski had the first 80m throw (80.45) in round two, with Tikhon answering in the next round with 80.97 – after opening with two fouls. The tall (194/120Kg) Devyatovski responded with 82.60, which led the more compact (186/110Kg) Tikhon to produce a throw of 83.89, a championship record, and beaten in a global championship only by his coach Sergey Litvinov (84.80 at the 1988 Olympics). Tikhon followed Litvinov and Andrey Abduvaliyev as the only men to retain a hammer throw world title.

On March 8, 2013 the IAAF announced that re-testing of doping samples taken in Helsinki had revealed adverse findings for Tikhon and Devyatovski. The former had already failed a re-test from the 2004 Olympic Games, resulting the 2012 stripping of the silver medal he won at that occasion. "This re-testing is just the latest example of the IAAF's firm resolve to expose cheating in our sport," remarked the IAAF President Lamine Diack.

The IAAF confirmed the annulment of Tikhon's Helsinki gold in February 2014. His offences in 2004 & 2005 were regarded as one transgression, because he could not have been informed of the 2004 infraction before he committed another in 2005. The IAAF Doping Review Board confirmed a two-year period of annulled results for the Belarusian (August 22, 2004 to August 21, 2006) and an additional two-year suspension (August 4, 2012 to August 3, 2014).

The 2005 world title passed to Devyatovski, who was ultimately exonerated of all charges in 2016 when the Court of Arbitration for Sport judged that it has not been definitively established that the Belarusian had committed any anti-doping rule violation.

Belarus's third hammer thrower Vorontsov originally placed 27th overall, but he too was found guilty of a doping offence following the re-analysis of his Helsinki sample.

In 2005 Tikhon had opened the final with two fouls, and in 2007 he did exactly the same. On this occasion he then threw 79.35 to move a metre ahead of Karjalainen for the all-important eighth place. Immediately before Tikhon, Kozmus had thrown 82.12 to overtake Devyatovski and Charfreitag. The latter two improved in the next two rounds, the Belarusian with 81.22 and 81.57, and Charfreitag with 81.60. Meanwhile, Tikhon had managed his first 80m throw of the day in round five, with 80.77. The final round saw four of the top eight improve, Pars leading off with 80.93, followed by Murofushi's 80.46. Then came Tikhon. A fast balanced series of turns saw the twice crowned champion hurling the hammer out to 83.63, with television catching Tikhon's exhortations as the implement flew. The throw was the longest of 2007. Kozmus responded magnificently, missing his national record by one centimetre with 82.29.

As detailed in the report for Helsinki 2005, Tikhon has been retroactively disqualified for doping for two years up to August 21, 2006. He kept his title from Osaka.

Pars led the qualifying round with 78.68, but the tension of the final kept the first-round lead – by Ziółkowski – down to 77.44. Kozmus went ahead in the next round with 79.74, to which Ziółkowski immediately countered with his seasonal best of 79.30. Zagorniy was third at this point with 76.11; he progressed to 77.42 in round three, was overtaken by Pars (77.45) and came back with 78.09 in the final round. Kozmus, meanwhile, was exerting his authority, improving to 80.15 in the fifth before launching the winning throw of 80.84. Behind Pars in fifth was Sergei Litvinov, son of the first World Champion and competing for Germany, the birth country of his mother.

In only his third meeting of year, Murofushi dominated the final from the start, reeling off consecutive seasonal bests with 79.72, 81.03 and 81.24. Behind him Kozmus, returning from retirement, and Pars led the opposition with 79.39 and 79.14 after the first three rounds. Pars moved into second in the fourth round with 79.97, and was tantalizingly close to the lead with his final throw of 81.18. Nevertheless it was Murofushi's day. A decade after winning the silver, the popular Japanese threw 81.24 again to confirm his gold, while Pars continued his relentless rise in the championships since 2005 – seventh, fifth, fourth and now silver. Among the non-qualifiers was Sergei (formerly Sergei) Litvinov, son and namesake of the champion from 1983 & 1987. Now he was representing Russia, having placed fifth for German in Berlin.

With 23 consecutive victories and an unbeaten 2013, Pars was an almost unanimous choice to win, and he duly took the lead in the opening round with 80.30. Then Fajdek created one of the biggest surprises of the meeting when he cast his hammer out to 81.97. The Pole admitted afterwards that he was "a little shocked". He overcame his amazement with 80.92 – the second best throw of the competition – in the next round. Behind them, Murofushi was in third with his opening 78.03, but slipped back when Kozmus reached 79.21 and Melich 79.36. Interestingly, it was Fajdek who had previously been the last man to defeat Pars in June 2012. In tenth place it was now Sergey Litvinov, son of the former champion, and previously known as Sergei or Sergej.

Fajdek was the only man to throw further than 80m in 2015 and had done so nine times before Beijing. There looked to be only one winner and the Pole duly led the qualifiers with 78.38 from the surprising Miller (77.42).

Fajdek had a history of fouls, but here he started with a safe 76.40, as Nazarov led proceedings with 76.83 and then 77.61. The defending champion settled things in round three with 80.64, and then cemented his lead with 80.88, the winning throw. Behind him, both Nazarov and Nowicki threw 78.55, with the silver medal decided by President of the Tajik Athletics Federation's next best of 78.06 (to Nowicki's 77.20). Pars, twice a medallist, edged Litvinov for fourth place. Afterwards the benign Fajdek admitted that he had been "the heavy favourite".

The London biomechanical report for the men's hammer helped explain why Fajdek became World Champion for the third time. It included a graph showing the height of his hammer throughout his four turns. The wave got progressively steeper with a release point as the path approached a final peak. That point on his winning throw of 79.81 signalled a near-optimum release angle of 46.2°, which was described as "astounding" in the report.

That was in round four. The Pole was already leading with 79.73 from his compatriot Nowicki (78.03), until Pronkin reached out to 78.16 in the sixth. Ten of the finalists used four turns. One used three, and the other five. For the first time in the history of the championships, the winning distance was below 80m.

Seppo Räty showed why a Finn should never be underestimated in this event. Only the 10th best qualifier, he had an embarrassing start when he stumbled and dug his javelin in on the runway just before his first throw. After two rounds, Räty lay in seventh place. The lead at this point was held by world record holder Železný at 82.20. The Finn took the lead with a magnificent national record of 82.32 in the third. That held up until round five, when Yevsyukov threw 30cm further. Räty had dipped to 76.52 and 79.44 but returned to the lead with 83.54 in the final round. He was arguably the most surprising winner of the championships.

After beautiful warm weather for the first half of the championships, the conditions were cold and wet for Finland's favourite event. The biggest victim of the conditions was American Petranoff, who had recently improved the world record to 99.48. His best throw in the final was 85.60, but that was good enough for a silver medal, narrowly ahead of Olympic Champion Kūla.

The gold went to GDR thrower Michel, who had lost to Petranoff in the USA-GDR match earlier in the summer. He opened with throws of 88.96, 89.48 and 88.74. No-one else could better any of these three marks, especially since the rain became torrential in the second half of the contest. Michel himself did finish in style, with 86.70.

For the second successive World Championships, Finland provided an unexpected winner. Kinnunen showed he would be a force in the final by smashing his personal best with an 88.48 qualifying throw. Meanwhile, two of the pre-championship favourites – Backley and Železný – were eliminated.

It did not take long for the 23-year old Finn to make an impression in the final. In the first round, he became only the third man to exceed 90m with the new specification javelin. Kinnunen sprinted round the track in celebration and passed in round two. Sasimovich, with his only valid throw of the final, set a national record of 87.08 in the second round. In the third, defending champion Rätý improved to third place at 84.14, but was pushed out of the medals in the sixth by Lovegrove's 84.24. Kinnunen had returned to back up his monster throw with 82.12 and 82.74. With the last throw in the final, Rätý, the world record holder, produced 88.12 to claim the silver.

The winner is the son of 1968 Olympic silver medallist Jorma Kinnunen and the older brother of 1989 European Junior silver medallist Jarkko Kinnunen.

Železný finally won a world title despite being well below his best. After opening with 81.86 in the final, the Czech thrower had two bad fouls and was only fourth at halfway. Defending champion Kinnunen was in front followed by Polyunin and Hill. Nobody else could improve in the next two rounds except Železný, with throws of 83.82 then 85.98 to take the lead.

Hill, competing in his third world final, improved to 82.96 with his final throw but was now one place outside the medals. Hill's team-mate Backley also improved to consolidate his fifth place. A doping test failure by Polyunin promoted the two Britons to third and fourth places.

When Železný failed to qualify for the Tokyo final, it was felt that the Czech soldier was a poor competitor in big meetings. Golds at the Barcelona Olympics and in Stuttgart changed that perspective, and another gold in Gothenburg solidified Železný's position as one of the all-time greats. The 21 year-old German, Henry, set a short-lived championship record of 87.60 in the qualifying round. Železný improved this to 90.12 in the same group.

It was another German, Hecht, who led after the first round in the final with 83.30. Henry went ahead with 85.16 in round 2. At halfway, Železný was only third (83.02), but he took control at the end of the fourth round with 88.92. No-one could top that apart from Železný himself in the final round. In the meantime, Backley improved to third in the fifth round then silver with his own last throw.

"The big one in round 4 brought relief and then I was sure I was the winner," said Železný. It was a miserable final for the Finns: none of their three finalists qualified for three further throws.

From the start this was a competition of surprises. Supposed medal contenders like Hecht, Pukstys, Rätý and Lovegrove were casualties in the qualifying round and the final saw a rare fall from grace by two-time champion Železný, who finished ninth. The thunderbolt was delivered in the second round when the previously unconsidered Corbett, who had ranked only equal 19th among the 40 entrants with a best of 83.90, astonished himself along with everyone else with an African record throw of 88.40, and proved that was no fluke with an effort just one metre less in the next round. That second round also yielded throws of 86.64 by Gatsioudis and 86.54 (his best for four years) by Hill, which held second and third places until – on his final attempt – a surprisingly subdued Backley moved from fifth into the silver medal position with a throw of 86.80, thereby depriving his close friend Hill of the bronze. The bemused winner, the 1994 world junior champion, remarked: "I thought I might find a big throw in the final, but maybe fourth or fifth. I never thought of gold."

A long opening throw can often destroy the opposition and when the favourite, Gatsioudis, began with 89.18 it looked as though Greece could celebrate a men's as well as women's javelin champion. Far behind, Parviainen moved into second at the start of round 2, to be quickly replaced by Fagernes with a Norwegian record of 86.24, but later in the round Železný continued a brilliant comeback by overtaking everyone but Gatsioudis with 87.67. That's how it remained until, in the fifth round, Parviainen came up with a throw which thrust him into the heavily populated ranks of Finnish javelin greats. Second to Železný on the all-time list, with 93.09 in 1999, but lacking any medals since winning the 1992 world junior title, he hurled the spear 89.52 to become the eleventh Finn to capture a world or Olympic javelin crown!

In eighth place Backley, hampered by a knee injury, ended a five-year sequence of winning a medal in every major championship, while defending champion Corbett failed to reach the final.

This was the last of the four men's throws in Edmonton, and the third in which the championship record was beaten. In fact it fell three times. In the qualifying round, 35 year-old Jan Železný reached 90.76 to confirm he was ready to regain his title at his seventh championships. One who did not qualify was two-time silver medallist Steve Backley, though his compatriot Mick Hill, another veteran from Rome 1987, reached his sixth final, while defending champion Parviainen scraped through in 11th place.

Surprisingly, Železný's new meeting record did not survive the first round of the final, because Parviainen opened with 91.31. In any other javelin competition, this would have been a winner but in round 2 Železný's spear went out to 92.80. Gatsioudis won his third successive world medal, a bronze.

Železný made history by becoming the first athlete to compete at eight World Championships, but he was out of the medals this time even though the distances thrown were unspectacular. Each of the first seven throws in the final produced a new leader, and ultimately all the medal-winning throws came in the first round; first Henry 84.74, then Várník 85.17 and Makarov 85.44. Železný moved from sixth to fourth with 84.09 in the third. The angle of the winning throw was measured at 39.8°, the steepest of Makarov's six tries. His father Aleksandr Makarov was the silver medalist in the 1980 Olympic javelin, while his wife Oksana was herself a world finalist in 1997 and 1999.

Biomechanical analysis of the event showed that Thorkildsen had the fastest arm of the medalists, reaching an initial velocity of 31.87 metres per second with his best throw compared with 30.83 by Várník and 30.76 by Makarov.

The most eagerly awaited field event in Osaka saw 2007's two 91m men – Greer and Pitkämäki – pitted against Olympic champion Thorkildsen. The qualifying was led by Vasiļevskis and Greer, but the final was led at the end of round one by Russia's talented Ivanov, with his competition best of 85.18. Pitkämäki, whose style was reminiscent of the 1959 world record setter Al Cantello, launched himself bodily in a dive in throwing 89.16 in round two. He was immediately followed by Vasiļevskis (85.19) and Thorkildsen (88.61) who were inspired to their best of the competition. The Finn supported his best throw with 87.76 in round four, and only Greer improved in round five – from sixth to bronze with 86.21. Thorkildsen managed a fine 87.33, and then Pitkämäki, with the gold medal sewn up, produced a beauty of a throw, which landed beyond 90m at 90.33. He thus became the fourth Finnish man to win the world javelin title.

Three-time winner Jan Železný, and top American Breaux Greer were missing through injury, leaving Olympic Champion Thorkildsen, and Helsinki-born Pitkämäki as favourites. Reigning champion Makarov led the qualifying round with 85.08 from Pitkämäki (82.21) and Thorkildsen (81.45). Way back at 41.18 was Samoa's Shaka Sola. He was entered for the shot but missed his flight to Helsinki and arrived too late for his main event. The IAAF gave him the choice of competing instead in the 100m or the Javelin. His mark was a national record and he was cheered wildly by the Finnish fans.

Only Makarov, with 80.77, could get over 80m in round one of the final, held in wretched weather. The silvery-haired Russian improved to 83.30 in round two, with only Thorkildsen able to respond by the end Vasiļevskis led the qualifiers with 86.69, as just three throwers made the automatic qualifying distance of 82m. The final was led by Martínez with 83.43, which held up until Thorkildsen reached 89.59 in the second round. The Norwegian then backed this up with 88.95. No-one else was able to reach 83m after that, until Martínez came up with 86.41 in the final round. Murakami edged Vasiļevskis for the bronze 82.97 to 82.37. Reigning champion Pitkämäki, suffering from a fever, had a bad day, and placed fifth.

Thorkildsen's win meant that he became the first male javelin thrower to hold the Olympic, World and European titles.

Thorkildsen, the World, Olympic and European Champion, was favoured to win, though he had carried injury problems through most of the season. The Norwegian had some difficulty in qualifying, reaching 81.83, short of the automatic qualifying distance of 82.50.

Martínez led the qualifiers with 83.77, then threw 84.30 in round one of the final. That lasted as the lead for two throws, when de Zordo threw 86.27. The German southpaw produced the only other 85m throw with his second cast of 85.51, and at the end of the third round the bronze medal position was held by Veselý with his 84.11. Thorkildsen then improved from eighth to silver with 84.78, and the last 23 throws of the competition saw just four efforts of more than 80m. De Zordo noted that "my coach told me to hit it hard on the first throw, and I'm glad I was able to do so". That coach was Boris Henry, bronze medalist in 1995 & 2003.

The nature of javelin throwing brings more injuries than in the other throws. Veselý (knee/stomach) and Pitkämäki (rib surgery) had been suffering in the lead up to the championships, but were still regarded as the two most likely to succeed along with Tarabin, who had thrown a world leading 88.84 three weeks before the championship.

Pitkämäki opened in the final with 83.40, then Veselý followed five throws later with 87.17. The Czech would not get near to that effort, but for Pitkämäki the challenge was on. Four of his remaining five throws would exceed 85m, the best of 87.07 coming in the third round. Behind them Tarabin was in third with his second round 84.38, until the short but powerful Yego set a Kenyan record in round five with 85.40.

On the morning of the final Tarabin and his wife Mariya Abakumova (the 2011 women's World Champion) had apparently received a phone call from Russian President Vladimir Putin, in which he told them that he believed in them "and expected medals". Tarabin was aware of these words when making his last throw of 86.23, which wrested the bronze from Yego. The 10cm winning margin was the closest in the history of the event.

Avramenko of Ukraine originally placed fifth in the final with 82.05, but was disqualified after failing a test for an anabolic steroid.

Earlier in 2017, the German pair of Vetter and Röhler had moved to second and third all-time with respective efforts of 94.44 and 93.90. It was Vetter who quickly confirmed that form in a championship setting with the longest qualifying throw in history, 91.20. In all, 13 throwers exceeded the qualifying standard of 83.00. This event was the only throws final in London 2017 with more than 12 competitors.

Vetter struck again in the final, with 89.89 in round one. He had 50cm of runway to spare on release, meaning that his actual throw was more than 90m. Though this would turn out to be the gold medal winning throw, things weren't settled until the end of round six. Röhler managed efforts of 87.08 and 88.26 but was behind Vadlejch. He threw a surprising lifetime best of 89.73 in round two, and was followed by Röhler who improved to 88.26. The 2007 champion Pitkämäki reached 86.94 in the third round, but was passed by Frydrych who finished with two 87.93s then 88.32 to seal a Czech 2-3.

Röhler led early on with 86.68 to Abdelrahman's 86.07, then the powerful Egyptian took possession of the lead with his seasonal best of 88.99 in round two. The compact (1.75m/90kg) Yego then boomed a massive 92.72, just missing Jan Železný's 14 year-old championship record of 92.80. In the past such a throw might have deadened the competition, but here both Pitkämäki and Röhler produced two throws beyond 87m, while Finnish Champion Ruuskanen set a world best for fifth place of 87.12. Röhler had five throws beyond 86m, yet was unable to win a medal.

Olympic Champion Thompson had missed 14 weeks of training with groin and back injuries, and only decided to compete in Helsinki at the last moment – a brave decision considering the opposition would include world record holder Hingsen. Thompson had stated that the speed events had been affected most by his ailments, so when he won the 100m by nearly four metres, a British victory looked more likely. Hingsen was immediately left with a deficit of 89 points. Thompson followed up with a season's best long jump, while Hingsen was well below his best in the shot and high jump. The tall German won the 400m – narrowly – to end the day 120 points down on Thompson but comfortably ahead of the rest.

The second day started with another danger event for Thompson, the sprint hurdles. Again he exceeded expectations by clocking 14.37, a single hundredth slower than Hingsen. A poor discus by the German lost further ground, and despite pbs in the pole vault and javelin, he would have needed to beat Thompson by 22 seconds in the 1500m for victory. In fact the gap was just eight seconds in Hingsen's favour. After a brilliant 75.08 javelin throw, another German, Wentz, claimed the bronze medal.

Thompson's nine-year unbeaten run as a decathlete ended when the Briton placed just ninth. Like 1983, Thompson suffered with injuries before the championships. This time, however, he had even less time to prepare and was only in front after the 100m. The lead then passed to the GDR's Voss, who remained on top for the entire contest. The high jump saw the end of Hingsen's hopes of improving on his Helsinki silver. The tall German was carrying an injury and withdrew. The end of the first day was marked by the torrential rain which poured on to the 400m runners. Voss led from Plaziat with Thompson third.

Wentz had the best start to the second day and was a solid second after the discus. Thompson, winning many admirers with his battle, was now fourth and dropping. Wentz – who himself was nursing an achilles problem – lost hope of catching Voss after the GDR athlete cleared 5.10 in the pole vault to open a massive 277-point lead with two events remaining. Tarnovetskiy moved into third spot after the javelin. The top three placings were unchanged by the 1500m.

O'Brien established himself as favourite when he scored 8844w in the 1991 US Championships, just below Daley Thompson's world record of 8847. Any doubts about the 25 year-old American's ability to reproduce that form were swept away by his 100m performance: 10.41 into a headwind. The next quickest was 10.74. He increased his lead with a 7.90 long jump, though he had a no-jump well in excess of 8m. A personal best in the shot put followed, before great disappointment in the high jump, where O'Brien could go no higher than 1.91. This was well below his best of 2.13 and the points he lost in this event ultimately prevented him from breaking the world record. The American resumed his great form in the 400m when he ran a second quicker than ever, 46.53. The next quickest was Smith, 47.53. The Canadian was second after the first day, 68 points down on O'Brien.

Personal bests in the 110m hurdles and javelin, and a "win" in the pole vault, helped put O'Brien within striking distance of the world record before the 1500m. He fell five seconds short with a respectable 4:37.50. His total of 8812 was, however, the best legal mark ever with a new specification javelin. Smith smashed his Canadian record in second place, while Olympic Champion Schenk won a close battle for the bronze.

Once again O'Brien won with a brilliant score, but his winning margin was just 93 points over Hämäläinen, who became the seventh best scoring decathlete of all-time. The American's sprinting and long jumping on the first day were solid, but he was below his best in the shot and high jump, and ended the first day just four points in front of an inspired Meier.

Hämäläinen, fifth overnight, started day two sensationally with a world decathlon 110m hurdles best of 13.57. He followed this with personal bests in the next three events to come as close as 85 points to the leader. Meier fell back but stayed in medal contention.

The javelin saw O'Brien cushion his lead when he threw near to his best with 62.56. The Belarus record holder would have needed to beat O'Brien by 15 seconds in the 1500m. However, like O'Brien, Hämäläinen did not savour this event and clocked 4:39.24 to gain just four points on the American.

The decathletes all paid tribute to the crowds who followed this event with such great enthusiasm – 51,500 turned up for the first morning's events! "What a public," said the winner. "I wish we could have such a crowd back in the States."

O'Brien was not at his best, but did not need to be in order to take his third world title. The American's first three events were poor, by his standards, and he was 107 points behind team-mate Huffins before the high jump. A win in that event took O'Brien into the lead which he held overnight. After the first day his score was 4528 from Huffins (4481) and Nool (4328). Fifth was Stuttgart runner-up Hämäläinen, who won the 400m with a personal best.

The Belarus decathlete continued to improve; his 110m hurdles run moved him into third place and he was second after the discus. Hämäläinen was 139 points behind O'Brien after seven events, but that was as close as he, or anyone would get. O'Brien produced an excellent vault (5.20) and came close to his javelin best with 62.90. He could afford to relax in the 1500m.

Smith, silver medalist in Tokyo, came through for the bronze after Nool lost ground in the 110m hurdles and discus throw.

With Dan O'Brien electing not to challenge for a fourth world title the scene was set for the crowning of the first new champion in a decade. The honour fell to Dvořák, and what a deserving successor he proved to be as he piled up history's fourth highest score of 8837. Tenth in 1993 and fifth in 1995, the Atlanta Olympic bronze medalist set personal bests in the 100m, shot and 400m on the first day but still trailed Huffins, 4548 to 4527, with Busemann (4446) and Hämäläinen (4435) next, the latter now representing Finland after twice finishing runner-up in this event for Belarus.

Dvořák took the lead at the start of day two thanks to a formidable hurdles personal best of 13.61 but Huffins regained the advantage with a much better discus mark. The pole vault saw another change as Hämäläinen went into a 64 point lead over Dvořák with Huffins now third, and three fouls in the javelin split the end of the American's hopes. The javelin was, however, the key to Dvořák's success; a lifetime best of 70.34 not only propelled him into a 96-point lead over Hämäläinen but a nine-event score of 8127 put him within sight of O'Brien's world record of 8891. He needed a 1500m time of 4:27.13 as against a pb of 4:29.69, but the Czech settled for 4:35.40. Had he not eased off he might have broken Daley Thompson's European record of 8847. Busemann finished a safe third with Fritz soaring from 13th to 4th on the second day.

Defending champion Dvořák started brilliantly with his second fastest 100m and a long jump personal best, but he fell behind his corresponding world record marks in the shot, high jump and 400m to end the day with 4582 as against 4645 during his 8994 score the previous month. The revelation was Britain's 21 year-old Macey, whose personal best had leap in May from 7480 (when second in the 1996 World Juniors) to 8347. Finishing with a 46.72 400m, astonishing for a man whose best before May was 50.41, he achieved a first day score of 4546 (114 up on his previous highest) for second, ahead of Huffins 4462, Nool 4416 and Lobodin 4356.

Dvořák increased his lead to 113 after a snappy hurdles but Macey was still on a roll as he improved to 14.36. Huffins overtook Macey for second following the discus, and despite overcoming a broken pole and yet raising his best to 4.60 the Briton was back to fourth after eight events. Dvořák, well below form in the vault, led with 7172 but Huffins was close at 7148, followed by Lobodin 7075 and Macey 7008. European Champion Nool failed his opening height. Dvořák scored big points in the javelin, while Macey – reduced to one attempt because of an elbow injury – threw a personal best. Scores after nine events: Dvořák 8063, Huffins 7951, Macey 7807, Lobodin 7785, Levicq 7758. Dvořák's title was safe but the 1500 would decide the other medals. Macey produced yet another pb and jumped to second. Huffins held on to third ahead of Levicq who rose 10 places with an exceptional second day score of 4380, the highest ever such total at a World Championships.

In May 2001 in Götzis, Šebrle had raised the world record score to an historic 9026. Sadly, he arrived in Edmonton with injuries to his calf and groin and was never in the hunt for medals. However, the gold stayed in Czech hands because Dvořák again produced his best form at the World Championships.

Dvořák had a great start, placing a close second to Nool in the 100m then winning the long jump (pb 8.07) and shot. Šebrle runner-up Macey won the high jump (pb 2.15) and then had a terrific duel with Nool in his 400m race. Both smashed their previous bests with the Briton winning 46.21 to 46.23. Macey led by one point overnight, but that advantage was swept aside by Dvořák's 13.80 hurdles win which put him close to the pace required for a world record score. Nool overtook Macey thanks to a 5.40 pole vault, and the Briton lost further ground in the javelin, where he was hampered by a sore arm. Dvořák vaulted a personal best and won the javelin, but a world record score was out of range before the 1500m. However, the placings of him, Nool and Macey were never likely to be affected by the final event, in which Dvořák had a cushion of almost 20 seconds.

A new decathlon star emerged in the shape of Karpov. The 22 year-old from Kazakhstan dominated the first day with four personal bests and wins in both jumps and the 400m. Overnight he led on 4599 points from Pappas 4546 and Šebrle 4423. Defending Champion Dvořák was below his best in sixth place.

Karpov continued his progress with another win in the hurdles, then he extended his lead over Pappas in the discus. Statisticians predicted that the Kazak would struggle to hold on to first place because his pole vault and javelin bests were weak. Indeed, Karpov went out after 4.40 in the vault whereas Šebrle cleared 4.80 and Pappas 5.10. The American thus turned a 67-point deficit into a lead of 53 points. In spite of a sore shoulder, Pappas extended his lead to 179 points in the javelin, where Karpov was last at 47.53. Šebrle also moved ahead of Karpov even though he fouled a massive throw in the region of 73m. Going into the 1500m, it was fairly certain that the order of the top three would be unchanged, provided Pappas could stay reasonably near to Šebrle. He did so with a personal best of 4:44.31.

The second American Terek was disqualified in the 110m hurdles for a trailing leg. Had his performance stood, he would have placed fourth overall at 8253 points.

There had been just 73 points between Šebrle and Clay in their classic duel in Athens in 2004, and for much of this event the result was in doubt. Curiously the two were drawn in separate heats of the 100m, which helped Clay, as he ran 10.43 with a 3.4 following wind, while the Czech managed 10.91 with +1.2. Šebrle closed the gap to 31 points by outjumping Clay 7.86 to 7.54. Clay then improved his shot best by almost a metre in reaching 16.25, excellent throwing for someone weighing less than 80Kg, but still lost ground to Šebrle. The bad weather disrupted the high jump, but Šebrle went into the lead (3634) with 2.06 ahead of Clay (3607), with Pogorelov (3556), Rahnu (3523) and Zsivoczky (3482) trailing. Clay's lifetime best of 47.78 in the 400m lifted him ahead of Šebrle overnight by 14 points, 4527 to 4513.

Day two belonged to Clay, with the discus key amongst the events, as his 53.68 gave him a surplus of 142 points over Šebrle's 46.85. Clay gained an additional 21 points in total over the last three events, but suspense related only to the name of the bronze medal winner. Rahnu and Pogorelov both held third place during day two until the 1500m, when both men lost nearly 200 points to Zsivoczky's 4:32.17, and Niklaus also lifted himself well past Pogorelov and Rahnu. Dvořák's eighth place was the seventh time that the three-time winner had placed in the top 10 of the World Championship.

Clay, Šebrle, and newcomer Kravchenko were expected to battle for the medals, but while Clay started excellently in defense of his title, running 10.44, the Belarusian suffered a disaster. Clearly unaware of the rule change whereby decathletes were no longer allowed two false starts, the shell-shocked Kravchenko was ejected from the competition after breaking twice in his 100m heat.

The first event was won impressively by the American in 10.44. Clay extended his lead after two events to 79 points over Smith, after another victory at 7.65. Kravchenko showed what might have been with a 7.58 jump before withdrawing. Šebrle cleared 7.56 and moved from 15th to fourth. While Clay threw a good 15.92 in the shot, he was overtaken by Smith who reached a magnificent 17.32. Just 32 points separated Smith, Šebrle (who jumped 2.12) and Clay after the high jump, but Clay had to withdraw injured while attempting 2.00.

Smith continued to compete well, and by the time the javelin began he had scored 7280, with Šebrle in third place with 7059, behind Karpov. The Czech then threw 71.18, almost 18m better than the Jamaican to gain 265 points on Smith and take a lead of 44. Šebrle stayed within two seconds of Smith in the 1500m to win by 32 points from the Jamaican's national record 8644. Behind the two principals, Karpov had a seasonal best of 8586 to head off Drozdov's lifetime best of 8475.

The pre-season favourite had been Bryan Clay, but the reigning World and Olympic Champion was injured. His replacement as the US number one, Hardee, literally led from the gun, winning the 100m in 10.45, and followed this with personal bests in the long jump and shot put. Hardee led by just 25 points from Kasyanov at this point, but then the Ukrainian outjumped Hardee 2.05 to 1.99, and then ran 47.85 to Hardee's 48.13. So Kasyanov led the end of a day which finished at 22:30, with 4555 to 4512 of Díaz and Hardee 4511. Díaz's performance had featured an excellent 46.15 in the 400m, a World Championship record for the decathlon at the time.

Hardee began the second day with 13.86 when no-one else was quicker than 14.08. That put him back in the lead for good. By the time the last event began, the American was 264 points ahead of Pogorelov with 8165, thanks to a 5.20 vault and a personal best by nearly four metres in the javelin (68.00). Kasyanov, conversely, had slipped to seventh. In the 1500m, Hardee preserved 150 points of his advantage, losing 21 seconds to Suárez, who climbed from sixth to second in the last two events which featured a World Championship decathlon javelin best by him of 75.19.

Pogorelov held on for bronze while Kasyanov climbed from seventh to fourth after a strong run in the second 1500m heat. That effort was ultimately rewarded with a bronze medal (Ukraine's only one from Berlin) when the Russian was disqualified in 2018. A re-test of his doping sample from the 2008 Beijing Olympics proved positive. His punishment included the annulment of all his results from then and for the next two years.

Hardee and Eaton – first and 18th respectively in Berlin – were way ahead of the field. Eaton had scored 8729 to win at the US Championships including a 4604 first day, but was not as near to his best in Daegu as was Hardee. So despite being 53 points behind Eaton overnight 4393 to 4446, the advantage lay with Hardee, always good on the second day.

As projected, Hardee edged ahead of Eaton after the discus throw and by the time the last event started, Hardee's lead was 244, with Suárez – another good second day performer – 32 ahead of Eaton. The Oregonian was too good for the Cuban, just making up the difference with his 4:18.94 to overtake Suárez by four points.

By the time of the Moscow championships, Daegu silver medalist Ashton was world record holder an Olympic Champion. He won the 100m in 10.35 but was below par (by his standards) in the long jump, shot put and high jump. At this point he was in third place with 3495 behind Nixon (3611) and Schrader (3501). A sharp lecture from his coach Harry Marra led to a 46.02 400m race, the quickest ever in a World Championship Decathlon. That gave Eaton a small lead (4502-4493) from Nixon overnight.

Schrader was third with 4427, just ahead of Canada's Warner. Eaton opened up the second day with the excellent hurdles time of 13.72. After the discus the American's lead was 119 points over Schrader, with Freimuth and Warner close behind. The German, performing at his best, lost a small amount of ground to Eaton over the next two events. With just the 1500m remaining, the German was on 7895, 168 points behind Eaton and 118 points ahead of Warner. The medal positions were now settled and Eaton came home the victor by 139 points over the lifetime best of 8670 for Schrader. Personal bests also fell to Warner and Mayer, who moved up from 15th to fourth on the second day. The quality of the event can be gauged by the fact that no previous decathlon had ever seen 10 men score over 8300, but in Moscow there were 13 at that level.

All eyes were on Eaton, competing in his first decathlon since winning the 2013 World title. He fully merited the attention. The American began with a magnificent 10.23 100m, with Canada's Warner in second place with 10.31. Those marks established the positions which would remain throughout the competition. Eaton took the long jump with 7.88 ahead of Warner's 7.65. After good, but not spectacular efforts in the shot and high jump, Eaton finished off day one with a phenomenal 400m of 45.00. The run, which he described as "fun", drew gasps from the crowd when the flash time appeared on display boards. It shattered the altitude-assisted world decathlon best of 45.68 set 47 years earlier by Bill Toomey. The American's first-day score of 4703 was close to the 4728 he had accumulated when setting his 2012 world record.

Warner, a world class 110m hurdler with a best of 13.27, edged Eaton 13.63 to 13.69 in the sixth event. Eaton moved clear with 5.20 in the vault, and after 63.63 in the javelin needed 4:18.25 to beat his own world record. He ran 4:17.52 to round out the performance of the 2015 World Championships. Discus winner Freimuth took the bronze behind the two North Americans.

Ernesto Canto, 23, added the World title to his 1981 World Cup win with a scintillating final 5Km of 19:32. At 15Km a group of eight were in contention. In the next 2Km, this was down to four – Canto, Pribilinec, Yevsyukov and Marín. The Spaniard was the first to fall back, followed by the Soviet walker. The Mexican and the Czechoslovak duelled in the last 3Km, before Canto opened up a 40m lead by the time he entered the stadium.

Disappointed by Alessandro Andrei's defeat in the previous day's shot put, the home crowd were delighted by the progress of the first walking event in Rome. Olympic Champion Maurizio Damilano was the favourite, and he lived up to this status by dominating a classy field. Walking each 5Km section quicker than the last, the Italian was among the leaders at halfway after which point the defending champion Canto had been disqualified.

At 15Km, Damilano led by three seconds from Mercenario and Noack, but before long these two were also disqualified. With Damilano well clear in the last 3Km, the Italian spectators broke into song as he approached the stadium. Pribilinec came through for the silver as he had done four years earlier.

The race soon developed into a three-way battle between defending champion Damilano, three times world indoor champion Shchennikov, and Plaza of Spain. The Italian got progressively faster throughout the race, just as he had in 1987. He succeeded in dropping Plaza, but could not lose Shchennikov.

The two were together as they entered the stadium earlier than anticipated. There was confusion as the 100m heats were still in progress and the walkers had to sidestep the starting blocks. Damilano's lead was cut back dramatically by Shchennikov who crossed the finish line first – only to realise there was another lap to go. While officials frantically moved flowerpots from the track, the calm Italian got in front again. He opened up a lead on the tiring Soviet so quickly that he was able to celebrate his second world gold on the back-straight. Plaza crossed the line third but was disqualified.

After the race Damilano, 34, described his win as his "greatest victory," while Shchennikov said he felt he could not have won even if he had not misjudged the laps.

Most of the field were still in contention at halfway (42:26), and there were no major breaks until 17Km, when Massana went to the front. A pack of nine got away, but of these four were ultimately to be disqualified. Massana, who himself was disqualified at the previous year's Olympic Games when heading for a medal, pulled clear with a second half of 40:01.

It looked as if Shchennikov would repeat his 1991 silver, but both he and third-placed Garcia were disqualified late in the race. In Garcia's case he had already entered the stadium. There had been a delay in releasing news of the disqualifications to those whose job it was to remove the walkers from the race.

A new walking star emerged in the shape of 21 year-old Didoni, who became the youngest ever male walking world champion. The Italian was among the leading pack at halfway (40:31). He fell back temporarily, but returned on the last 2Km loop to battle with Garcia and Massana for the medals. Defending champion Massana was the first to fall back. Then with 250m remaining Garcia was disqualified. Didoni went on to win with a personal best.

Italy were thought to have taken the bronze medal though De Benedictis, but he received his third and fourth red cards in the finishing straight and was disqualified after the finish.

With defending champion Didoni finishing seventh and Olympic gold medalist Pérez 14th, the race looked to be going the way of Olympic silver medalist Markov, who by halfway had built up a 19-second lead over Shchennikov in 40:05. He, however, was disqualified just before 15k, at which point Garcia held a 5-second advantage and the Mexican doubled that over the final 5Km. Victory was especially sweet as he had been disqualified late in the race when in medal position both in 1993 and 1995. On this occasion, after a cautious start (9th at halfway in 40:50), he received two warnings, as did silver medalist Shchennikov while the third placed Khmelintsky finished with a clean sheet from the judges.

Disqualified this time, in retrospect for a doping violation dating back to 1996, was 1992 Olympic Daniel Plaza (originally 10th).

Becoming the first Russian man to win any world title since the break-up of the Soviet Union, Markov covered the first half in 42:51 and the second in 40:43, the winning time of 1:23:34 being the slowest yet at the World Championships, understandable in view of the sweltering heat. Striking out 4 kilometres from the finish, former World Junior Champion Markov won by the handsome margin of 45 sec over blistered and dehydrated Olympic Champion Pérez with defending title holder Garcia third. Pérez and Garcia left the pack after 15Km, with the former proving stronger.

Martinez, who had set a world road best of 1:17:46 earlier in the year, was disqualified again, as he was in the 1996 Olympics, 1997 World Championships and 1999 World Cup.

The race comprised nine laps of a circuit adjacent to the Commonwealth Stadium. Defending Champion Markov led through 5Km in 20:14, and the leader at halfway was another Russian, Vladimir Andreyev. He was later disqualified and Markov was in front again at 15Km, by which the leading pack was down to 11 men.

The pace got progressively faster and former World Junior

Markov was third, and the top non-Russian, Deakes, lost touch in the last kilometre. In the stadium, it was clear there world be a Russian sweep of the medals. Markov overtook Burayev in the last 300m but

The first of the Paris golds could hardly have been won more impressively, with Pérez improving the world best by one second to 1:17:21. The IAAF had already agreed that the first world road records would be established at the end of the year. This mark became the inaugural record and it was decided that Pérez would be awarded the $100,000 prize in return for any world records set in Paris.

The previous holder of the world best, Fernández, set off quickest as the field covered 1000m before linking onto the first of nine 2000m loops. The Spaniard was six seconds up at 5Km and 32 seconds clear of Pérez at halfway (38:38 to 39:10). Thereafter, the Ecuadorian – wearing a white baseball cap – closed the gap. His third quarter was covered in 19:09 compared to 19:25 by Fernández. Meanwhile, defending champion Rasskazov had moved into third place. Pérez caught Fernández in the 17th kilometre and went on to walk the second half of the race in just 38:11. “The course was very difficult,” said the winner. “The only way to overcome it was to train hard.”

A bunch of 14 were together at the halfway point, but six of these, including 2001 champion Ilya Markov, would be disqualified for “lifting.” At the 15Km mark, Fernandez was tracked by defending champion Pérez, with Molina and Saquipay, who was one of the disqualified, 12 seconds behind. Pérez made his break shortly after, and finished with progressively faster 5Km splits, covering the last in 19:25 to finish more than a minute clear of Fernandez. Mexican Eder Sánchez set a unofficial world junior best at 10Km walk with his halfway time of 39:32.

Olympic Champion Brugnetti led from the gun, passing 5Km in 21:39 with a two-second lead over Pérez, which he extended to 17 at the halfway point, reached in 42:14 in the very hot conditions.

The Italian was then disqualified, leaving the Ecuadorian with a slender lead over a bunch of 11 athletes. Ghoula shared the lead at the 15Km point (62:31) with Fernández two seconds behind. Pérez eventually got clear of Ghoula, who cramped up in the closing stages. Fernández closed with a sprint to catch Ghoula on the line. He was initially disqualified, but was reinstated on appeal, being helped by having received no warnings during the race. For Pérez it was his third successive win, and his seventh global title, having won the World Cup three times, as well as the 1996 Olympic title.

The pace was set by Tysse, Rubino and Brugnetti, with the Norwegian (20:00) leading from the Italians (both 20:01) at 5Km. At halfway, with the pace quickening, Rubino (39:48) led from Brugnetti (39:49) and Tysse (39:50). Between 10 and 15Km, Brugnetti dropped out, as did three-time silver medalist Fernández. By 15Km (59:29) Olympic Champion Borchin had closed in on the leaders, the ever-increasing pace being to his liking. While everyone else slowed, Borchin upped the tempo, and he came home with 25 seconds to spare over Wang. It was a sweet triumph for the Russian who had collapsed in Osaka 2007. Sánchez, who like the first two had held back over the first half, went nearly half a minute clear of Rubino for the bronze medal. The oldest of the top four was aged 23.

Like all the Berlin walks, the race took place in the Mitte district of the city, on 2Km laps up and down the historic Unter den Linden (“under the linden trees”) and finishing at the Branenburg Gate.

Borchin had served a one-year ban after failing a doping test in March 2005. In January 2015, he was banned for a further eight years (in 2012-2020) by the Russian Anti-Doping Agency, after being caught under the IAAF Athlete Biological Passport programme. The RUSADA further annulled his results, unusually, over three separate periods in 2009, 2011 and 2012. These intervals did include Borchin's World Championship wins in 2009 and 2011, but five other Russian athletes were also given non-linear punishments by the RUSADA.

The sanctions were considered by the IAAF to be too “selective”, with more performances needing to be disqualified. The dispute was put before the Court of Arbitration for Sport, who in March 2016 upheld the IAAF's objection. Borchin's penalty was now clearcut: besides his eight-year ban all his competitive results – since and including that of August 14, 2009 – were to be disqualified. Wang is the rightful World Champion of 2009.

The initial pace was set by Rubino, and it was cautious in the warm and humid conditions (22°C, 85%), with the first two quarters covered in 21:15 and 20:19. Suzuki went ahead, then was overtaken by Borchin and Zhen in the 15th kilometre. By the three-quarter mark, Borchin, the hot favourite, was seven seconds ahead of Zhen in 60:42, and virtually maintained that pace with a final 5Km of 19:14 for victory. The other medals went to Kanaykin, and López, who both moved up two places in the last quarter of the race. López won Colombia's first-ever world medal, while in sixth, Kim Hyun-sub registered the best performance by a Korean in Daegu. Those achievements were ultimately upgraded to gold and bronze with the eventual disqualification of the original gold and silver medalists plus Yemelyanov, who was initially fifth.

As detailed in the 20Km Walk report of 2009, Borchin was stripped of his gold medals from both Berlin and Daegu because of an abnormal haematological profile noted in his Athlete Biological Passport. Silver medalist Kanaykin was also found guilty in similar circumstances and from February 25, 2011, all his results were disqualified. Kanaykin was handed an eight-year ban as this was a second doping offence for him. This is the only World Championships event where both the first two finishers were disqualified for doping offences. López is rightfully Caterine Ibañez actually received her gold three years before his promotion was confirmed.

Two further Russians – Yemelyanov (fifth) and Morozov (12th) – were both also disqualified when later checks of their Athlete Biological Passports revealed attempted use of a prohibited substance or method. As was Ukraine's Dmytrenko, initially seventh but temporarily up to fourth while earlier sanctions were applied. So four of the original top seven in this race (1-2-5-7) had their results annulled.

The 29th heat played havoc with the form chart. Of the five men who had beaten 1:20, only Suzuki managed to finish in the top 25, and he was just 12th. The Japanese record holder was the early leader, and passed 5K in 20:18, maintaining the same pace to halfway (40:34). By 15km, the leading trio were Ivanov and the first two from London 2012, Chen and Barrondo. Those three were together until just after the 18Km mark, at which point Barrondo was disqualified for "lifting". Ivanov then went away to win by 11 seconds from Chen, covering his last quarter in 20:17. At age 20, Ivanov became the youngest ever male walks world champion. López was a clear third. All the Moscow walks started and finished in the stadium and included laps within the Luzhnik Olympic Complex along the bank of the River Moskva.

In March 2019, the Russian Athletics Federation announced that Ivanov, due to deviations in his Athlete Biological Passport, would be suspended for three years with his results deleted from July 9, 2012 to August 17, 2014. He stands to lose not only his Moscow gold, but also a silver at 20Km from the European Championships. The case continues as at July 31, 2019.

Cai led the field through halfway in 40:20, from a group of a dozen, including world record holder Suzuki, who dropped out shortly after that point. Another Chinese, Wang, was the leader at 15Km (59:53), some 11 seconds ahead of López. The Chinese had received two warnings, and had to be careful to avoid disqualification. López duly zipped past Wang at the 17Km mark, and went on to win by 15 seconds, having saved his fastest 5Km portion of 19:10 for the final quarter of the race. Fastest finisher of all was the surprising Thorne, who broke the Canadian record. The defending champion Aleksandr Ivanov (RUS) was entered but did not start.

All the walks at Beijing 2015 included 1637m in the stadium, then laps of a circuit on Hujing East Road, then 363m back to the stadium. For the 20Km there were 18 laps of 1Km, and for the 50Km it was 24 laps of 2Km.

All of the 2017 walks were held on the same day, on a 2Km loop between Buckingham Palace and Admiralty Arch in the centre of London. The men's 20Km was the last of the four disciplines.

Wang Kaihua led the field past 5Km in 19:54, with 22 others under 20:00. The leading group had slimmed down to 16 by halfway, with Fujisawa heading the field in 39:48. Shortly after, Britain's hope Bosworth took the lead, but was disqualified in the twelfth kilometre. Wang was back at the head of the group, now down to eight, at the ¾ mark as the pace increased with a 19:43 5Km.

Wang and the tall (1.91) Linke continued to force the pace, until Arévalo went to the front in the 17th kilometre. Linke and the 18 year-old Shirobokov joined the Colombian. These three were suddenly caught by Shange, who took the lead after kilometres of 3:48 & 3:46. Arévalo and Shirobokov went clear in the closing stages, with the Colombian breaking free 300m from the finish.

Arévalo went across the line flourishing a Colombian flag he had picked up at the final drinks station, finishing 10 metres clear of the Russian neutral, with Bonfim improving one position from Rio to take the bronze. The winner's halves were covered in 39:50/39:03 and he set a national record, as did the Brazilian and fourth-placed Shange. The first two home completed their race without incurring any warnings.

Bonfim was later revealed as having failed a doping test in May 2017, but kept his medal when the AIU ultimately agreed on a deferred six-month suspension in 2018 "after evaluating the athlete's degree of fault and the gravity of the infraction".

The IAAF provided compensation for the world's 50 kilometre walkers by arranging this championship race for an event which had been reluctantly dropped from the programme of the 1976 Olympics. That development was in response to IOC requests to international federations for a general reduction in the size of the Olympic Games. The IAAF Bulletin of April 1973 reported: "The Council therefore felt that the elimination of the 50Km Walking Race might be the least harmful step to take." There were also concerns about the disruption of traffic caused in an age when the event, like a marathon, took place on public roads rather than a compact circuit. So instead of gathering in Montréal that August, the world's best 50Km walkers met in Malmö in September under the auspices of the IAAF with the Svenska Friidrottsförbundet.

Victory went to 1972 Olympic silver medalist Soldatenko, who had become known as the "Alma Ata hippie". At 37 years 258 days, he became the oldest ever male IAAF World Championship winner in an event on the main championship programme (a record which stood until Yohann Diniz's victory 41 years later). The Soviet walker sped away from a strong Mexican challenge, passing halfway in 1:56:55. Colín, disqualified in the Olympic 20Km earlier in the summer, tried to stay with Soldatenko but slipped from second to fourth in the closing stages. The silver went to another Mexican, Vera, while the 20 year-old Salonen, in his first international race, took the bronze. The winner's 10Ks were covered in 47:30, 46:50, 45:10, 45:56 and 49:14.

Mexico had high hopes of a second win in the Helsinki walks when world track record holder González held a lead of seven seconds at 20Km. Soon after, however, the Mexican's lead began to shrink. At 35Km, he had been caught by the GDR's Weigel. The German finished strongly to win easily in the fourth-fastest road time ever. González faded to fifth and the silver went to fast-finishing Marin, who had stopped for one minute at halfway due to stomach problems.

There was confusion at the finish. Weigel crossed the line and jogged for a few strides only to be instructed - incorrectly - to walk another full lap. This he did, but none of the other finishers were required to do so.

Hartwig Gauder, unlucky to miss the 1983 championships with injury, kept the title in GDR hands with one of the finest performances in Rome.

In the very hot conditions, he clocked the fifth-fastest time in history. Gauder, defending champion Weigel, Ivanenko and Llopert got away after 30Km. By 40Km, Gauder led and shortly afterwards the Spaniard was disqualified. The winner completed the race with a final 10Km of 42:23, the fastest segment of the race. Weigel gained a silver to add to his 1983 gold, while Ivanenko was almost four minutes in front of Ducceschi.

"It was like a sauna with 11 million people in it," said defending champion Gauder of the conditions. Even with a 7:00 start, the temperature was 25°C and humidity 97%. Potashov and Perlov upped the pace after 20Km (1:33:03), taking with them Gauder and Popovich. The four were all still in contention at halfway, but Potashov and Perlov pulled clear of Gauder, who in turn dropped the third Soviet. The two leaders, friends for 16 years, were together for the rest of the race and decided to attempt a dead heat.

"Fifty metres before the finish we thought it would be better not to compete and finish together. It was better for me to walk with Potashov than to walk alone," said Perlov. The two crossed the line with their arms around each other, but the photograph showed that Potashov had "won" by a margin of 0.01. There were 12 non-finishers in the torrid conditions, including two-time medalist Weigel.

A very high standard saw nine of the first 10 set personal bests, three of them national records. Spain completed a walk double in Stuttgart through Jesús García. The 23 year-old watched Mercenario – the 1993 World Cup winner – try to get away at around 30Km before taking the lead himself just before 40Km. Noack, Korzeniowski and Kononen were in touch with the Mexican falling back.

On the final circuit, the Pole was disqualified. Kononen caught García, but the Spaniard went away again to win by 80m. Meanwhile Spitsyn finished strongly to deprive Noack of the bronze medal.

Zhao Yongsheng tried the same tactics which had won him the 1995 World Cup. He took the lead from the start. He was 30 seconds ahead at 10Km, but this shrank to 23 seconds at 20Km and eight at halfway (1:53:50). The Chinese managed to stay in front for another seven kilometres when he was caught by Kononen (7th at halfway). Zhao battled to keep with the Finn but collapsed 3:13 into the race and was taken to hospital with heat exhaustion.

Kononen, who received great support from the spectators, had no trouble going one better than in 1993. Perricelli and Korzeniowski finished strongly to claim the silver and bronze medals. "If you can stand up at the finish," said the winner, "you must be okay."

Disqualified at the 1993 Championships and third last time, Korzeniowski added the world title to his Olympic laurels with a tremendous race in which he covered the 10k segments in 47:10, 45:10, 44:59, 43:17 (!) and 44:10 – halves of 1:55:02 and (in 30°C heat) 1:49:44 to win by 13 seconds from 1993 winner García. The latter held a 14-second lead at 15k but was caught by the pack in the 18th kilometre. Korzeniowski burst away with just over 2k to go. Rodriguez came through fast in the latter stages to overtake Ishutkin for third. All three medalists received two warnings.

The brilliant success of titles won by Korzeniowski (1996 Olympics, 1997 World, 1998 European) came to an end – albeit temporarily – with his disqualification shortly before 40 kilometres. By then it was clear anyway that, barring disaster, the new champion would apparently be Skurygin, who had been left in the lead when Fadejevs (ahead by 43secs at 15 kilometres and by 1 min 15 sec at 20 kilometres) was pulled at halfway. The order was Fadejevs 1:52:01, Skurygin 1:52:50, Shmalyuk and García 1:53:48, Korzeniowski and Clausen 1:54:14. By 30 kilometres Skurygin was over two minutes clear of Brugnetti (13th at halfway in 1:54:58) and Korzeniowski, and by 40 kilometres his advantage over the young Italian was more than three and a half minutes, a margin he maintained to the finish.

In November 2001 – following a lengthy investigation – it was revealed that the Russian Federation had decided to impose a two-year suspension on Skurygin (from August 1999) as he had failed a doping test after his victory. He was stripped of the title which was given to the original silver medalist Brugnetti, who at 22 became the youngest ever winner of this event.

Robert Korzeniowski was dominant again, collecting his third World Championship gold. His compatriot Lipiec built up a big lead in the first half of the race which included 24 laps of the walking circuit. By 30Km the leader was Fadejevs (2:14:26) from Korzeniowski and Potemin. Fadejevs then tried to break away before the Polish champion strode clear. He completed the last 10K in 44:21 and set a world-leading mark for 2001. The 1993 winner García collected his third world medal, a silver, while the surprising Hernández overtook Fadejevs for the bronze just 120m from the finish.

After four World or Olympic golds at 50Km, the great Robert Korzeniowski described this event as “the toughest race of my life.” Like Jefferson Pérez four days earlier, he broke the world record with negative splits. The defending champion, resident in France, was always prominent. At 15Km there were seven men in the lead pack; Korzeniowski, Erm, Voyevodin, Yu, Fadejevs, Nizhegorodov and 1999 disqualifie Skurygin. Two laps later the 35 year-old Pole began to stretch away and was six seconds ahead of Erm at the halfway mark.

At 38Km Erm was caught by Skurygin, who continued to close dramatically on Korzeniowski. The Russian covered 35K-45Km in 41:38 compared with Korzeniowski 42:22, but the vastly experienced Pole had saved himself for a 21:12 final lap to Skurygin's 21:45. “I had no other possibility than to set a new world best,” said Korzeniowski, whose 10K splits were 44:33, 44:16, 43:25, 42:28 and 42:43.

The results showing the splits for the race told a very simple story. At every 5Km mark except one, the leader was Kiryapkin. At 5Km – reached in 22:16 – a group of 11 were together. This had shrunk to three – all Russians – by 10Km (44:12). The pace kept increasing with Voyevodin and Kiryapkin together at 20Km (1:28:02). By 30Km (2:11:47) Kiryapkin was 26 seconds clear, and the screw was still turning. Kiryapkin's fourth 10Km section was covered in 42:52 (sub-3:35 pace), before he let up slightly with a 43:29 over the last fifth of the race. Voyevodin finished more than three minutes back, holding off the 20 year-old Schwazer, the youngest medallist in the history of the event. Of the top four, only Voyevodin failed to set a personal best.

Pérez was the early leader, passing 5Km in 23:36, but was 42 seconds behind Yu by 10Km, after the Chinese athlete's second 5Km split of 22:18. Neither man would finish. Ninety seconds behind Yu, the favourites were bidding their time. World record holder Deakes took over the lead just after the 30Km point, passing 35Km some six seconds ahead of European Champion Diniz, and extended his lead the rest of the way to the finish. Behind these two, Schwazer held back till the 35Km point on the advice of his coach, before gaining more than one and a half minutes on Deakes. He won the bronze but was furious that his move had come too late. Down in 19th place was Canada's Tim Berrett who became the first man to compete in nine World Championships. The temperature ranged from 25° to 30° during the race, resulting in the slowest winning time since 1999.

Japan's Yamazaki was vying for a place in the top 10 with one lap remaining, but was wrongly directed into the stadium at the start of the that full lap, rather than the end. He was registered as a non-finisher.

Disqualified: (r10.8) (1.) Sergey Kiryapkin RUS (3:38:35)

The race was held over a 25 lap 2Km course with the pace varying from 22:28 (for the first 5Km) to 21:31 (for the penultimate 5Km). The race was led for most of the way by Adams and Tallent, with Adams ahead at 20Km (1:28:24), and Tallent leading at 40Km (2:55:24). The 2005 champion Kiryapkin then accelerated, and with a last 5Km of 21:37, came home a winner by 2:41. His two halves were covered in 1:50:08 and 1:48:27. The next four also had negative splits, while those suffering most amongst the top finishers were the Australians and European Champion Diniz, who had led at halfway (1:50:08). Sixteen years after his world gold (also in Germany), 39 year-old García – contesting his ninth World Championships – took bronze to equal Korzeniowski's record event medal tally of four.

The winner had the same coach (Viktor Chegin) as the other two Berlin walks champions. "[He] gave me advice and I followed it," explained Kiryapkin, "start slowly then pick up speed continuously until the end of the race."

Regrettably Kiryapkin was one of six Russian athletes who, in January 2015, were heavily banned by the Russian Anti-Doping Agency due to irregularities in their biological passports. The full extent of their initial punishments by the RUSADA was disputed by the IAAF and the case was processed by the Court of Arbitration for Sport in 2015/2016. In March 2016 the CAS upheld the IAAF's appeal, annulling all of Kiryapkin's results from August 20, 2009. Coach Chegin was given a life ban, from February 2016. Besides his Berlin world title, Kiryapkin was also stripped of his 2012 Olympic gold and the 2012 IAAF World Race Walking Cup title. Both of those honours ultimately went to Tallent, who was seventh (then sixth) in Berlin.

Nymark became the rightful World Champion of 2009 and should now be regarded as the first Norwegian man to win such an honour, two days before javelin thrower Andreas Thorkildsen.

Disqualified: (r10.8) (1.) Sergey Bakulin RUS (3:41:24) & Sergey Kirlyapkin RUS (DNF)

Double European champion Diniz was the early leader, passing 15Km in 66:20. Then, as had happened in 2005, the Frenchman was disqualified for "lifting." The 2007 winner Deakes took over, passing 20Km in 1:28:03, and 30Km in 2:11:33. The Australian then slowed up, bothered by hamstring problems, and Bakulin, 31 seconds behind at 30Km was in front at 35Km. The Russian maintained 3:40 pace until the last 5Km, which he covered in 23:08. Behind him another Australian, Tallent, gained until 46Km then lost 48 seconds in the last 4Km and was passed by Nizhegorodov in the closing stages. The Daegu walks were all held on a 2Km loop in Gukchae-bosang Memorial Park.

Bakulin, like his predecessor Kirlyapkin, was caught doping under the IAAF Athlete Biological Passport programme. In January 2015, the Russian Anti-Doping Agency declared that he would be stripped of his Daegu gold, but the otherwise selective nature of the RUSADA's punishment in his and five other cases was disputed by the IAAF. The Court of Arbitration for Sport settled things in the IAAF's favour in March 2016. Bakulin was ultimately banned for three years and two months to February 2016, with the annulment of all his results from February 25, 2011. Kirlyapkin was also disqualified from this race, though he failed to finish anyway.

With an 8:30 start, the conditions were much better than for the 20Km walk, with the temperature ranging from 17 to 22°. The early leaders were Ryzhov and Noskov, who went through the first two 10Km sections in 44:26 and 1:28:36. The main pack was almost 20 seconds further back, but over the next 5Km Sudol and Heffernan closed fast on the leaders. Sudol led at the 25Km mark, and at 30Km (2:12:17) the leading pack began to dissolve. Diniz, on two warnings, dropped back as Heffernan began to apply pressure. The Irishman had a small lead over Ryzhov at 35Km. The Russian continued to fight, and it was only just past 40Km (2:55:04) that Heffernan finally got away. Covering the last 10Km in 42:52, Heffernan won by just over a minute, a rich reward after a series of fourth places in championship competition (some of which have since been upgraded to bronzes). Ryzhov was a fine second, with Australia's Tallent adding a fifth global medal to his collection.

"Being an Irishman taking on the Russian [walkers] in Moscow is like Ireland beating Brazil at football in Brazil," joked Heffernan, who won his gold medal on the 30th anniversary of Eamonn Coghlan's 5000m victory for Ireland at the first World Championships.

Russian fortunes dipped further when Ryzhov was found to have had an irregularity in his Athlete Biological Passport dating back to September 9, 2012. Furthermore, he failed a separate doping control test for a prohibited substance in July 2015. He was stripped of the Moscow silver medal. That instead went again to Tallent, with Glavan upgraded to bronze.

Tóth headed the world list prior to Beijing by more than six minutes, and he won in a manner which confirmed that dominance. The Slovak led the field for more than 49Km of the race. By halfway, reached in 1:51:17, he was 55 seconds up, and his second half of 1:49:15 gained a further 50 seconds on the field. The remarkably consistent Tallent, who produced a fourth consecutive World Championship effort under 3:45, was second, some 38 seconds ahead of Tanii. Tóth would have won by a greater margin but for a toilet break taken after 31Km. "I have to say that this 50km was maybe the easiest race in my whole life," said the winner. It was the first ever medal in any event for Slovakia

The 1993 champion García made a record 12th IAAF World Championship appearance in ninth place. One position in front, Ecuador's Chocho set another record. His country became the 74th with an athlete in a final or top eight in Beijing. The previous most was 73 in Osaka 2007. Beijing's total would rise to 76 with the placings of Algeria and Antigua & Barbuda in later events.

In light of a growing number of positive doping tests reported for Russia's walkers, there were no competitors from that country in any of the three walking disciplines in Beijing. Aleksandr Yargunkin had been entered originally for the 50Km, but himself failed an out-of-competition test on August 13, 2015.

Triple European Champion Diniz finally won a world title after being the most dominant winner of all at London 2017. The Frenchman stayed with the field for a full 14 minutes, and then was off. Nava, who would eventually place 16th, decided to follow, but was dropped after 5Km. Diniz passed 20Km in 1:27:18, and then speeded up. His second 20Km took 1:24:13. At that point, his lead was 5:43, an unprecedented advantage. The largest winning margins in the event's history were 3:36 by Korzeniowski in 2003, and 3:34 by Veniamin Soldatenko in 1976. Another record, at 39 years 224 days, the Frenchman became the oldest-ever male IAAF World Champion.

Diniz finished off his remarkable walk with a 10Km of 41:41 to forge a victory by 8:05, clocking the second fastest mark ever of 3:33:12. His last 20Km took just 1:23:19 (3:28:28 pace!), and his 25Km halves were 1:48:24/1:44:48. Arai and Kobayashi were the best of the mortals, with Arai clocking an excellent 3:41:17 for the silver medal, two seconds ahead of Kobayashi. Finishing fourth was Glavan. He'd initially filled that position both in 2013 and 2015 (20Km), though the Moscow placing was ultimately upgraded to bronze.

Mary Decker's dramatic 3000m win and Jarmila Kratochvílová's world 400m record were already brilliant highlights on August 10, 1983, which became known as "Wonderful Wednesday." The sprint relay ended the day with the second and final of Helsinki's world records, and a third gold for the world's greatest male athlete.

Lewis had a busy night. First he anchored the US to a win in their semi-final, before taking a winning lead in the long jump final. The final, two hours later, saw the US drawn in lane 3 with Olympic Champions USSR assigned the unfavourable inside draw. Individual bronze medallist King got the US off to a strong start, but by the end of the second leg, the USSR were level. Smith pulled clear on the final bend to give Lewis a one metre lead. This he improved to five metres. The time of 37.86 was 0.17 inside the previous world record, and this news caused great celebration among the US team. One of the first to congratulate Lewis was Jason Grimes, whom Lewis had just beaten into second place in the long jump. The Americans had dominated the championships so far and were firm favourites with the crowd.

"That was probably the best feeling I've ever had in track and field," said Lewis. "We were so far from home, but we were made to feel like we were at home."

Thanks to a fine anchor leg by Pietro Mennea, Italy pipped the USSR for the silvers. For the first time, eight teams bettered 39 seconds in the same race.

Rightful finalists: Japan

The United States retained their title, with Lewis winning his sixth world gold, but were not nearly as convincing as in 1983. It was Dennis Mitchell, not Lewis, who anchored the USA to wins in their heats and semi-finals. In the final, the Americans were pressurised by the USSR, who held a 2m lead after a fine last changeover. Lewis, inevitably, was able to catch and pass the Soviet anchorman Vladimir Krylov. The USSR, however, smashed their European record. The winning time was the third-fastest ever.

The Canadian team which so nearly won bronze were ultimately disqualified due to the involvement of Ben Johnson. The IAAF had annulled his 1987 World Championship performances (indoors and out) after his admittance of a doping violation.

It had already been a notable year for the 4x100m relay, with two world records by the USA earlier in the summer. After the US sweep in the 100m final, another record looked likely, and this was confirmed in the heats. The squad of Cason, Burrell, Mitchell and Marsh won in 37.75, just 0.08 down on the new world mark. Lewis was to replace Marsh in the final, in which the United States were given an unexpectedly close race by France. However, the US won clearly in a new world record.

“We had something to prove,” said Lewis, who won his eighth world gold, “and that was that American sprinters are supreme. All summer we’ve heard that the French have been saying that the US isn’t a proper team and that they can’t change the baton.”

that time in the final, where Burrell had to slow down to receive the baton from Mitchell. Nevertheless, the United States won easily from a star-studded British team.

“We pressed too much,” said Burrell. “We wanted to break the world record and that cost us our concentration. Our handoffs were not nearly as good as they were yesterday.”

Carl Lewis surrendered his place on the team to Leroy Burrell, who failed to qualify for the individual events in Stuttgart. However, one runner from the winning Helsinki quartet was among the medals again – Calvin Smith. He ran in Mitchell’s place in the heats and so was awarded an extra medal.

The United States' winning streak ended in the heats when Jon Drummond (2nd leg) and Tony McCall messed up their exchange. It looked as if McCall had gone off too slowly, leaving the pair no room and time to pass the baton. In fact, Drummond took the blame, admitting he was running faster than expected.

In any case, the USA would have had a tough race against Commonwealth champions Canada, who had the individual 100m silver and gold medalists – Surin and Bailey – on the last two legs. Their first three runners were the same as the team which won the bronze medals in 1993. Despite this, their last changeover was poor with Bailey looking backwards. Canada still won but were given a good race by Australia, who smashed their national record in both preliminary races. Even more of a revelation were Italy, for whom Floris made up two places on the anchor leg to take the bronze medals. Times in the final were slowed by the windy conditions on the final day.

Sweden ran a lap of honour after setting a national record of 38.74 when they won their heat. They progressed to the final where they were sadly disqualified.

The USA renaissance in the Athens 100m was not replicated in the relay. As in Gothenburg a bungled baton pass ensured the team never got through the heats. This time the culprits were Brian Lewis and Tim Montgomery on the first two legs. That left the way clear for Canada to retain the title, which they did from the outside lane in 37.86 with Bailey timed at 8.94 for his final flying 100m. Nigeria, who had only progressed as a fastest loser in the first round, finished second and Britain pipped Cuba for the bronze. A total of 13 teams broke 39.0, matching the 1995 record.

It should have been no contest between the USA and Britain but in fact Greene was extended on the anchor to ensure a US win in 37.59, the fifth-fastest ever time. The British quartet broke the European record with 37.73, the no. 8 mark of all time. Chambers took over fractionally ahead of Greene and was level to 50m, but in the second half of the race the world record holder drew well clear. By winning three golds at a single World Championships he equalled the record held by Carl Lewis (1983 & 1987) and Marita Koch (1983). With title holders Canada making a poor first change and being disqualified in the heats, the way was clear for Nigeria to initially claim bronze in 37.91, an African record, while Brazil set new South American figures.

A doping violation by Nigerian Innocent Asonze was later confirmed, dating back to June 1999. His suspension period was for two years, so the relay bronzes were awarded to the Brazilians.

2, [3]	Great Britain & NI	37.73
3, [4]	Brazil	38.05

This was the final event of the Edmonton championships and was packed with incident from the first round heats, held on the penultimate morning of the meeting. The United States lead-off runner in the heats, Jon Drummond, suffered cramp in the middle of his run and only just managed to pass on the baton to Mickey Grimes. In doing so, he stepped inside his lane line, causing his team to be disqualified. There was an appeal and the team were re-instated "in the spirit of fair play." Meanwhile medal favourites Britain and Cuba failed to finish after messing up their final exchanges. A further major contender, Jamaica, went out when their third leg runner forgot to start running as his incoming team-mate approached. The United States also very nearly went out in the semi-finals, when Montgomery had to stop at the end of the last zone in order to collect the baton safely from the experienced Dennis Mitchell.

In the final, it was Trinidad who led to halfway before Mitchell and Montgomery combined to give their country the biggest winning margin in this event since 1983. Semi-final winners Brazil came to grief on their second exchange and South Africa came through for silver ahead of Trinidad, for whom anchor runner Darrel Brown became the youngest ever male world championship medallist at 16 years 305 days.

Mitchell also set a record, initially becoming the first man to win World Championship gold medals across three decades. He had been part of the winning squad in 1987 and ran the third leg for the winning teams in 1991 and 1993. Unfortunately he was ultimately stripped of his Edmonton gold along with the United States team owing to the doping violation of Tim Montgomery. A 2005 judgement by the Court of Arbitration in Sport declared that all of the American's performances since March 31, 2001 should be annulled. All the relay medals were redistributed, with gold going to South Africa.

Rightful finalists: Canada

This was a repeat of 1999, a close race between the United States and Britain for whom Dwain Chambers ran the anchor leg. The US were without Maurice Greene, Tim Montgomery or Jon Drummond. Yet their squad of mainly 200m stars clocked a fast 37.99 in the semis.

In the final, Britain were drawn inside the US and were put in front by Campbell on leg 2. Devonish kept Britain ahead and passed over to Chambers just ahead of Brazil and the USA. Chambers forged ahead with his first strides, then the US anchorman Joshua "JJ" Johnson responded. The American closed the gap all the way down the straight and dipped at the finish 0.02 ahead. The result was disappointing enough for Britain, but silver turned to nothing when an earlier positive doping test on Chambers was confirmed. The subsequent promotion of the Netherlands to bronze meant that Troy Douglas became the oldest ever male World Championship medallist at 40 years 274 days.

Every final the United States has contested it has won, but for the third time in World Championship history its team failed to make it out of the heats when Marly Scales failed to connect with Leonard Scott.

Gardener gave Britain a one-metre advantage at the end of the first leg in the final, but excellent legs by Pognon and de Lépine gave France a metre lead over Trinidad & Tobago at the last changeover. Dovy surprisingly held off Darrel Brown for the gold medal, while Frater closed very quickly, just failing to catch Britain's Lewis-Francis for the bronzes.

The US team was favoured to win, but after Powell gained more than 3m on Dixon on the anchor leg in the heats, the odds began to shift towards Jamaica. The final saw surprising de Lima leading at the first exchange with a 0.03 advantage over Patton. Britain were 1½m behind, and Jamaica's Anderson a further two metres back. Bolt and Pickering were the fastest on the second leg, both running 9.05 seconds, with Britain, USA and Brazil level at the halfway point and Jamaica still two metres or so in arrears.

Gay confirmed his sprint double with a searing 9.05 leg on the bend, giving the US a two-metre lead over Britain at the final exchange, with Jamaica in fifth place. Powell, eager to make up for his relatively poor run in the 100m final, ate up the deficit, catching Jamaica at the Beijing Olympics. Following the 2017 annulment of that mark because of a doping violation of Nesta Carter, the Berlin 37.31 can now be regarded as a legitimate world record, beating the time of 37.40 set by US teams in 1992 and 1993.

Trinidad's national record of 37.62 was the fastest ever non-winning effort. The relay gold was Jamaica's seventh of the championships, which exceeded their total gold count of six from the first 11 World Championships.

Devonish won a record fifth world medal, or sixth if we include the 2003 silver which was rescinded because of Dwain Chambers's doping violation.

Even without injured Asafa Powell and suspended Steve Mullings, Jamaica were favourites to retain their world title. They qualified comfortably with Dexter Lee substituting for Usain Bolt. Carter again led off the Jamaican quartet in the final, and was level with Trinidad's Bledman at the first exchange. Frater then ran a superb leg, giving

1, [7] Jamaica	37.31 <sup>WR</sup>
2, [6] Trinidad & Tobago	37.62
3, [3] Great Britain & NI	38.02
4, [5] Japan	38.30

Between 1920 and 1987 the USA won 15 of 16 global championships available, but between 1988 and 2008 the record was seven of 15. After Berlin 2009 it was seven out of 16, because after apparently winning their heat in 37.97, it was successfully protested (by British officials) that their final change between Shawn Crawford and Darvis Patton had taken place before the start of the designated zone. Jamaica – without Powell or Bolt – took things very carefully in running 38.60 behind Italy in the second heat.

Expectations were again high for a world record performance by Jamaica in the final. At the end of the first leg Britain, Jamaica and Trinidad were virtually level. Michael Frater gave Jamaica a slight lead over Trinidad, but the Trinidad changeover was better than the Jamaican, and Bolt was a metre behind Trinidad after 10 metres. This became a one-metre advantage at the final changeover and Powell took Jamaica three metres clear for victory.

The biomechanical analysis told us that Bolt took hold of the baton at 199.5m and he ran with it until 297m. According to the times shown in the analysis, the Jamaican baton took 9.05 to cover the 100m section from 200m to 300m (Bolt) and 8.73 from 300m to 400m (Powell)

The crowd appeared disappointed with the time of 37.31, as it was "only" the second-fastest of all time behind the 37.10 clocked by Jamaica a slight advantage over the USA. Blake flew round the curve and would have given Jamaica a lead of two metres, had not a collision then occurred between the USA and Britain. Incoming Patton bumped into waiting Aikines-Aryeetey, ruining the chances of both teams and that of Trinidad when the tumbling Patton rolled into their path.

Bolt was therefore left with an advantage of nearly eight metres when he took the baton. He came home in 37.04, breaking by 0.06 the world record which had stood since the Beijing Olympics. No official splits were available, but times taken from video would appear to be 10.2, 9.0, 9.0 and 8.8. Behind the Jamaicans, France found themselves as fortuitous silver medallists in 38.20, with St. Kitts even more surprised to win bronze just ahead of Poland. "We were feeling wonderful," said Blake, who was judged to have made a pivotal contribution to the win and the record.

Carter held a slight lead on the first leg, then a good changeover gave the USA the lead. Rodgers produced another excellent pass to Salaam to give the USA a good metre's lead at halfway over Jamaica and Britain. Salaam still had a slight lead approaching the final changeover, with Ashmeade closing, and Britain close behind. However, this time the USA's pass was poor, with Gatlin taking an ungainly stride in Bolt's lane. The Jamaican was past the American instantly and went away to win by more than three metres. Britain finished third and their quartet embarked on a lap of celebration, but were ultimately disqualified for a zone infraction on the full-stretch pass between Aikines-Aryeetey and Ellington. Canada, who suffered a similar fate themselves at London 2012, ended up with the bronzes. For Bolt it was an eighth gold medal, equalling the then World Championship record of Carl Lewis, Michael Johnson and Allyson Felix.

The heats were extraordinary, featuring an Asian record of 37.92 by China and unprecedented fastest loser times of 38.01 and 38.03. Quickest of all were Jamaica, who clocked 37.41 without Bolt and with a further last-moment change due to a collision in practice between Dwyer and Tyquendo Tracey, who had been due to run the anchor leg in the heat.

Bromell gave the USA a slight lead over Jamaica's Carter on the opening leg in the final. Gatlin extended the lead over Powell. With a better exchange than Jamaica, the USA headed towards the final changeover with a clear advantage. Gay and Rodgers fumbled the baton pass, with Rogers appearing to start running too early. Bolt took advantage to bring Jamaica home almost five metres ahead of the USA, who clocked 37.77 but were then disqualified for passing the baton outside the exchange zone.

Britain also came to grief on their last exchange, meaning that the well-drilled Chinese team ultimately earned a set of silver medals. Their third runner Su was 26 on the day of the race. The crowd in the Bird's Nest sang "Happy Birthday" after the team's interview by the stadium presenters.

Ujah took a metre lead for Britain over the USA on the opening leg of the final, with McLeod in touch for Jamaica. Gatlin made no inroads on the British lead, and Gemili handed over with a metre lead to Talbot. At the final change, Britain were still up on the USA with Jamaica, and Bolt, a further 2½m back on his final race. The home team exchanged relatively late in the zone, crucially enabling the outgoing Mitchell-Blake to achieve an optimal running speed. Coleman (8.87) bore down on the British anchorman, but Mitchell-Blake (9.04) held on to cross the line with a new European record of 37.47. In the meantime, poor Bolt, in his 44th race at the World Championships, dramatically pulled up with a torn left hamstring. Japan came through for bronze.

The biomechanical report of the event showed that Britain's men spent the least time in the changeover zones, with a total of 5.585 seconds compared with the USA 5.635. The difference between those times of 0.05 was the same as Britain's winning margin. The exchange process between Gemili and Talbot in particular was a beauty, taking just 0.105. The British were also praised for their final exchange, which took place relatively late in the zone (past the halfway point). This "may have enabled Mitchell-Blake to achieve an optimal running speed during the handover which ensured near maximal speed at transition exit."

Joy at the home team winning was diluted by the sad way for Bolt to finish his career. He would have needed a split of 8.71 to catch Britain, the sort of time he was producing in his heyday.

Smith got up to continue his run, but had been passed by the runners of five other teams. Meanwhile USSR anchor runner – Olympic Champion Viktor Markin – started with a handsome 10m lead from the FRG. He held this advantage to the finish. There was great encouragement for Moses, but after a fast start the American was only able to improve his team's position by one.

The USA's problems started when individual runner-up Mike Franks was withdrawn from the squad due to illness. Nevertheless, their final quartet – including 400m hurdles winner Edwin Moses on the anchor – was expected to have few difficulties in the final. Instead, the USSR sprang a complete surprise by inserting Sergey Lovachov on the first leg. The Uzbeki, rested from the individual event, clocked 45.23 to take the lead.

On the second leg, Troshchilo surprisingly pulled away from individual bronze medalist Sunder Nix. Smith caught the USSR's third leg runner Chernetskiy and was running level at the end of the last bend, when an accidental collision knocked the American to the ground.

Two teams, the USA and Great Britain, were virtually level at the first changeover, but thereafter the USA pulled clear to make amends for their 1983 disaster. Any hopes the British had of challenging the USA disappeared when Antonio McKay clocked 44.20 versus Roger Black's 44.81 on the third leg. He was able to give Reynolds – now running much better than he had in the individual final – a lead of 7m. The winning time was a low-altitude world best. Great Britain broke the European record in second place.

Just as the French fancied their chances in the sprint relay against the United States, so Britain hoped to cause an upset in the long relay. They and the USA were impressive heat winners, both in under three minutes. Japan found a national record of 3:01.26 insufficient for a place in the final. Both countries had rested their top runners for the final, but because of the United States' strict selection policy, the world number one – Michael Johnson – was not included as he did not run 400m in the US trials.

Britain gambled by switching individual silver medalist Black from his usual anchor position to the first leg. He gave his team an early lead, but the US went in front at halfway thanks to Watts's 43.4, the fastest split of the race. On the third leg, Regis – the 1987 200m bronze medalist – closed the gap. This meant that the individual World Champion Pettigrew would only have a stride's advantage over 400m hurdler Akabusi.

Around the first bend, Pettigrew had to swerve to avoid a poking cameraman. The American surged at 200m, but the 32-year-old Briton followed and was able to edge ahead in the final 30m for a thrilling victory. "The guys before me did everything right," said Akabusi. "It was the big occasion and we had to grab it."

Stuttgart 1993

The disappointments in this event from 1991 were quickly forgotten when a United States squad which included history's three fastest men obliterated the world record. Valmon (44.5) had built up a 10m lead after the first exchange, and sub-44 splits by Watts and Reynolds quadrupled this. The baton was then passed to Johnson, who appeared to run a conservative first 200m before letting rip in the last half lap. A hurried comparison of the photo-cell time at the "bell" and the finishing time of 2:54.29 revealed that Johnson had run quicker than 43 seconds. His time was confirmed as 42.94. That figure was taken from photo-finish pictures taken at the start and finish of Johnson's leg supplied by Seiko. Using different methods, the DLV Biomechanics Report from Stuttgart 1993 variously showed timings of 42.91 and 42.92.

Individual bronze medalist Kitur clocked the fastest non-US split of the race to win silver for Kenya, while 1987 individual champion Schönlebe held on to win a bronze for Germany. Defending Champions Britain were eliminated in the heats.

The winning mark stood as a world record until a United States team clocked 2:54.20 at the 1998 Goodwill Games. In 2008 the later mark was cancelled due to the involvement of Antonio Pettigrew who admitted to doping violations between 1997 and 2003. An unsanctioned Pettigrew also contributed to the US victory in Stuttgart with his second leg run in the heats.

Even without Reynolds and Johnson, the individual gold and silver medalists, the USA won their heat in 2:58.23. Close behind were Jamaica, for whom Davian Clarke, a junior, clocked 43.7. The two teams dominated the final. At halfway the USA were around five metres ahead, but on the third stage Reynolds put them out of reach, clocking 43.74 on a day when no-one else broke 44.1. The next fastest in the race was Michael Johnson's 44.11 anchor for the USA. A strong anchor leg by Bada put Nigeria into third place.

Rightful finalists: Austria

British hopes of another famous victory over the USA, as in the 1936 Olympics and 1991 World Championships, were boosted by the news that Michael Johnson was not running, but in a tense race the Americans prevailed and the Jamaicans (setting a national record) were also a major factor with little more than a stride covering the three team s at the finish. Poland, who had lowered their national record to inside 3 min in the heats, placed a distant fourth.

That's how the result stood until 2008, when Pettigrew admitted to doping violations and gave the IAAF no choice but to disqualify the USA and redistribute the medals. With Britain as rightful champions, the record number of different countries winning golds in Athens was increased by one to a record of 26.

It was Pettigrew who gave his team a big lead on the second stage thanks to a 43.1 clocking. Black moved into second for Britain before fading and being passed by Jamaica's Haughton (44.4) some 10m behind the American. Baulch (44.08) ran a spectacular first 200 to take the lead for Britain on the third leg before the lactic acid got to work and he was re-passed by Jones with McFarlane a close third. The placings stayed the same on the anchor leg although Britain's Richardson (43.57) and Jamaica's Clarke (43.51) closed up on Washington (44.00).

Although without the injured Jerome Young, the Americans were still a class apart, leading throughout from Poland and Jamaica. Davis and Pettigrew combined to reach halfway three metres clear of Poland and Taylor seized the opportunity to atone for his 400m hurdles debacle by pulling far away with a 43.92 leg. Johnson pattered around in 43.49 for the seventh-quickest ever time of 2:56.45. That originally brought his World Championships gold medal tally to a record-breaking nine, but of the presence of doping offender Pettigrew meant that Johnson and his compatriots would be ultimately stripped of their medals for the second World Championships in succession.

Conspicuous by their absence from the final were Britain who, despite a 44.24 anchor by Baulch, failed to qualify after a decision to rest Mark Richardson.

For the third consecutive World Championships, Pettigrew ran a sub-44 second leg to help the US to victory. Their win was cancelled when in 2008 Pettigrew admitted he had been taking drugs at the time. The United States performance in the heats (without Pettigrew) was also annulled due to the presence of Jerome Young who in 2009 was given a retrospective life ban dating back to 1999.

The race had developed into a three-way battle between the Bahamas, the USA and Jamaica. It was Bahamas who led from the start, having put their individual champion, Moncur, on leg 1. They continued to lead until the last changeover, by which time Brew had overtaken McIntosh with Jamaica close behind.

The US anchor was hurdler Taylor, who had failed to reach the final of his event. He made amends by holding the lead to the finish and clocking the fastest split of the race, 43.71. Behind him, Haughton moved Jamaica into second spot before Munnings fought back to earn Bahamas silvers, medals which would eventually turn to gold.

Rightful finalists: Australia

The United States had the individual gold and silver medallists but were not able to shake off powerful squads from France and Jamaica. Washington (44.6) put the US into a narrow lead after leg 2. Brew widened this advantage to 10m during his 44.67 run but by the end of it Clarke had put Jamaica in front with his 44.04. France were in contact so Blackwood, Young, and the exciting Raquil (4-1-3 in the original result of the individual final) were to battle it out on the last leg. Blackwood was passed by Young on the last bend. Raquil then moved through to challenge but could not quite catch the individual World Champion, despite splitting 44.15 compared with Young's 44.31.

As in other Paris men's relay, doping revelations were to affect the final outcome. In 2004 a doping violation of Calvin Harrison was confirmed. He had failed a test at the US Championships of June 2003 and a suspension of two years was imposed in retrospect. All his results since that date were annulled, including Paris where he had placed sixth individually and ran the opening leg for the winning United States team. The relay golds therefore went to the French team including Stéphane Diagona who in fact retired in July 2004, one week before the news broke that he had become a World Champion. In 2009 it was confirmed that US anchorman Young was also disqualified from Paris. Both Tyree Washington (1997 & 2003) and Derrick Brew (2001 & 2003) forfeited a pair of world relay golds through no fault of their own.

One beneficiary of the disqualifications was McFarlane of Jamaica, who in Paris effectively and uniquely claimed a fifth successive world silver.

The United States team was given fair warning by Bahamas when they ran 2:59.73 in the first heat without their top runner, Chris Brown, while Jamaica finished just behind (2:59.75). The US team, resting Rock and Wariner, won their heat comfortably in 3:00.48. In the final Rock gave the US a 2 metres advantage over Jamaica and the Bahamas with a 44.7 opener, and Brew extended the lead to 5m with a 44.3. Wariner's training partner Williamson maintained the lead over Andrae Williams of the Bahamas with a 44.40 split, with Jamaica further 4m back, just ahead of Britain. The US baton change gave them a further 2m advantage, and while Brown closed to within 2m with 100m to go, Wariner was able to move away in the finishing straight to win his country's 100th world championship gold. Brown produced the fastest leg (43.42), marginally quicker than Wariner (43.49), and Jamaica easily held off Britain for bronze, with the Britons running the best ever time for a fourth place.

Trinidad and Tobago crossed the line in sixth place, but were disqualified for illegally changing their declared running order.

The two questions to ask before the final were would the US threaten the world record, would the Bahamas be run close for the silver medal. The answer was "no" to both questions. Merritt set the USA off to an easy victory with an opener of 44.4, and successively the USA produced the fastest run on each leg, with Angelo Taylor (43.8), Darold Williamson (44.32) and Jeremy Wariner (43.10) carrying his team to a win by well over 40m. No world record, but nevertheless the second fastest legitimate time in history. Behind them Jamaica were in the silver medal position until Ayre succumbed to individual fourth-placer Brown. Then, shockingly, Poland also got past the Jamaican anchor, who, suffering a cramp, was reduced to 46.54 in the final.

The only drama in the heats came with the disqualification of 2001 champions Bahamas, who had finished second in their heat behind Belgium (3:02.13), but were disqualified for a faulty changeover.

Taylor (45.4) gave the USA a slim lead at the end of the first leg over Britain and the Dominican Republic. Halfway through the second leg Wariner led by a metre from Soriano, but then the American – suddenly looking like the Wariner of 2007 – fled from the opposition and handed over more than 10m clear after a 43.6 leg. In his wake Bingham also gained an important advantage from the pack. Clement extended the US lead by another 6m with his 44.72, and Merritt did the same on the anchor leg with a 44.16 split.

Rightful finalists: Bahamas

The final was a much closer affair than it should have been as the USA were reliant on experienced but below form 400 hurdlers Jackson and Taylor. Nixon (44.8) led at the end of the first leg by a metre from Jonathan Borlée. Jackson ran 45.3, and was swamped by Gonzales (44.2) and Mogawane (43.9) who took South Africa to within two metres of the Jamaicans. Taylor ran 45.00, but he too lost ground to Jamaica (Hylton 44.94) and South Africa (de Beer 44.88). The USA were rescued by Merritt, who waited until the finishing straight before moving smoothly past van Zyl and Green to win.

The South African included Paralympic Champion amputee Oscar Pistorius in the heats (45.58 on the first leg), but he was controversially replaced in their final line-up. Nevertheless Pistorius became the first athlete with a disability to win a medal at the World Championships. Less happy were former champions Bahamas, who paid the price for resting their best men for the heats and were eliminated. Gallingly, they were kept out of the final by a Russian team which were ultimately disqualified because on an earlier doping violation by their anchorman Alekseyev.

Rightful finalists: Poland

The US led from the gun in the final, with Verburg heading Williams 45.0 to 45.3. Individual silver medalist McQuay, who had produced a 43.4 in the 2012 Olympic final, only needed 44.1 to extend the lead by a further two metres, though Belgium's Kevin Borlée was fastest of all with 44.04. Despite a leg of 'only' 44.87 by 19 year-old Hall, the US was again able to widen its lead by 1200m, this time to 1.34 seconds. Belgium, with the third Borlée brother in as many legs (Dylan), held onto second by less than a metre from Russia, with Britain two metres further back. Merritt came home 10m clear of Jamaica. Their anchor Francis ran brilliantly to move from fifth to second and then hold off the lethal finish of Krasnov. The 18 year-old Jamaican clocked 44.05, much the fastest of all the anchors.

In 2017, Russia were stripped of the bronzes because their lead-off man Dyldin was sanctioned for failing a doping re-test of his sample from the Beijing Olympics.

Quow gave Trinidad a small advantage over the US and Britain on the first leg, and Gordon slightly extended that on the second leg with a fine last 100m. Belgium, missing an injured Dylan Borlée, was more than 10m back in sixth place, but then Kevin Borlée ran 43.98 to bring his team back into contention. Trinidad still held an advantage at the final takeover, then as the leaders battled down the back straight, Jamaica's Francis came flying past everyone. One felt that the 20 year-old might pay for his impatience, and so it was as Merritt and Cedenio went past the now suffering Jamaican in the finishing straight. Britain's Rooney also edged Francis for the bronze (by 0.004), though having started so far back, the Jamaican did end up with the fastest split of the race (43.52). Merritt collected his sixth successive World Championship relay gold, starting with the one he was awarded for running in the heats only 10 years earlier in Helsinki.

Botswana found a time of 2:59.95 insufficient for the final. Even quicker in the heats was Olympic Champions Bahamas (2:59.24), but they were disqualified for a lane violation.

London 2017

Final (Aug 13)

1,	Trinidad & Tobago	2:58.12
2,	United States	2:58.61
3,	Great Britain & NI	2:59.00
4,	Belgium	3:00.04
5,	Spain	3:00.65
6,	Cuba	3:01.10
7,	Poland	3:01.59
8,	France	3:01.79

London (formally known as Wilbert London III) started the final well for the USA, his 44.8 taking a five-metre lead over Britain and Spain. Roberts maintained his team's advantage at halfway, now from Trinidad, for whom Richards clocked 43.5 after a screaming back-straight. Britain were next, with the chasing pack well back.

Cherry extended the US lead to nearly 10m with 500m remaining, but Cedenio swallowed up the advantage in the next 100m. The lead was down to a metre at the final exchange, with Britain an isolated third. Gordon sat in on Kerley before going past in the last 50m to win. Rooney also gained ground to earn what would be his fourth world relay medal, once doping adjustments were applied. The battle for the minor places was won by Belgium, anchored by K Borlée in 43.60.

Jamaica, Bahamas and Botswana all made the mistake of not fielding stronger teams in the heats. All were favoured to do well in the finals, but none qualified.

WOMEN

100 Metres Helsinki 1983

Final (Aug 8) (-0.5)			Reactions
1, Marlies Göhr	GDR	10.97	0.131
2, Marita Koch	GDR	11.02	0.172
3, Diane Williams	USA	11.06	0.177
4, Merlene Ottey	JAM	11.19	0.186
5, Angela Bailey	CAN	11.20	0.157
6, Helinä Marjamaa	FIN	11.24	0.140
7, Angella Taylor	CAN	11.30	0.185
Evelyn Ashford	USA	DNF	0.186

One of the most eagerly-awaited women's clashes in Helsinki ended shockingly when Ashford tore muscles her both her gluteus maximus and right hamstring halfway through the final. It transpired that she had been carrying an injury since July.

Both Göhr (10.81) and Ashford (10.79) had set world records in 1983, so it was a surprise to see them drawn together in the same second-round heat. The American won the race, but was seen limping after the finish. Nevertheless, she returned to win her semi in 10.99, the first sub-11 clocking ever at a major championships.

Göhr also won her semi impressively, but it was another GDR athlete, Koch, who got the best start in the final. At 30m, biomechanical analysis showed that Göhr (4.10) led from Koch (4.11) and Ashford (4.13). The American had a moderate start, but was closing on the GDR pair before suddenly hopping into the air. Göhr went on to win from Koch. "I am very disappointed," said Ashford, "but I'll be back next year. I have a few scores to settle." The USA did gain a medal though Williams, though she later admitted to having used steroids between 1982 and 1984.

1, Silke Gladisch	GDR	10.90	0.141
2, Heike Drechsler	GDR	11.00	0.210

7, Pam Marshall	USA	11.19	0.242
(5), Angella Issajenko	CAN	DQ (11.09)	0.203

Rightful finalist: Alice Brown USA

The semi-finals indicated that the GDR were likely to repeat their Helsinki success. Gladisch won the first race in a windy 10.82, while the other went to Drechsler in a legal championship record of 10.95. The standard was fierce, with clockings of 11.07w and 11.15 insufficient for a place in the final. Defending Champion Göhr was among the non-qualifiers.

Following the exploits of Ben Johnson in the men's 100m final 20 minutes earlier, there were hopes of a record in the women's race. These were blighted by a change in direction of the wind.

Gladisch dominated the final from start to finish. At halfway she led with 6.07 from Nuneva (6.10), Ottey and Issajenko (both 6.12). At this point Drechsler – who was clearly last out of the blocks – was sixth (6.18), but she produced the best finish to claim the silver.

Issajenko was disqualified following her 1989 admission of a doping violation at the time of the World Championships. She originally placed fifth.

1, Katrin Krabbe	GER	10.99	0.157
2, Gwen Torrence	USA	11.03	0.152
3, Merlene Ottey	JAM	11.06	0.196
4, Irina Privalova	URS	11.16	0.206
5, Evelyn Ashford	USA	11.30	0.202
6, Juliet Cuthbert	JAM	11.33	0.180
7, Mary Onyali	NGR	11.39	0.201
8, Carlette Guidry	USA	11.52	0.202

Ottey, unbeaten in 56 finals since Rome 1987, consolidated her status as favourite with a 10.78w semi-final. The other semi was won in a legal 10.94 by the European Champion Krabbe, who was suddenly producing her best form of the season.

In the final, Krabbe got an excellent start and edged into a clear lead. Ottey was away poorly. At halfway it was Krabbe on 6.07 from Torrence (6.16) and Ottey (6.17). The tall German was never threatened. Ottey drew level with Torrence but the American responded in the last 20m to clinch the silver.

After the finish, the runners all looked up to the giant scoreboard. It wasn't until she saw the replay that Krabbe realised she had won the unified Germany's first world title. She jumped in the air and set off on a victory lap. The winning time was the fastest ever into a wind as strong as 3.0 metres per second.

Last in heat eight was Tehani Kirby of the Northern Mariana Islands. At 14 years five days, she became the youngest-ever competitor in World Championship history. Her record will never be beaten as later IAAF regulations prevent athletes of that age from competing at senior world championships.

At the Barcelona Olympic Games, Devers took the 100m title by just one hundredth of a second. Stuttgart saw her win again by an even narrower margin.

Devers, Ottey, Torrence and Privalova – four of the first five from the 1992 Olympic final – drew lanes 5-6-3-4 in the final. Privalova and Devers were away quickest. By 60m the American had a visible lead, while Ottey and Torrence had caught the Russian.

In the last five metres Ottey surged and drew level with Devers, who produced a "double dip" – first with her chest then with her head. The two women crossed the line together. Torrence was the obvious bronze medalist.

At first sight, it looked as if the Jamaican had won: she had been moving the quickest in the last few strides before the finish line. There was a long wait, during which the replays showed that Devers' head had crossed the line first. But it was not clear whose torso was ahead. The result was announced as first, Devers 10.81, second Ottey 10.82.

The unfortunate Ottey – so often a bronze or silver medalist – had missed out yet again. A protest was lodged by the Jamaicans and the Jury of Appeal looked again at the photograph. The result was revised, with both women clocking 10.82, but the order was unchanged.

"I feel for Merlene," said Devers, "but I also feel that I beat her." Her winning margin was actually just one thousandth: 10.811 to 10.812 (not 10.816/10.820 as widely reported). The photograph of the finish taken from the inside of the track showed Devers' right shoulder just ahead of Ottey. When presented with her silver medal the following day, the Jamaican received a two-minute ovation from the sympathetic crowd.

In contrast to the closeness of the Stuttgart final Torrence won by the comfortable margin of 0.09 from Ottey and Privalova. Even so, she was not certain she had won and paused in her celebrations to watch a replay of the race on the stadium scoreboard.

The three medallists were, improbably, drawn in the same semi-final which Torrence won in a world-leading 10.84 from Ottey (10.85) and Privalova (10.90). An unlucky fifth in that race was Greece's Thánou, whose time of 11.09 was the same as the winning time in the other semi.

Ottey's silver gave her a record 11 World Championship medals. Torrence brought her total to seven. "The 100 is every sprinter's dream; it's a glamour event," she said. "Everyone knows who's the world's fastest woman. I've been after that title and I'm glad I got it."

remained in American hands thanks to Jones. Although hailed as a precocious sprinting sensation since she set world age-15 bests of 11.17 and 22.76 in 1991 this was her senior debut in a major international championship. Her success was one of the brightest moments of the Athens World Championships, and she was regarded as the world woman athlete of the 1997, but the story had a sad ending as noted below in the report of the 2001 100m.

Jones had to work hard for victory against a much shorter opponent, Pintusevich. She was away slightly the faster but they were locked together at 50m (6.03) and 60m (6.97); Pintusevich was 1/100th ahead at 70m but they were level again at 80m before Jones moved into a 2/100ths lead to win in a personal best of 10.83. Pintusevich, who set a Ukrainian record of 10.85, at first thought she had won and started a lap of honour, only to sink to her knees when she heard the official result. Two metres behind, Fynes edged Arron for the bronze medal.

For Ottey – fourth in 1983, third in 1987 and 1991, second in 1993 and 1995 – the hoped for progression to first, at the age of 37, did not materialise. She failed to hear the recall gun for a false start and sprinted flat out for over 50m. She walked back very slowly while the others waited at the start but the damage was done and she gave up when in the race proper she realised she couldn't catch the leaders.

The event set new standards for a single meeting with no fewer than nine marks inside 10.87. The quarter-finals saw Thánou and Miller throw off the wraps surprisingly early with personal bests of 10.86, only for defending champion Jones to stamp her authority with a year's best of 10.76. In the first semi-final Miller and Thánou, drawn together, pulled out all the stops to improve again to 10.81 and 10.82 while Jones was content to win her race in 10.83 ahead of Olympic Champion Devers, whose 10.94 was her best for two years.

Miller returned less than two hours later to notch another lifetime best of 10.79 in the final but Jones was still a metre ahead in 10.70, her best-ever low altitude time. She covered the first 50m in 5.93, the second in 4.77, reaching 60m a metre up in 6.85.

past. Even though this was not the final, the loss was significant as Jones had made a habit of winning all of her races. Seeing her behind the opposition for once was an unusual sight.

In the final, the two were drawn together again. The Ukrainian again got the best start and held off Jones, who had previously won 42 successive finals in the event. Thánou repeated her 1999 bronze.

"There is only one way to beat Marion," said the ecstatic winner, "and that is not to make any mistakes."

In October 2007, Jones confessed to doping violations dating back to just before the 2000 Olympic Games. All her performances from September 1, 2000 were annulled by the IOC and/or the IAAF. These included three Olympic golds from Sydney 2000. Worse, she was imprisoned for six months in 2008 for having lied to US Federal Agents investigating the Californian Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative (Balco) steroid affair. In 2012, Block was also confirmed as a doping offender, but only for a period which began after the Edmonton World Championships.

Jones appeared to be set for another victory after breaking 11 seconds in the first two rounds. In her semi-final, she was drawn to the left of Pintusevich-Block, who got the better start and refused to let Jones

Rightful finalists: Marina Kislova RUS & Merlene Ottey SLO

Four of the Edmonton finalists reached that stage again, though not Marion Jones who had just given birth. The defending champion, now known as Zhanna Block, was not quite at her best because of a back injury. White had emerged as the favourite after recent wins in London (10.93) and Berlin (10.84w). In the final it was another American, Edwards, who was quickest away from lane 1. She led for the first half of the race before White powered through to win in 10.85, while Block also finished strongly for the bronze.

Six days later, and after also claiming the gold at 200m, it was confirmed that White had tested positive in Paris for the stimulant monodafinil, which, though not on the list of banned drugs, was regarded by the IAAF as "related" to an illegal substance. White claimed she had taken the drug provigil (containing monodafinil) because she had been diagnosed as suffering from narcolepsy, a rare condition characterised by sudden episodes of deep sleep. However, she had not declared the drug on doping control forms. Pending hearings by the IAAF and the United States Anti-Doping Agency, White was allowed to compete in post-Paris meetings and placed third in the yearly world athlete standings after Hestrie Cloete and Carolina Klüft.

In May 2004, White admitted having taken anabolic steroids and erythropoietin (EPO) over a three-year period. She was suspended for two years and all her results from December 15, 2000 – including those from Edmonton and Paris – were annulled. After nine months, Edwards was declared the rightful World Champion.

The list of doping offenders continued in 2012 when Block was found guilty of "Taking advantage of, use or attempted use of a prohibited substance or a prohibited technique." Like Jones, she was identified as a customer of the Californian Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative (Balco). As well as a two-year suspension, all of Ukrainian's results from November 30, 2001 were annulled. So she kept her Edmonton gold but lost her Paris medal.

8,	Yuliya Nesterenko	BLR	11.13	0.144

Campbell, unbeaten at 100m in 2005 prior to Helsinki, was the favourite, together with Arron and Sturup, who had each lost once. All won their first two races with Arron fastest of the day with 11.03 in her quarter-final. The semi-finals featured Arron at her best in the first race, as she effortlessly passed Campbell with 20m to go to clock 10.96. Williams showed surprising strength in the other race, holding off Sturup and Nesterenko in 11.03.

Sturup and Barber reacted quickest in the rainsoaked final, but Sturup was much tidier in her pick-up, and led the field for 60m. Williams had got a good start, and was in second from 10m on. Showing great power she drove away from the field, with Arron in second place at 75m but trying too hard and tightening up. Campbell edged past Arron in the last 10m as Sturup faded, but the Jamaican was never going to catch the diminutive (1.57/57Kg) Williams, who nevertheless did not know she had won until watching the scoreboard replay.

Final (Aug 27) (-0.2)

1,	Veronica Campbell	JAM	11.01	To 1000th 0.167 (11.006)
2,	Lauryn Williams	USA	11.01	0.145 (11.008)
3,	Carmelita Jeter	USA	11.02	0.189

4,	Torri Edwards	USA	11.05	0.141
5,	Kim Gevaert	BEL	11.05	0.143
6,	Christine Arron	FRA	11.08	0.164
7,	Kerron Stewart	JAM	11.12	0.177
8,	Damola Osayomi	NGR	11.26	0.175

Campbell and Edwards had won their respective national titles, had seasonal bests of 10.89 and 10.90 respectively, and were co-favourites for the top spot. Jeter ran the fastest time of the day (11.07) in the first heat, with Ottey eliminated in her eighth appearance over a record span of 24 years at the World Championships. At 47 years 108 days, she became the oldest ever runner to compete at a World Championship and contested a record 59th race. Campbell and Edwards were the fastest in the second round and the next day were winners of the semi-finals.

In the final Gevaert took an early lead, with Williams and Edwards just behind. At halfway Williams had just edged ahead, but there was only 0.03 covering the top six at halfway. Campbell then powered to the front, leading by 30cm at the 70m mark. Williams closed sharply at the end of the race (as did Jeter), and it was virtually impossible to tell who had won. After a suspenseful wait – during which both Campbell and Williams were shown as first on the scoreboard – Campbell got the decision 11.006 to 11.008. Only the 1993 race was closer with 0.001 the winning margin. Behind them Jeter, who had a best of 11.48 before 2007, finished just 0.01 behind for the bronze medal, while Edwards made it a 2-3-4 for the USA. The first two reversed their positions from 2005.

A biomechanical study of the race (by Osaka's University of Health and Sport Sciences) reported that Campbell achieved the highest speed of all the finalists, 10.56 metres per second at 55m.

Final (Aug 17) (0.1)

1,	Shelly-Ann Fraser	JAM	10.73	0.146
2,	Kerron Stewart	JAM	10.75	0.170
3,	Carmelita Jeter	USA	10.90	0.160
4,	Veronica Campbell-Brown	JAM	10.95	0.135
5,	Lauryn Williams	USA	11.01	0.158

7,	Chandra Sturupp	BAH	11.05	0.137
8,	Aleen Bailey	JAM	11.16	0.173

Jeter, Stewart and Campbell-Brown all cracked 11 seconds in the first two rounds, then Olympic Champion Fraser showed her form in the semi-final with a 10.79 into a headwind. Jeter ran a lifetime best of 10.83 to win the other semi.

All four Jamaicans qualified for the final, where Fraser had markedly the best start and was almost a metre up after just 20m. That is where the race was won. By 60m (6.88) she was 0.08 ahead of Stewart, with Jeter third (7.01), and Campbell-Brown just ahead of Sturupp a half metre behind. Stewart then began to close, and was 0.05 behind at 80m (8.77 to 8.82). The taller Jamaican continued to close and a perfectly-timed twisting dip almost brought her victory as she veered into Fraser's lane (3) on her immediate left. The winning time of 10.73 beat Merlene Ottey's 13 year-old Jamaican record. Stewart too ran her fastest ever time. Jeter repeated her Osaka bronze. Sturupp, aged 37, clocked a world best time for seventh place – 11.05 – beating the 11.06 she ran in the corresponding race 10 years earlier!

8,	Marshvet Hooker	USA	11.33	0.164

Pre-Daegu form in 2011 indicated a big four, Jeter, Campbell-Brown, Baptiste and the defending champion who was now known as Fraser-Pryce.

It was Fraser-Pryce who took an early lead in the final, with Jeter just behind her. At the biomechanical checkpoint of 64m, Jeter and Fraser-Pryce were level at 7.35 from Baptiste (7.39) with Campbell-Brown – isolated in lane eight – in fourth (7.42). Jeter went clear in the last 20m, as Fraser-Pryce faded, while Campbell-Brown finished like the 200m virtuoso that she is, catching Baptiste just before the line. For Jeter it was her first major outdoor title after bronzes in Osaka and Berlin. According to the Korean Society for Sports Biomechanics, she took 50.5 steps in the race, the highest total of all the finalists.

There was a preliminary round of five heats for unqualified athletes on the first morning of the championships before the three main rounds of the competition.

Moscow 2013

Final (Aug 12) (-0.3)

1,	Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce	JAM	10.71	0.174
2,	Murielle Ahouré	CIV	10.93	0.165
3,	Carmelita Jeter	USA	10.94	0.156

7,	Alex Anderson	USA	11.10	0.159
8,	Octavious Freeman	USA	11.16	0.179

The former champion Fraser-Pryce had retained her Olympic title in 2012, and her run in the first round at Moscow indicated she was again the one to beat in a World Championship. She won the race in 11.15 after slackening off after only 30m.

In the final Gardner and Fraser-Pryce started fastest, but the winner was evident by 20m. At that point the Jamaican was already half a metre ahead, and she extended the lead the whole way. Behind SAFP, Ahouré just held off Jeter 10.93 to 10.94, with Gardner edging Stewart for fourth as both ran 10.97.

1,	Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce	JAM	10.76	0.161
2,	Dafne Schippers	NED	10.81	0.129
3,	Tori Bowie	USA	10.86	0.153

7,	Natasha Morrison	JAM	11.02	0.200
8,	Blessing Okagbare	NGR	11.02	0.185

Fraser-Pryce's reaction to the gun in the final was slow, but her pick-up was extraordinary. She was clearly in the lead by 10m, and was more than a metre clear by halfway, with Schippers leading the chase from Ahye and Bowie. The Dutchwoman had broken her national record with 10.83 in the semi-finals. Now she clocked 10.81 after closing to within half a metre of the Jamaican at the finish. Bowie also finished strongly to take third place. For Fraser-Pryce it was a record third 100m world title, her only regret being that she had been unable to duck below 10.70.

In the semi-finals, Moscow silver medalist Ahouré became the first woman to be eliminated with a time of less than 11 seconds.

7,	Rosângela Santos	BRA	11.06	0.150
8,	Kelly-Ann Baptiste	TTO	11.09	0.142

Ta Lou started fastest in the final, with her teammate Ahouré the nearest challenger. At the halfway mark Ta Lou led by half a metre from Ahouré, Bowie, Thompson and Baptiste in a line. The Trinidadian then faded, while Thompson seemed to stumble at 60m. Bowie and Schippers finished fastest of all, with the Dutch sprinter moving from eighth at halfway to third at the finish. Bowie caught Ta Lou in the last 10m, dipping sharply to win by 0.01 before falling over, suffering cuts and bruises. Her race halves took 6.11/4.74 compared with Ta Lou's 6.09/4.77.

Thompson, the double Olympic Champion, had been ill in the call room, but offered no excuse for her loss in interviews. Bowie seemed disbelieving after the race: "Am I really World Champion? Right now it hasn't sunk in."

An early-season injury had led Marita Koch to contest the sprints in 1983 rather than her usual 400m, where she was the Olympic Champion. She was also regarded as the world's best half-lap runner, but was given a close race by Ottey, who had been unbeaten all year.

Koch (lane 6) had Ottey (lane 7) in her sights in the final and led by a metre as the start of the finishing straight. The GDR runner held this advantage until the final 50m, when Ottey inched closer, but Koch held on for victory. On the other side of the track, Cook edged ahead of Griffith for the bronze.

After her 100m win, Gladisch was a solid favourite. However, the centre of attention was Florence Griffith, who had placed fourth in Helsinki. In 27° heat and 73% humidity, the 27 year-old American won her heat and semi in a skin-tight bodysuit complete with hood. Griffith's running was also notable, for she clocked the fastest semi-final time and looked as if she might possibly spoil the chances of a GDR sprint double.

In the final, Gladisch was drawn in lane 3 with Ottey and Griffith directly outside her. An 11.09 100m bend by the GDR runner gave her a big advantage at halfway. Only Griffith – now in conventional gear – was able to gain ground on Gladisch in the straight. In the process, she cracked 22 seconds and overhauled Ottey, who therefore collected her second Rome bronze medal. The winning time was just 0.03 slower than the world record shared by Marita Koch and Heike Drechsler, and the winner was coached by the same man as Koch: Wolfgang Meier.

The order of the Tokyo 100m final was repeated, meaning that Krabbe had won a sprint double while Ottey was left with her fifth world championship bronze – and her first 200m defeat since May 1989.

The race followed the same pattern as the 100m. Krabbe got the best start (11.07 at halfway), then surged clear. Ottey chased in vain before losing the silver to Torrence. The American was easily the quickest in the second half of the race. The final took place in pouring rain.

On her eighth attempt, Merlene Ottey at last won an individual world outdoor gold medal. After coming off the bend a metre or so up on Olympic Champion Torrence, the Jamaican seemed to be heading for a comfortable victory. But just as she had in Tokyo, Torrence produced a fearsome finish. Ottey, meanwhile, lost her form 10m before the line and began to overstride. The American ran the final 50m in 5.56 compared with Ottey's 5.65, but fell short by two hundredths. Even so, a replay was required to confirm the Jamaican's win.

"I finally got it," said the woman who won a bronze medal at the 1980 Moscow Olympic Games. She was greeted by an ovation of more than two minutes when she stepped up to receive her medal.

not going to let this ruin my 100m gold. I had clearly beaten the others; I know that deep in my heart. I don't believe anyone can enjoy the medals knowing they were not winning for real."

Ottey said: "I don't care how – mine is the gold. But I still think Gwen is in fantastic shape. Don't forget she was running 21.77 with a 2-plus headwind. She can beat the world record any day." Ottey's gold was her fifth successive world 200m medal.

The overhead cameras showed five of Torrence's steps were on the line and the appeal against her disqualification was unanimously rejected. It was one of 22 lane violations which resulted in disqualifications in Gothenburg. There were also 33 other disqualifications, 15 in the walks, 13 for trailing legs in hurdles, five for relay zones and one false start. The 1995 total of 55 disqualifications was more than at any previous World Championships.

Ottey's record in this event at the World Championships had been extraordinary: second in 1983, third in 1987 and 1991, winner in 1993 and 1995. Sweeping into the straight (11.14 at 100) with a narrow lead over Pintusevich (11.16) and a metre clear at 150 she looked set to retain the title, but lost training through illness took its toll and she faded to third. Nevertheless, in beoming the oldest ever women's medallist she brought her World Championships medal tally to a record 14, the next best being ten by Carl Lewis.

Pintusevich, a revelation at this distance in 1997, made up for her disappointment in the 100m by taking the gold medal in 22.32, her best time at sea level, but a bigger surprise was the identity of the runner-up. Jayasinghe, who had never run faster than 22.95 before Athens, raised eyebrows with an Asian record of 22.44 in the first round and improved again to 22.33 behind Ottey in her semi. In the final she ran almost as quickly to become the first Sri Lankan to take a global medal since Duncan White was second for Ceylon in the 1948 Olympic 400m hurdles. That fleeting Asian record of 22.44 was tied by China's Li Xuemi in a later heat but she failed to survive the second round. Olympic Champion Pérec withdrew from her semi after pulling a muscle warming up.

After winning the 100m, Torrence was expected to do the same in the 200m, traditionally her better event. Few, however, felt she would win so impressively as she did in the final. Ottey and Privalova never troubled the American, who was four metres up at the finish. Her time was 21.77, sensational running into a wind of 2.2.

The winner revealed that her spikes had been stolen before the race, forcing her to wear a substitute pair which were too big. As she was explaining this story and her reaction to the race to media in the mixed zone, there came some shocking news on the scoreboard. The result showed Ottey as the winner from Privalova, with Torrence at the bottom of the list, disqualified.

The reason was soon made clear; she was seen to step on the inside line of her lane on the bend. The rules say automatic disqualification in such cases, because the athlete would have gained an advantage by running less distance. There was general sympathy for Torrence as it was obvious that she could have won the race comfortably even without the transgression. Few felt the error could have been intentional.

"The line was the last thing I was thinking of," said Torrence. "I'm

A shadow was cast over the event when Jones, an odds-on favourite to complete a sprint double, suffered a spasm in her back during her semi-final, collapsed and was stretched off the track. There had been an earlier setback when defending champion Pintusevich-Block failed to start in her quarter-final, while Merlene Ottey, a medallist at this distance at all six previous editions of the World Championships and still a contender, withdrew after a positive doping test for nandrolone was revealed. Despite all that, the final produced a worthy champion in Miller, who after moving to eighth on the world all-time list over 100m with 10.79 became the 11th swiftest ever at 200m as she improved from 22.10 to 21.77 and won by the biggest margin in a global 200 since Fanny Blankers-Koen at the 1948 Olympics. She ran the first 100m in 11.10, the second in 10.67.

McDonald, drawn in lane 8 but finishing in lane 9, clocked a personal best of 22.22 for silver with Frazer and Philipp dead-heat for the bronze.

Marion Jones finally won a world 200m title, but was not as convincing as had been expected before the championships. After the semis it looked as if Ferguson might just upset Jones as Zhanna Pintusevich-Block had in the 100m. Off the bend, the Bahamaian was within striking distance, but Jones stayed in front and instead it was Ferguson who came under pressure from White, who had the fastest finish of all.

As detailed under reports of the 2001 and 2003 100 metres, both White, then Jones were retroactively disqualified after each admitted doping violations going back to 2000. For Jones was the dubious distinction of winning the earliest women's World Championship gold to be then disqualified. She initially claimed her 200m title in Edmonton just one day before that of the guilty Russian discus thrower Natalia Sadova.

Having beaten Campbell the month before Helsinki, Felix was the favourite, but was edged in her heat by the surprising Gushchina, who put up the fastest time of the first round with 22.53. Arron showed good 200m form for the first time in a major championship in winning the first semi-final in 22.45 into a 2.7 wind, cruising through 100 in 11.3 and coasting home impressively. Felix won the other semi-final in 22.90 – this into a 4.0 wind, with Olympic Champion Campbell placing third behind Gevaert, and so not qualifying for one of the seeded middle lanes.

Campbell was drawn in lane seven for the final, and she blasted out of the blocks, and powered the curve, leading from Arron and Felix by a metre at halfway. However, Campbell had taken the bend too quickly and she ran almost 20m of the straight in lane 8 – fortunately without impeding Gushchina. At 150m, Arron took the lead from Campbell, but the French star was again trying to force her stride. Felix, by contrast, was displaying her relaxed power, and she flowed away over the last 25m. Smith, two metres down on Campbell at halfway, zipped by her with 10m to go and just caught Arron on the line for the silver medal. At 19 years 267 days Felix became the youngest winner – man or woman – of a world sprint title.

Rightful finalists: Lauren Hewitt AUS & Mary Onyali NGR

White was a commanding winner of the final in 22.05, but this was to count for nothing when it emerged that she had failed a doping control test in Paris and had indeed been committing doping offences since 2000 (see report of the Paris women's 100m). The gold reverted to Kapachinskaya, who had made up three places in the finishing straight. Edwards was named as silver medalist with Hurtis (originally a dis-traight fourth) taking the bronze.

Unfortunately, it must be noted that both Kapachinskaya and Edwards committed doping violations in early 2004, and each began serving bans of two years. Block, originally fifth, then fourth, also ended up disqualified from Paris as a result of the Balco scandal, as reported for the Paris 2003 100m.

Defending champion Felix was the favourite, having run 22.18 in 2007, a fifth of a second quicker than her rivals. Richards, who had failed to make the US squad in the 400m but was second to Felix in the US 200m, was fastest in round two.

Campbell and Felix ran together over the first 100m of the final, with Campbell just ahead at the halfway point, 11.10 to 11.15, but Felix then moved away, generating more smooth power than one could have expected from an athlete measuring only 1.68m/53kg. By the finish, she was a full five metres clear of Campbell, while Jayasinghe again amazed, beating both Edwards and Richards for the bronze medal. Felix's time of 21.81 was the fastest of the 21st century, the best time since Inger Miller's 21.77 in 1999. Her winning margin was the greatest at this level since 1948.

Campbell-Brown, ideally drawn one lane inside Felix, was about half a metre up on the American after 50m, but the defending champion was catching her, and did so just after halfway. Her long graceful stride took her a metre clear at 150m (16.37 to 16.49), and this extended to 3m by the finish, as Ferguson-McKenzie gained a metre on Campbell-Brown over the last 50m to pass Lee for the bronze medal.

The race marked the fourth time in five global championships that the first two medals had been taken by the Felix/Campbell-Brown duo, and the first time that any woman had won three consecutive world golds.

The two principal questions before the event were a) would Felix be able to double up after the 400m, and b) would Campbell-Brown be able to finally beat Felix in the World Championships after three defeats. The two were drawn together in the third of the semi-finals, but even though Felix lost that race she still ended up in the draw for the best lanes in the final because she had the quickest losing time.

Campbell-Brown seared around the curve in the final, opening up a two-metre gap at halfway over Jeter (11.03 to 11.15), with Felix another one and half metres back. Jeter closed to within half a metre before VCB drew away to win. Felix also closed strongly but remained in third place. It was clear that Campbell-Brown had peaked perfectly to take the one major title that had eluded her, and that Felix's silver medal effort over 400m had taken away some of her customary sharpness.

Fraser-Pryce gained about a metre on a Felix in the first 40m of the final, at which point Felix screamed in pain before dropping to the ground with a tear to her right hamstring. The Jamaican led by over a metre into the straight and won by 1½ metres over Houré, who kept her form well to just hold off Okagbare by 0.006. The winner said afterwards "I hope to God that Allyson comes back really quickly ... you know she is someone you have to look for when you are competing". Fraser-Pryce's sprint double was the first by a woman since the disgraced Katrina Krabbe in 1991.

A sad postscript was the doping disqualification of semi-finalist Bryzgina, whose parents had both won World Championship and Olympic medals for the USSR and/or Ukraine.

Beijing 2015

Final (Aug 28) (0.2)

1, [6]	Dafne Schippers	NED	21.63	11.2/10.4
2, [5]	Elaine Thompson	JAM	21.66	11.1/10.6
3, [2]	Veronica Campbell-Brown	JAM	21.97	11.2/10.8

7, [3]	Ivet Lalova-Collio	BUL	22.41	11.4/11.0
8, [9]	Sherone Simpson	JAM	22.50	11.4/11.1

It was McGrone who led the field for the first 100m, with Thompson and Schippers, Campbell-Brown and Asher-Smith a metre back. As the American began to strain, the smooth Thompson went clear. Schippers moved past McGrone and bore down on Thompson, only catching her in the last 10m. The winning time of 21.63 broke the long-standing European record and put the Dutchwoman third on the all-time list, while Thompson moved into fifth with her 21.66. An amazing advancement for an athlete whose best before 2015 had been 23.23.

Campbell-Brown (33) was the slowest qualifier but dipped under 22 seconds for the first time since 2010 to edge McGrone for the bronze. Asher-Smith beat Kathy Cook's 31 year-old UK record in fifth. This was the best women's 200m race in depth since the 1988 Seoul Olympics, yet the fastest woman in the world before Beijing was absent. Allyson Felix (21.98 in May) was contesting only the 400m.

London 2017

Final (Aug 11) (0.8)

1, [6]	Dafne Schippers	NED	22.05	11.12/10.93
2, [4]	Marie Josée Ta Lou	CIV	22.08	11.16/10.92

7, [2]	Crystal Emmanuel	CAN	22.67	11.39/11.21
8, [3]	Tynia Gaither	BAH	23.07	11.62/11.45

Just as in the 100m, Ta Lou was quickest into her running in the final but lost the race by a whisker. The Ivorian was overtaken by Schippers at the end of the turn, with Asher-Smith a clear third, a metre ahead of the rest of the field. Only Gaither was out of contact.

Ta Lou battled with Schippers for the entire second half, with the Dutch star retaining her title only by dipping well at the line. Miller-Uibo progressed from fifth to third with a 10.79 second half ahead of Asher-Smith. For the Briton it was a minor triumph, as she had broken a bone in her foot in February, and only returned to racing in July.

400 Metres

Helsinki 1983

Final (Aug 10)

				Halves
1,  3	Jarmila Kratochvílová	TCH	47.99 <sup>WR</sup>	23.1/24.9

Kratochvílová had already made a big impression in Helsinki: one day before the final she easily took the 800m title just 33 minutes after winning her one-lap semi-final.

She had also been obliged to run two preliminary races on each of the first two days of the championships. On the fourth day she was able to concentrate on the 400m final alone. Drawn in lane 3, she started very positively by closing the stagger on Pingina. Kratochvílová's team-mate, Kocembová, also started quickly in lane 1. A tremendous third 100m brought the muscular Czech into the straight with a lead of five metres. Kocembová momentarily gained on her compatriot, but Kratochvílová powered on to win in the fantastic time of 47.99. It was the first world record to be set at an IAAF World Championship.

"The world record came as a complete surprise," said Kratochvílová, "I never think about such things, only about the finish line and how to be the first to cross it."

Rome 1987

Final (Aug 31)

1,  2	Olga Bryzgina	URS	49.38	23.82/25.56
2,  3	Petra Müller	GDR	49.94	23.64/26.30

8,  1	Olga V. Nazarova	URS	51.20	24.68/26.52

The great Maria Koch never won a world 400m title. She contested the sprints in 1983 and six months before the Rome World Championships, she suddenly announced her retirement from the sport. Without her or Kratochvílová, the standard of women's one-lap running dipped and the 1987 world title was won in a time which would not have been good enough for a medal in Helsinki.

The GDR pair of Emmelmann and Müller went out fastest in the final but were closed down by Bryzgina on the second bend. The Ukrainian took the lead early in the straight and continued to pull clear for a comfortable win. This was the second world championship medal won by the Bryzgin family. The winner's husband Viktor took a bronze in the 1983 sprint relay.

There was no clear favourite, then lekseyeva came to everyone's attention with personal bests in heat and semi-final. The Russian took off quickest in the final. Conversely, US Champion Miles started conservatively and was only sixth at halfway. She improved to third at 300m and took the lead in the finishing straight as Alekseyeva faded. The next best finish came from Kaiser-Brown, who, like Miles, was wearing a pair of oversized sunglasses. Richards came up to pip Alekseyeva for the bronze.

The winner's time was the slowest at world or Olympic level since 1972, yet it was the fastest in the world at that point in 1993. Marie-José Pérec and Gwen Torrence, arguably the world's best two 400m runners, both decided to concentrate on the sprints in Stuttgart.

Tokyo 1991*Final (Aug 27)

8, [1]	Diane Dixon	USA	51.73	24.17/27.56

Nineteen-ninety-one saw an improvement in the standard of women's 400m running, and at the forefront was Pérec. The long-legged Frenchwoman had already won the European Cup in the world's fastest time for four years. In Tokyo she went even quicker despite having to contest four races in four days.

Pérec (lane 3) started fast in the final, passing 200m in 22.82. She was tracked by European Champion Breuer. Pérec clocked 35.12 at 300m and was nearly three metres up on the German (35.39). Breuer, still a junior, was poised to attack on the final straight. Though she began to lose form, the Frenchwoman actually pulled further away from Breuer in the closing stages of the race.

Bryzgina, the defending champion, held third place until the last metres of the race when she was outdistanced by Myers.

"The race was very hard," said Pérec. "I knew I had to come out of the second turn ahead because if I am ahead, I win. Talent is not enough."

The Gothenburg timetable had been revised to help Pérec attempt the 400m flat and hurdles double, but the day before the 400m final the Frenchwoman, nursing a sore hamstring, withdrew from the hurdles. This meant she did not have to run a heat of the hurdles two hours before the flat final.

Freeman, who beat Pérec in Monaco in late July, went out fast. She was timed at 23.3 at 200m compared with 23.5 for Pérec. The two were level at 300m (35.7) when the Frenchwoman began to pull away. Freeman was passed on either side by Davis and Miles and slipped to fourth in the finishing straight. Pérec's winning time was the world's quickest for three years; Davis cracked 50 seconds in her first major championship 400m, narrowly ahead of defending champion Miles.

"I feel like I ran a perfect race," said the winner.

Following a difficult climb back to the top after injury, Freeman again demonstrated her formidable competitive streak by winning her 32nd 400m final out of 33 since her Olympic silver medal three years earlier. A 49.76 semi-final from the outside lane indicated she was ready for the defence of her title, and she was too strong for everyone in the final in 49.67, her fastest for two years.

Ogunkoya, winner of the other semi-final, was narrowly ahead of Freeman at 300m (35.95 to 35.97). The Australian moved away and the Nigerian battled with Graham for the silver, only for Rücker in lane 8 to pass both. The German finished strongly for second in 49.74 (her pre-Seville best was 50.64). The Jamaican finished third also in a personal best time. Merry, who only ran her first serious 400m the year before and decided in July to switch from 200m to 400m in Seville, rose to the new challenge by setting a personal best of 50.21 in her semi and placing fifth in the final.

After finishing only third in her semi behind 1993 champion Miles-Clark and Ogunkoya, Olympic silver medalist Freeman was drawn in lane one, but she refused to be daunted by that and went on to claim the title vacated by Pérec. It was a close-run affair as Freeman – last at 100, seventh at 200m and a close second to Ogunkoya (36.11) at 300m in 36.13 – surged into the lead and found the strength to prevail by just 2/100ths over training partner Richards, with Miles-Clark a metre behind. “Although I am still inexperienced I think I chose the right tactics,” said Freeman, the first Australian aboriginal to win any world athletics title, and the only athlete to have won a world title at 400m from an unseeded lane.

The winning time was the slowest yet, but the race was very exciting with three changes in the lead down the finishing straight. Breuer, contesting her fourth final, ran hard down the backstraight before Guevara entered the straight narrowly in front of the German and 1999 bronze medalist Fenton (née Graham). Breuer fell back and the Jamaican then edged ahead, by which time the lanky Senegalese Thiam had inched past Guevara. Fenton (lane 7) and Thiam (lane 4) appeared to be level, but on the line Thiam's dip was 0.02 ahead. The 1997 and 1999 winner Cathy Freeman took the year off from competition.

Guevara had been unbeaten in 21 finals since her Edmonton bronze. In Paris, she not only won again but moved into the world all-time top 10 at 48.89, the world's quickest since 1996. It was defending champion Thiam (lane 6) who started fastest in the final before Guevara (lane 3) went ahead to reach 200m in 23.2. Edmonton runner-up Fenton closed on the second bend before the Mexican pulled clear in the straight. Thiam barely held off Nazarova for the bronze. This was Mexico's first woman's gold and their first ever in these championships outside of the men's walks.

Although Williams-Darling and Richards had traded wins during the season, Richards was probably a slight favourite by dint of her faster seasonal best (49.28 versus 49.69). Pospelova was the only athlete under 51 seconds in the heats, with 50.80. The serious running began the next day. Richards and Williams-Darling pleased their supporters with Richards winning the first race in 50.05 after easing down, while the Olympic Champion swept away the opposition in the last heat, passing 300m in 35.5 before finishing in 49.69. Pospelova won the other semi in 50.34.

For Thiam, Guevara and Zykina this was their third final. Richards was out fastest, and led at 200m 23.5, with Pospelova and Williams-Darling her closest pursuers. At 300m Richards still led, but the margin was now only one metre as Williams-Darling began to edge closer to the lead. She caught Richards with 30m to go and won by 1/4m from the American, with Guevara, the fastest over the last 100m, third just behind Richards. Pospelova placed fourth, nearly 10m ahead of Trotter, while Zykina was sixth – for the third championship in a row!

An emotional Williams-Darling first shouted "what!" repeatedly after winning, before mouthing the words "thank you."

At the age of 24, Richards was appearing in her fourth World Championship, but she had never won an individual title. Starting quickly, the American led by a metre at 100m, but then appeared to hold back from pushing too much in the second 100. Working hard in the third quarter of the race, Richards held a lead of over 2m from Krivoshapka coming into the straight. The Russian faded as Shericka Williams, who had won silver in Beijing ahead of Richards, gained 4m on Krivoshapka. She could gain only a half metre on Richards, who lifted her arms in triumph while crossing the line. For the first time, a woman had run 400m in exactly 49 seconds. Williams-Mills just failed to catch Krivoshapka for the bronze.

With Sanya Richards and Allyson Felix running the 200m, Novlene Williams became the pre-race favourite. The Jamaican was the fastest in both preliminary rounds, with 50.21 and 49.66. The other semi-final winners were the British pair of Sanders and Ohuruogu. The latter had just returned from a year's suspension after having missed three doping control tests and clocked a surprising 50.56 in the Osaka warm-up meeting two days before the championships opened.

Williams and former champion Guevara were off fastest in the final, passing 100m in 12.0, then Williams surged and led at halfway in 23.37, with Ohuruogu and Guevara four metres behind. At 300m Williams led by two metres in 35.73, with Antyukh (35.9), Ohuruogu (36.13) and Sanders (36.17) well placed to attack. First Sanders and then Ohuruogu passed Antyukh. The two Britons closed on Williams, finally catching her with five metres to go, and Ohuruogu finally dipped 30cm ahead of Sanders and Williams, who appeared to ease off just before the line. In fourth place Guevara completed what was to be her final individual race. The 2005 champion Tonique Darling had already retired at this point in time.

It was Montsho and Felix who had dominated the world scene with seven IAAF Diamond League wins between them. Felix, drawn inside Montsho, led at 100m, but Montsho drove hard down the back straight and led by a metre at 200m. The Commonwealth Champion then increased her lead slightly on the second curve, passing 300m in 35.7, 0.2 ahead of Felix, with McCorory third in 36.1.

The two leaders drew away from the rest down the final straight, with Felix edging ever closer to Montsho. After a terrific battle, the Botswanan reached the haven of the tape some 30cm ahead. Former champion Ohuruogu was disqualified for false starting in round one.

In 2017, it was confirmed that Kapachinskaya had failed a re-test of her doping samples from the Beijing Olympics and Daegu 2011. All her results since August 17, 2008 were declared invalid. Besides her Daegu bronze, she lost her seventh place from Berlin 2009 and Russia were stripped of relay medals from both championships.

Hastings and McCorory started the fastest, with the former quickly closing the stagger on 2007 champion Ohuruogu. Daegu winner Montsho was in third place at the 100m mark. At halfway, McCorory led by a metre from the Botswanan who had the American in her sights. Montsho (35.7) took the lead at 300m, as McCorory began to waver, with Hastings (36.1) marginally ahead of Krivoschapka and Ohuruogu. By 350m, the Briton had moved up to second, and with every stride was gaining on Montsho. At the line, fatigue seemed to be making Montsho lean back slightly while Ohuruogu dipped sharply for the line. The Briton's winning margin was 4/1000ths of a second – approximately 3cm. "I knew I'd cut it close," she reflected. "I was running and thinking 'I've made a mess of this, haven't I.'"

Krivoschapka was warmly acclaimed by the home crowd for her medal, but she was later exposed as a drug cheat. First the IOC announced that a re-test of the Russian's sample at the 2012 Olympics had found the prohibited substance turinabol. Her performances at those Games, including a relay silver medal, were all annulled. Second, the IAAF formally disqualified all of Krivoschapka's results from August 11, 2012 to August 10, 2014. She therefore was stripped of her bronze from Moscow 2013, while the Russian 4x400m squad were also deleted as gold medalists.

8,  7	Christine Ohuruogu	GBR	50.63	23.7/26.9

Felix went out startlingly fast in the final, and was a full six metres up on Ohuruogu after 100m. This appeared to cause the Briton to abandon her usual cautious race plan and react to Felix, one lane outside. The American neatly accelerated when she felt the Briton moving up at 250m, and entered the finishing straight with a four-metre advantage over Miller and Jackson. Ohuruogu was still in range to fight for a medal, but faded to last place. Felix may have lost half a metre to Miller in the last 100m, but she came home an easy winner in a lifetime best of 49.26, with Miller also clocking a personal best ahead of a Jamaican quartette.

For Felix, this was a ninth gold medal from IAAF World Championships. That equalled the record set by Usain Bolt when he won the 2015 Beijing 100m, but in the very next race (the men's 200m), Bolt increased his total to 10.

In the first round, a standout performance was the apparent Kenyan record by Zakari of 50.71. Apparent because Zakari was pulled from the semi-finals the next day after it became known that she had failed an out-of-competition doping test in Beijing – on the day before the championships began.

At the 2016 Olympics, Miller-Uibo (now married to Estonian decathlete Maicel Uibo) led for the entire race and just held on to win in a dive across the line as Felix closed her down. It looked as if London 2017 was going to see the same two women at the top as they flashed through 200m in sub-23 times. Francis was 3m behind, and Naser a further 4m back in seventh place. As she did in Rio, Miller-Uibo ran the second curve powerfully and led at 300m (35.36) by nearly 3m. Could Felix claw her back? No, because it was Francis and Naser who were coping best in the cold (15°) and wet. Just as it looked as if the Bahamian might hold on, at 370m she stumbled and lost momentum. At the same moment, Francis caught the fading Felix and went on to an unexpected win. Naser also went past Felix as both overhauled Miller-Uibo.

Had the Bahamian succumbed to injury or cramp? She confirmed otherwise. "I looked up at the screen and misplaced my foot and completely lost balance." Her final 30m took 5.42 compared with 4.49 by Francis. Eid Naser set national records in all three rounds and Felix collected her 14th World Championship medal.

800 Metres

Helsinki 1983

Final (Aug 9)

1,	Jarmila Kratochvílová	TCH	1:54.68
2,	Lyubov Gurina	URS	1:56.11
3,	Yekaterina Podkopayeva	URS	1:57.58
4,	Margrit Klingner	FRG	1:58.11
5,	Robin Campbell	USA	2:00.03
6,	Doina Melinte	ROU	2:00.13
7,	Milena Matejkovičová	TCH	2:01.72
8,	Antje Schröder	GDR	2:02.13

For some observers, Kratochvílová's greatest moment in Helsinki came the day before her 400m world record. The Czech runner was faced with a 400m semi-final and an 800m final within 35 minutes. She comfortably won the first of the 400m semi-finals in 51.08 before receiving a massage in preparation for the two-lap final.

Precisely 33:27.5 after the finish of that first 400m semi, the gun fired for the 800m final. The leader at the break from lanes in the final was Gurina. She was overtaken by Podkopayeva, who went through the bell in 57.59. After the race, the Soviet duo said they felt they should have set a faster pace. As it was, Kratochvílová stayed comfortably in third place until Gurina went to the front again on the final backstraight. Kratochvílová quickly covered this move, but held back for a further 100m before taking the lead herself.

The Czech runner opened up a gap of 10m on the final bend and raced further away in the straight. She crossed the line in 1:54.68, a time which only one other woman had ever bettered. Her final 200m had taken just 27.3 – quicker than three of the runners in the men's 800m final.

7,	Nadezhda Oizarenko	URS	2:00.28
8,	Slobodanka Colović	YUG	2:02.09

The two closely-matched GDR runners, Wachtel and Wodars, took control of the final from the start. Wachtel raced through 200m in 26.89 before Wodars went to the front to pass the bell in 56.30.

Quirot, Gurina and Kratochvílová were in touch, but the defending champion fell back on the second lap. Wachtel moved to the front again at 600m (1:25.08). Into the finishing straight, Quirot made her bid round the outside of Wachtel, who herself had drifted away from the kerb. This allowed Wodars to take the shortest route through on the inside. The three ran in a line for an instant. Wodars then moved ahead to win. Quirot never got on terms with the GDR pair and was then deprived of the bronze by Gurina.

7,	Ann Williams	GBR	2:01.01
8,	Svetlana Masterkova	URS	2:02.92

Nurutdinova led through the first lap of the final (56.44), closely followed by the favourite, Quirot. Six women were still in contention around the last bend, and Quirot nosed in front on the inside to lead with 100m remaining. Nurutdinova reacted to regain a narrow advantage. Kovacs was close behind as was the teenage sensation from Mozambique, Mutola.

The Soviet runner succeeded in holding off Quirot, while Mutola found that her fast finish was blocked by Kovacs. The Romanian drifted into the path of the Mozambique runner. The two collided and Kovacs fell across the finishing line. Just 0.13 separated the first four finishers. A protest was lodged on Mutola's behalf, but this was rejected. She nevertheless set a new world junior record.

Rightful finalist: Christine Wachtel GER

By 1993, Mutola – fourth in Tokyo – had developed into the world's leading two-lap runner. The pace in the final was set by Rainey, who had employed the same tactic in the semi-final where she set a lifetime best. She passed 400m in 55.49 with Mutola next to last. On the second backstraight, Mutola rapidly improved to get in front at the start of the last bend. At this instant, disaster struck the other Mozambique runner in the final, Paulino – a distant cousin of Mutola and considered a serious threat. She tripped and fell, taking with her Liu and Nurutdinova. This left 36 year-old Gurina an isolated second. Mutola stretched her lead to 15m with a 29.47 last 200m. Gurina repeated her 1983 silver and Kovacs her 1991 bronze.

After the race there was more bad news for the deposed champion Nurutdinova – she failed a doping control test.

The unfortunate Mutola was disqualified after winning her semi for stepping on the line inside her lane at the start of the race. Thus ended her 42-race winning streak which stretched back to 1992 and meant she could not defend her title.

In Mutola's absence, few would have wished to devalue Ana Quirot's victory in the final which provided the most emotional moment of the week. The Cuban, fourth in 1987 and second in 1991, was making a courageous comeback after a terrible domestic accident in January 1993 which left her with burns over much of her upper body.

Just as she did in Stuttgart, Rainey took up the pace in the final. She went through 400m in 56.42 and was still in front at 600m (1:25.91). Holmes then edged in front in the finishing straight before being passed in turn by Quirot then Vriesde. The 32 year-old Cuban won easily with a 1995 world best.

"In my heart I never thought I could come back so strongly," said Quirot. "This is the most beautiful victory of my life."

Djaté, who just failed to overtake Holmes for the bronze, overcame the loss of a shoe in the semi-final to qualify for the final.

On paper it should have been between Olympic Champion Masterkova, the year's fastest performer at 1:55.87, and the 1993 World Champion Mutola with a personal best of 1:55.19. Masterkova had beaten Mutola in Oslo and Rome but, hampered by an ankle problem, she could finish only 4th, 3rd and 2nd in Paris, Monaco and Zürich, Mutola winning each time. However, it was Formanová, who had pulled off a sensational victory over Mutola for the world indoor title earlier in the year, who brought off a magnificent last-gasp victory in a most thrilling race.

Miles-Clark cut out a swift pace (27.14, 57.63, 87.45) but as she faded early in the final straight it was Mutola and Masterkova who fought it out for the lead. Mutola edged ahead but a late run by the previously boxed in Formanová, finishing in lane 4, enabled her to follow in the footsteps of her coach Jarmila Kratochvílová. "I couldn't believe I had won," she said. "I could see I was catching the girls up but I never thought I could win." Mutola said she had concentrated on Masterkova and Miles-Clark. "I didn't see Formanová coming. When I did it was too late."

Two years earlier Quirot capitalised on the disqualification of the preciously all-conquering Mutola to bring off an emotionally charged victory. This time Mutola made it safely to the final, although she did squander precious energy in her semi by front running an extravagant 1:57.49. Mutola loved to lead at a fast pace, almost always running the finish out of her opponents, but in the final her splits of 58.32 at 400m and 88.28 at 600m proved insufficient. Quirot stuck resolutely to her and pulled clear 50m from the finish to become the first repeat winner of a global title in the women's 800, while to add insult to injury Mutola was pipped for second on the line by Afanasyeva.

Mutola regained her title after "probably the most difficult race I have ever run." The final was orchestrated by 1995 silver medalist Vriesde, who passed 400m in 59.07 before running a fierce third 200m (29.55) which drew her and the two favourites – Mutola and Graf – away from the field.

Surprising, Vriesde (36) did not tie up and continued running strongly down the finishing straight. Graf nipped in front with 60m remaining but Mutola seemed to be leaving her challenge too late and remained behind the gallant Vriesde. Eventually, she managed to move up and outdip Graf at the last possible moment, just as she had at the World Indoor Championships in Lisbon. Mutola therefore became the only athlete to win gold at the 2000 Olympics and both World Championships in 2001.

1,	Zulia Calatayú	CUB	1:58.82	60.72/58.1
2,	Hasna Benhassi	MAR	1:59.42	61.2 /58.2
3,	Tatyana Andrianova	RUS	1:59.60	60.9 /58.7
4,	Maria Mutola	MOZ	1:59.71	60.8 /58.9

7,	Svetlana Cherkasova	RUS	2:00.71	61.0 /59.7
8,	Hazel Clark	USA	2:01.52	60.9 /60.6

Benhassi was a marginal favourite, having won six of her eight races prior to Helsinki and never finishing worse than second. The first semi-final saw Clark lead through 400m in 58.82, and come out on top in 1:59.00 ahead of Chzhao, with Mutola and Martínez having to wait to find out if they would qualify as fastest losers. Forty year-old Vriesde led the second race at a sensible pace (59.11 at 400m), before Sinclair eased into the lead. Calatayú went to the front with 150m to go, easily holding off Cherkasova in 1:57.92, with Sinclair fourth in 1:59.45. The third semi was won in an inexplicably slow 2:01.35 by Andrianova from Benhassi.

Mutola led the final through 200m in 28.42, before Calatayú moved alongside at the bell, reached in a slow 60.72. Andrianova came up on the inside and Mutola caught an elbow as the Russian and Cuban went past at the 600m mark (1:30.75). Calatayú cut loose with 90m to go and won as she pleased by five metres, with Benhassi moving from sixth at 650m to second place. Andrianova held off Mutola for third. The remarkable Mozambique woman finished fourth or better for the seventh time!

In October 2015, the All-Russia Athletic Federation declared that a re-analysis of Andrianova's sample from Helsinki was found to contain traces of a prohibited substance, it banned her and disqualified her results for two years starting with and including her world 800m bronze. Andrianova appealed against this punishment to the Court of Arbitration for Sport, who in 2016 ruled in her favour. Their grounds were that the rules in force in 2005 required that any anti-doping rule violation charge needed to be made no later than eight years from the date of the sample collection. The 10 years which had passed were therefore beyond the statute of limitations then in force.

Maria Mutola was in the middle of one her greatest seasons: World Indoor Champion, unbeaten, and much the world's fastest time of 1:55.55. Two of her toughest rivals were last-minute withdrawals. European Champion Jolanda Čepalak injured her Achilles tendon, and Edmonton silver medalist Steffi Graf reportedly cut her foot on a broken bottle on the eve of the final. One old rival who was present was Holmes, who had been training with Mutola since the end of 2002.

The defending champion went to the front in the first lap, reaching 400m in 61.20, the slowest ever in a world final. The real race started at 600m (1:32.32) when Holmes moved ahead. Mutola followed and went past in the last 50m, while Holmes held off Khruschelova to go one better than her bronze of eight years earlier.

Osaka 2007

Final (Aug 28)

1,	Janeth Jepkosgei	KEN	1:56.04	56.16/59.88
2,	Hasna Benhassi	MAR	1:56.99	57.46/59.53

7,	Svetlana Klyuka	RUS	2:00.90	57.2 /63.7
	Maria Mutola	MOZ	DNF	56.8 /

Jepkosgei was rated as number seven on the "Track and Field News" Osaka form chart. She showed this was an underestimation by winning her heat in 1:58.95, a second quicker than any other preliminary winner. She then zipped through her semi-final, passing 400m in 56.54, before finishing in 1:56.17, much the fastest time of 2007. Klocová and Cusma clocked 1:58.62 and 1:58.63 but failed to make the final.

Jepkosgei repeated her tactics in the final, passing 200m in 26.58 [1:46.4 pace], before slowing to 56.16 at halfway. Usovich and Langerhohc led the chasers with 56.6. Jepkosgei slowed to 1:26.22 at 600m, with four metres advantage over Mutola and Benhassi. Momentarily, she looked vulnerable, but then edged away to win in 1:56.04, another lifetime best, and the fastest time in the world for four years. Benhassi was a clear second, after Mutola collapsed onto the infield when her left hamstring went into a spasm 80m from the line.

The event had a dramatic start on the first morning when defending champion Jepkosgei fell at 600m of the opening heat. The new South African star Semanya (18) almost went over behind her but recovered to win the race. The Kenyan team protested that Jepkosgei had been tripped by Semanya and the jury of appeal agreed to advance the Kenyan to the semi-finals, but without disqualifying the South African. Both of these African women progressed to the final but the Olympic Champion Jelimo did not after dropping out of her semi-final.

Jepkosgei took the pace out swiftly in the final, and passed 200m in 26.83, ahead of Semanya (27.0). The South African took the lead at 350m, reaching the bell a metre up on Jepkosgei and Krevsun. That margin was slightly increased at 600m (1:26.96), with Krevsun (1:27.20) fighting hard to keep up. Semanya powered away over the next 100m, covered in 14.10, and led by 8m, a lead which was increased to 20m by the finish. The valiant Krevsun led the battle for second until 5m to go when Jepkosgei caught her. Finishing faster than both was Meadows, who moved from sixth place at 700m to third at the line.

During the championships it was disclosed that the IAAF was investigating Semanya's gender as a medical issue, and it was agreed that she should not appear at the medalist's press conference. In July 2010, the IAAF stated that it "accepts the conclusion of a panel of medical experts that she can compete with immediate effect. Please note that the medical details of the case remain confidential and the IAAF will make no further comment on the matter."

Sixth in the second semi final in a time of 2:00.90 was Petlyuk of Ukraine, just as she had been in Daegu 2011. That odd statistic was spoiled when, in 2013, her 2009 results were annulled because of irregularities in her Athlete Biological Passport.

Semenya did not compete from August 2009 to July 2010 when the IAAF announced: "the process initiated in 2009 in the case of Caster Semenya (RSA) has now been completed. The IAAF accepts the conclusion of a panel of medical experts that she can compete with immediate effect." In April 2011, the IAAF introduced eligibility rules and regulations for women athletes with excessive male hormones, a condition known as hyperandrogenism. The South African showed patchy form in the lead-up to Daegu, placing only eighth in Stockholm on July 29. At the World Championships she seemed to click, winning her semi-final in 1:58.07, her fastest since Berlin.

Jepkosgei set the pace in the final, passing 200m in 26.61, with the runners stretched out in single file. The Kenyan reached 400m in 55.86, with Semenya (56.9) in fifth, and a watchful Savinova in sixth. At 600m Jepkosgei (1:26.07) still led, with Semenya (1:26.2), a fading Sinclair (1:26.3) and Savinova (1:26.5) closest in attendance. Semenya went to the front with 180m remaining, and built up a three-metre lead with 80m remaining. The long-striding Savinova caught the South African with 25m to go, and won by three metres. Well behind the first two, Jepkosgei managed to hold off Montaño for the bronze. "I know I won in Berlin," said Semenya, "but I am feeling much better today."

Savinova's two Russian compatriots Yekaterina Kostetskaya and Yuliya Rusanova finished fifth and eighth in the final, but both were ultimately disqualified for doping after a check of their Athlete Biological Passports.

Rusanova's disqualification was confirmed in 2013, Kostetskaya's in 2014, then in 2015, a report of the World Anti-Doping Agency recommended that Savinova (among others) be given lifetime doping bans. The Russian had admitted to drug-taking in an undercover cell phone video which had been taken in 2014 by Rusanova. The former doping offender had become a whistleblower and passed the evidence to a German television station, who made a series of documentaries on doping in athletics.

Finally on February 10, 2017, the Court of Arbitration for Sport declared "On the basis of clear evidence, including the evidence derived from her biological passport (ABP), Mariya Savinova-Farnosova is found to have been engaged in using doping from 26 July 2010 (the eve of the European Championship in Barcelona) through to 19 August 2013 (the day after the World Championship in Moscow)". All the Russian's results in that period (including Olympic and European titles) were disqualified and she was suspended in the period 2015-2019. Semenya should be regarded as the 2011 World Champion, having successfully defended her title from Berlin.

Montaño, a perennial front runner, led through 200m in 26.91, six metres clear of Sum. The American reached the bell in a transponder-timed 56.12 (56.06 by photo-cell), a full seven metres ahead of Sum, with Savinova another six metres back. Montaño reached 600m in 1:26.49, still a second or so ahead of Sum, but with Savinova now only two metres behind. Sum and Savinova eventually passed the American halfway down the straight with the Russian seemingly poised for another big win. But then much to the crowd's chagrin, Sum used her 1500m runner's strength to pull clear for victory. Martínez came through on the inside to pip the valiant Montaño at the line. "I didn't believe that Eunice could keep that speed to the finish", reflected Savinova. "I congratulate her. It's my loss." The transponder timing showed that Martínez and Sum had the fastest last 100m times of 14.95 and 14.98 respectively.

Savinova was stripped of her silver medal, as she was of her Daegu gold, for the reasons set out in the report of the 2011 women's 800m. This meant that Montaño rightfully won back-to-back bronzes.

Beijing 2015

Final (Aug 29)

1,	Maryna Arzamasova	BLR	1:58.03	59.15/58.93
2,	Melissa Bishop	CAN	1:58.12	59.39/58.73

8,	Renelle Lamote	FRA	1:59.70	59.21/60.49

Sum was the strong favourite, having been undefeated in 2015 before Beijing and winning at five Diamond League meetings. It was therefore a surprise that the defending champion only qualified for the final as a fastest loser. Contesting the third semi-final, Sum ran her first 100m in 12.94 (1:43.52 pace), zipped by 400m in 57.31 but then was edged by Bishop and Arzamasova. All three were in the 1:57.5s and the same three got on the podium two days later. Then, Sum again led in the final with a first 200 in 27.13 by photo-cell. The pace slowed to 59.08 at the bell. Arzamasova went ahead at 550m and held on to win, though Sum, and latterly, Bishop closed to within a metre.

Niyonsaba led through 200m in the final in 27.08, and slowed to 57.98, with Wilson next to her and Semeyna fifth. The American applied pressure and Niyonsaba had to work hard to stay on top, passing 600m in 1:27.07. Semeyna was the only athlete in touch with the leading two.

The South African took the lead with just over 50m remaining, and covering her last 100m in 13.54 (quicker than Pierre-Ambroise Bosse's 14.02 in the London men's final), she finished with a South African record of 1:55.16. Behind the medallists, Wambui just managed to hold off Bishop for fourth place. For the first time since 1999, all the finalists ran under 1:59.

It was Semeyna's 29th successive win at 800m (heats included) since 2015, the year in which the Court of Arbitration for Sport initially declared that any woman with hyperandrogenism were free to compete without undergoing hormone-suppressing treatment.

As she had done in the 3000m final four days earlier, Decker took up the pace. The blustery conditions held her back to 64.04 at 400m and 2:10.92 at 800m. At the bell, Decker led with Zaytseva on her shoulder.

The American tried to pull away on the backstraight. Zaytseva followed and shot ahead on the last bend, before swerving in front of Decker. A gap of five metres opened up in the process. The American looked beaten, but once in the straight, Decker's long, smooth strides enabled her to gain on the straining Soviet. The American regained the lead 10m before the line. In response, Zaytseva oversteered and fell five metres before the line. She managed to roll across the finish in second place.

"She was definitely being competitive," said Decker of Zaytseva's tactics. "Instead of going around, she ran into me. I think the rule is you have to be a full stride ahead before cutting in. She wasn't ahead and she was cutting in."

Rightful finalist: Fatima Aouam MAR

Samolenko emulated Mary Decker's 1983 feat by adding this title to the 3000m gold she had won earlier in the week. The Ukrainian's kick was so feared that the GDR appeared to sacrifice Ulrike Bruns in order to take the sting out of Samolenko's finish.

Bruns set a pace of 62.15, 2:07.16 and 2:39.99 before dropping out. This left Körner in front (1200m: 3:12.74), as planned. Despite the fast pace, Körner continued to run strongly. However, she could not withstand Samolenko who went ahead just 15m from the finish.

The bronze originally went to Gasser, who outkicked Melinte, but the Swiss woman subsequently failed a doping control test to become the first athlete to lose a world championship medal in such circumstances.

The USSR had not selected the world's best 1500m runner of 1991, Natalya Artyomova, who had failed to compete in her national championships. Instead, the USSR's hopes were pinned on defending champion Tatyana Dorovskikh. The Ukrainian had won the 3000m five days before and was hoping to duplicate her 1987 double.

The pace was slow: Rogachova led at 400m in 66.64 and 800m in 2:12.27. Approaching the bell, the 3000m bronze medallist Sirma took over. Melinte, Boulmerka, Dorovskikh, Rogachova and Plumer followed. With 200m remaining, the 34 year-old Melinte made her move. Only Boulmerka and the two Soviets could stay with the Romanian.

Into the finishing straight, Boulmerka spurred ahead. Dorovskikh kicked, but could not catch the Algerian. Rogachova came through for the bronze.

Boulmerka's was the first world title to be won by an African woman, and she made no secret of her excitement. She yelled out something on crossing the line and explained: "That was my cry for joy. This is the first win by a woman from Algeria and I think this is the beginning of a greater role for Algerian women."

After their exploits in the Stuttgart 3000m and 10,000m, all eyes were on China's representatives in the last of the women's distance races. A personal best of 4:04.36 in the heats, including a 4:25 last 300m, marked out Liu Dong as the probable winner.

Liu shared the lead with defending champion Boulmerka in the final. The pace was 68.20 and 2:17.58. At precisely 800m, Liu took off and ran clear of the pack with a 60.15 circuit. Incredibly, she managed to accelerate (57.48 last 400m, 42.77 last 300m) and had a winning margin of 30m.

The silver went to a delighted O'Sullivan, who had been favoured to win the 3000m but placed only fourth. A relieved Boulmerka outran the other Chinese finalist, Lu, for the bronze.

"The crowd support was great and cheered me on to my success," said Dong. "I never had any doubts about my victory during the race." In fact, a cynical section of the crowd could be heard booing the sight of another Chinese woman runner sprinting away to victory.

Boulmerka added to her reputation as a big-meeting competitor when she made the world championship the only final she would win all year.

The pre-meeting favourite was Commonwealth Champion Holmes, who was drawn with Boulmerka in the two preliminary races. In the final she shadowed the Algerian as Graham set the pace of 67.38 at 400m, 2:12.73 at 800m and 3:17.00 at 1200m. Then Boulmerka started to sprint for home. The British runner responded well and the two ran shoulder to shoulder around the last bend with Holmes on the outside. The Algerian did not yield and edged clear in the straight, clocking 29.5 for the last 200m compared with Holmes's 30.0.

The eagerly awaited race between Olympic Champion Masterkova and 1997 world leader Holmes never came to pass. Injury forced Holmes to a walk in her heat and reduced Masterkova to limping home last in her semi. That made the final wide open and after three slow laps in the lead by Ewerlöf it was down to the best sprinter. That proved to be Sacramento but her 60.9 last lap hardly compared with Holmes' 59.7 in her Commonwealth record of 3:58.07 or Masterkova's 60.0 finale to her 4:00.83 victory in the Atlanta Olympics. Jacobs, who had been thrown off stride along the final back straight by 19 year-old world junior 3000m champion Weyermann, did well to regain her composure and take the silver.

Stating that the 800m was merely preparation for this event, Masterkova added this gold medal to the ones she gained at the 1996 Olympics and 1998 European Championships. To the credit of her opponents they made it a fast race, hoping her legendary finish could be blunted, but it turned out to be a lost cause. Buhaiuanu opened up a substantial lead on the first lap (63.87) and was still ahead, but only just, at 800m (2:12.89). Jacobs and title holder Sacramento made the third lap a quick one at 63.10 but with 200m to go, with Sacramento in front, there were still five runners in contention. Masterkova sped past, with Jacobs in her slipstream, at the start of the finishing straight, with Dulecha and Szekely also overtaking the Portuguese runner. The Spanish-based Masterkova ran a last lap of 58.4, while Jacobs – clocking 4:00.35 a day after her 36th birthday – broke a personal best which had stood since 1988! Mérah-Benida, who would bring off a sensational Olympic victory the following year, was eliminated in her heat in 4:08.90.

This event was dominated by the two Romanians, the two-time 5000m Champion Szabo and the 36 year-old Szekely, unbeaten outdoors at 1500m so far in 2001. It was common knowledge that the two were not the best of friends, with Szekely reportedly suing Szabo for $225,000 after calling her “ugly” in magazine and television interviews.

In the final, Ayhan led for a lap (63.78) before Gorelova took up the pace and kept it quick (800m: 2:08.95, 1100m: 2:58.09, 1200m: 3:14.45). Szekely was in second place, tracked by Szabo and 1997 winner Sacramento. With 200m to go, Szabo overtook Szekely and waited behind Gorelova until the finishing straight, when she kicked again to win by a clear margin. Szekely came through for the silver, but was never in the hunt for gold.

After the finish, Szabo took Szekely's hand and the two jogged a victory lap together. “I congratulate Gabriela on her win,” said Szekely, “but that is not to say that I forgive her for all that has happened between us.”

Since her good showing in Edmonton, Ayhan had made a spectacular improvement with front-running victories at the 2002 European Championships, World Cup and in the Golden League. In Zurich on August 15 she had beaten a world-class field by 30m in 3:55.60, the world's fastest since 1997.

In Paris she raced off again to a 60.50 first lap, quicker than she went in the Zurich race. This time she was not able to build up a commanding lead and a 66.26 second lap by the Turk enabled Zadorozhnaya (running her fifth race in six days) and Rozenberg to close in. Just after the bell (2:56.58), Zadorozhnaya nipped ahead, only for Ayhan to respond with a 15.2 100m down the backstraight. This put her into a 6m lead but she was to pay the price for that spurt. The Turk had no answer when Tomashova challenged 40m from home. The long-haired Russian went on to win with a personal best from Ayhan, while Tullett improved from seventh at the bell to take the bronze.

Regina Jacobs – the silver medalist from 1997 and 1999 – reached the semi-finals this time but was ultimately disqualified after it was found that she had tested positive for tetrahydrogestrinone (or THG) at the US Championships in June 2003. It should be noted that both Tomashova and Ayhan were also disqualified for doping violations later in their careers.

Undefeated Jamal and Russian Champion Chizhenko were the heat winners. Only Russia had more than one qualifier for the final...with four! Soboleva led the field through three laps in the final [66.28-2:12.68-3:16.97], passing the bell in 2:59.44. Jamal, the frail Ethiopian-born Bahrain athlete, accelerated past in the back straight, but was quickly caught by the Russians. Chizhenko went by Jamal on the inside, catching her with her arm, and knocking her off stride. Tomashova caught Chizhenko with 50m to go and won by 4m, from her team-mate and Yegorova. Chizhenko was then disqualified after a Bahraini protest. Tomashova ran her last lap in 58.8, and became the first female 1500m runner to win consecutive titles. As she had finished eighth in her only completed race in 2005 prior to Helsinki, it was a remarkable triumph.

Leading into Osaka, Jamal, Soboleva and Gelete Burka (ETH) had the top seven times of the year, but Burka opted for the 5000m. The preliminary rounds saw only one race quicker than 4:09, won by Lishchynska in 4:03.84, from Soboleva. The Russian, who had beaten Jamal twice during the summer, took the pacemaking duties on in the final, passing 400m in 65.82, and then speeding up through laps of 63.75 and 63.09. Jamal was on Soboleva's shoulder at the 1200m mark, and went past shortly after. A quickly-gained lead of just over a metre was maintained all the way to the line, though Soboleva fought hard to close the gap. The two finished 15m clear of Lishchynska, who had moved from fifth to third in the last 100m, as Selsouli, third for most of the last lap, faded badly in the last 50m. Jamal's win was the first for a Bahraini woman in the World Championships, though she had been born in Ethiopia.

Soboleva went on to take the World Indoor title in Valencia 2008, but then the following July was suspended for doping offences by the IAAF along with six of her compatriots. They were charged with having manipulated their urine samples (in spring 2007) after DNA testing had appeared to show that the samples did not belong to the athletes concerned. They were initially banned by the All-Russia Athletic Federation for two years starting from April and May of 2007 (April 26 in Soboleva's case), which meant that they would be clear to compete at the 2009 World Championships. In November 2008, the IAAF appealed to the Court of Arbitration for Sport against the decision of the ARAF on the grounds that the start of the sanction could not be backdated to before the initial suspension, and that in the circumstances, the period of suspension ought to be greater than the minimum of two-years.

In July 2009 the CAS ruled against the ARAF and the Russian group's suspension was fixed at two years nine months. Therefore,

Two of the three heats featured falls by athletes who were then put through to the next round on appeal. The drama continued in the semi-finals which saw the surprising elimination of Olympic Champion Langat and, inexplicably, 3:58.38 performer Alminova. Jamal was left as favourite to retain her title.

Burka, who had won five of her six preceding races, set a modest pace for the first two laps (66.66/68.47) before speeding up with a 62.24 third lap. The Ethiopian now led by a metre from Jamal, and Rodriguez was a further metre behind, with Dobriskey on her outside. With 200m to go, the Spaniard attempted to overtake Burka on the inside, but there was no gap there and she pushed the Ethiopian, causing her to fall. Jamal went clear, then Rodriguez caught her with 75m remaining, and crossed the line 3m ahead in 4:03.36. Jamal just held off Dobriskey. The television replays appeared to confirm that Rodriguez would be disqualified, and this news was swiftly confirmed. Jamal thus retained her title.

Selsouli (fourth in Osaka) comfortably qualified for the final, but was withdrawn after it was confirmed that she had failed an out-of-competition doping test on August 2. She became the second Moroccan in Berlin to cheat another athlete out of a World Championship final place, the other was steelpuncher Jamel Chatbi.

The final was led by Belete through 400m in a slow 68.78, and she continued in front through 800m (2:13.94) to 950m, when Kenya's Obiri fell, taking Uceny with her and causing defending champion Jamal to be badly spiked.

Rodríguez passed Belete at the bell (3:03.47) and held the lead to the finishing straight, followed in close order by Gezahegne, Lakhoud and Simpson who had gradually progressed from seventh place at 1200m. In the closing stages it was the number two American who was the strongest, finishing two metres clear of England, who progressed from seventh to second in the straight. The winner remarked "The last few metres I was thinking about what this could mean for my life and family and my little sisters starting in the army. I was thinking "let's get that anthem played."

The event was tainted by as many as seven women (three Russians, two Ukrainians, one Belarusian and one Turk), who were ultimately disqualified for doping offences.

The final was led early on by Simpson, with Obiri and Aregawi close behind. The defending champion passed 400m in a transponder time of 65.76, but slowed to 2:13.95 at 800m, with the field now closely bunched. Simpson reached the bell in 3:03.75 with only 17 year-old Cain detached from the pack of contenders. Aregawi – the 2013 world leader and undefeated at five Diamond Leagues – went to the front with 280m remaining. She was chased hard by Simpson but held on to win as the two clocked closing 200m transponder times of 28.79 and 29.06 respectively. Obiri took third ahead of England who progressed to fourth from seventh place in the last half-lap.

Five weeks before the championships, Dibaba clocked 3:50.07 to break a world record which had stood since 1993 to China's Qu Yunxia. The final in Beijing started at nothing like that pace, with the photo-cell clock showing only 77.06 at 400m as Rowbury led the pack. The shuffling pace continued until just before the penultimate lap, at which point Dibaba suddenly took off.

According to her bib transponder, Dibaba's first 700m had averaged just 18.73 per 100m section. The next one took only 14.51. The bell was reached in 3:08.69, after a 57.53 lap. Kipyegon, Seyaum and Hassan were barely hanging on. Dibaba's pressure finally told with 150m remaining, as she steadily drew clear of her pursuers. Her final time of 4:08.09 was nothing special, but a transponder-timed last 800m in 1:56.95 was enormously impressive. The next four finishers also ran their last two laps in less than two minutes. "I know everybody in this race and I know everything about my competitors, so I was very confident," said the new champion.

Muir set a deteriorating pace in the final, with the first lap of 65.35 (by photo-cell), followed by a funeral 71.78. Kipyegon stayed on the Briton's shoulder and edged in front on the penultimate backstraight, but then Hassan quickly swept by everyone and led through the bell (3:04.55), with Kipyegon, Simpson and Muir in close attendance. The Dutchwoman covered the next 200m in 27.99, drawing Kipyegon clear of the pack while Muir separated herself from the chasers as they turned into the finishing straight.

It looked as if the medals would go to those three as Kipyegon broke clear from Hassan, but then both Simpson and Semenyá (eighth with 250m to go) made their final efforts. Just as Muir caught the fading Hassan, she too was reeled in by the American and South African. The four were all in a line with 25m left. Simpson finished quickest on the inside and won silver a metre ahead of Semenyá, who edged Muir on the line after a 57.60 last lap. The first half had been run at 4:17.1 pace, the last 700m at a 3:46.0 tempo. World record holder Dibaba, such a dominant winner in 2015, finished last.

Like the men's 50 kilometre walk of 1976, the IAAF arranged world championships for the women's 3000 and 400m hurdles – events not yet on the Olympic timetable. Sadly, the championships were devalued by the late withdrawal of the USSR team.

The season's nine fastest 3000m runners did not compete. The 1980 world number 10, Friedmann, who had not previously broken nine minutes, made a timely improvement to win the title comfortably. She took the lead after 1300m. The other medals went to Scandinavians, with 24 year-old Ingrid Christensen (later Kristiansen) taking her first major honour. "If all the aces had started I certainly would not have won", said the modest winner.

The aura of invincibility enjoyed by Soviet women distance runners was cracked by an American hitherto untested at this level: Mary Decker. The US record holder, with a string of fast times to her credit but little championship experience, went to the front from the start. The fast pace (1000m: 2:51.00, 2000m: 5:48.89) reduced the number of contenders to six at the bell: Decker, Sly, Possamai, Ulmasova, Kazankina and Kraus.

The pace quickened in the final lap with Decker still in front. By sticking to the American's shoulder, Sly made it difficult for the two Soviets to mount a challenge but as they swung into the straight, both Ulmasova (the world record holder) and Kazankina – the two-time Olympic 1500m Champion – were poised to contest the gold and silver. Kazankina sprinted past the American, only for Decker to produce a more effective kick of her own. To wild cheers of the 49,093 crowd, she glided into a winning lead.

The dispirited Kazankina was overtaken by Kraus, who comfortably broke the West German record.

Defending Champion Dorovskikh (née Samolenko) had taken the Olympic title after her Rome win, but thereafter had been out of action for maternity reasons. Both she and her teammate Romanova had little form so far in 1991, but they looked ominously easy in the final.

The race started at a reasonable pace (2:51.83 at 1000m), but slowed in the second kilometre. The major break came from European Champion Murray, the pre-meeting favourite. She took off with 550m remaining and led at the bell with just three others – Sirma, Romanova and Dorovskikh – for company. The Briton looked beaten on the last backstraight when Sirma went to the front. Romanova then made a move at 2800m. Dorovskikh followed and the two battled it out down the homestraight. The 30 year-old Dorovskikh proved the stronger. Sirma took the bronze – the first world championship medal to be won by an African woman.

"I was prepared to run a sit-and-kick type of race, or one with a fast pace from the start," said Dorovskikh.

It was clear that something special was happening in China when the IAAF received an application for a world junior 3000m record of 8:36.45 by Ma Ningning in Jinan on June 6, 1993. Shockingly, the forms showed that Ma had actually only placed fourth in a very fast race behind Wang Junxia 8:27.68, Qu Yunxia 8:29.30 and Zhang Lirong 8:35.05. Qu, Zhang, and Zhang Linli were the Chinese representatives in the Stuttgart 3000m. Wang opted for the 10,000m.

The Chinese trio all qualified impressively for the final, which started slowly (2:59.06 at 1000m). Murray rapped the pace slightly in the second kilometre. The three Chinese ran together just behind her. At 2300m, they took off in spectacular fashion with Qu in front. Clocking 60.72 for the section between 2400m and 2800m, they left no-one else with the chance of even a medal. Qu and the Zhangs, filed in descending order of height, continued their remarkable pace around the final lap.

Qu and Zhang Linli went clear in the straight while Zhang Lirong held off O'Sullivan who had been the only other runner able make any sort of impression in the closing stages. The gold went to Qu who covered the final lap in an amazing 59.22. After the race, the winner revealed that she would be giving her prize car to her father as she could not drive. She set a world record at 1500m in September 1993, but her and the Zhangs were never seen again at a global championship. This was the final World Championship 3000m for women.

World junior 3000m champion Szabo made a bold start in the final with a 63.28 first lap which put her into a lead of 15m. The pace settled down after that with the Romanian leading at 1000m in 2:51.95 and 2000m in 5:53.48. Radcliffe then took over, running 3:04.7 for the third kilometre to reach 3000m in 8:58.19. Second at this point was the big favourite, O'Sullivan.

The British runner stayed ahead for two more laps before Ribeiro – running her fourth race in seven days – took over. The Portuguese surged and by the bell had dropped all but O'Sullivan and Ouaziz. Szabo and Radcliffe were contesting fourth place.

Just before the final bend, O'Sullivan made her move. Ribeiro held the Irishwoman for some of the turn but was no match for O'Sullivan's 28.8 final 200m. "After the first three laps, it was quite clear that the kick would be decisive," said O'Sullivan. "I never look back, and I didn't tonight."

Judging from their races over 3000m earlier in the season it was totally predictable that Szabo would retain her title ahead of Ouaziz, although Worku kept them company until the very last stages. Aware that her only, forlorn, hope of winning was to try and draw the sting from her opponent's fabled finish, Ouaziz set a fast pace in the heat and humidity. Inevitably Szabo – racing 5000m for the first time that summer – had no problem shadowing the Moroccan as she tried to drive for home and proceeded to outkick her, covering the final 200m in 29.4 and kilometre in 2:49.0 for a championship record of 14:41.82.

Worku never contributed to the pace but clung on to knock more than 10 seconds from her best in third place. Next came Kazakstan-born Mikitenko in a German record, followed by a Turkish record for Kavaklioglu, who was formerly Yelena Kopytova, 6th in the 1992 Olympic 3000m representing Russia.

The 1995 champion O'Sullivan and bronze medalist Ouaziz had dreadful runs this time, eliminated in the heats with respective times of 15:40.82 and 15:58.84, but Szabo – fourth last time – came up trumps. The race, run in 28°C heat, was perfectly set up for a prodigious kicker like the Romanian. The early pace was painfully slow (3:11.74 at 1000), and succeeding kilometres of 2:58.66 and 2:58.22 with Cheromei leading, and 3:02.21 with Radcliffe ahead did nothing to diminish Szabo's sprinting powers. She sped through the final 200m in 29.5 for a last kilometre of 2:46.5. Brunet overtook world record holder Ribeiro (who had finished second in the 10,000m four days earlier) for the silver.

One of the world's leading woman athletes prior to Edmonton had been Russia's Yegorova who had taken the world indoor title at 3000m and followed up with super-fast victories at that distance in the Paris and Rome Golden Leagues. Just before the World Championships, it was announced that Yegorova had been suspended after failing a test in Paris for the hormone erythropoietin (EPO), a drug taken to boost endurance. The suspension was then lifted because the Paris test had been incomplete. Only a urine sample had been tested, whereas a blood test was also necessary.

"Therefore, for strictly legal reasons," explained IAAF Vice-President Arne Ljungqvist, "the IAAF had no choice but lifting the ban because the test was not consistent with the rules."

The issue cast a shadow over the Edmonton 5000m, not least because defending champion Szabo threatened to boycott the event if Yegorova competed. In the end Szabo did run, but she was not a factor in the final after having already run (and won) three rounds of the 1500m in Edmonton. The controversy was evident in the heats, when a contingent from Britain held up a sign during Yegorova's race which read "EPO Cheats Out."

The final was a slow race with former world record holder Dong leading at 3000m in 9:17.25. At 4000m (12:21.68), Dong surged and covered the 11th lap in 68.24. By the bell it was her from Zadorozhnaya, Dominguez, Worku and Yegorova. Halfway down the backstraight Yegorova pounced and left everyone behind with a 29.04 final 200m. Hers was not a joyous victory as she was booed by the crowd, and she quickly disappeared into the mixed zone. Dominguez took the silver and Worku repeated her 1999 bronze, catching Dong just 20m from the line.

The standard set in the heats was the highest ever in a championship 5000m, with 15:04.00 insufficient for progress. Olga Yegorova was a shadow of her 2001 self and was eliminated from the first heat in 10th place. In the final, 3000m was reached in 9:08.88 and 12 of the 15 finalist were in touch with two laps left.

Zadorozhnaya, who had also qualified for the 1500m final, took up the pace and covered the penultimate lap in 68.1. She led down the final backstraight then Dominguez slipped through on the inside with exactly 200m left. Zadorozhnaya and Masai were on the heels of the Spaniard and one felt the gold would go to one of those three, only for young Ethiopian Dibaba to glide past them all on the outside with the finish in sight. Masai briefly held second place before Dominguez responded to repeat her 2001 silver. At 18 years 90 days, Dibaba became the youngest ever individual world champion based on her Paris entry birthdate of June 1, 1985. At subsequent championships, an even later birthdate has been submitted for her: October 1, 1985. So she was apparently only 17 years 333 days old in Paris.

Dibaba and Defar, the respective World and Olympic Champions, were the favourites, though history was against Dibaba as no woman had ever won a global 5000m/10,000m double. The race began slowly, with a 3:02.53 kilometre split, but Sun then upped the pace with 2:51.32, before slowing to 8:52.62 at 3000m. The pace dipped further in the fourth kilometre which set things up for the fast-finishing Ethiopians. At the bell Xing led, but Dibaba sped by with 300m to go and only Defar could stay with her. With 60m to go Defar finally broke and Dibaba won by 8m, from Defar with her sister Ejegayehu winning her second bronze in Helsinki, and Melkamu creating the first women's four-way sweep (just two days after the American men's 200m). Dibaba's last lap was a scintillating 58.2.

The event lost some of its lustre when defending champion Tirunesh Dibaba withdrew having failed to fully recover from the 10,000m. A modest pace was set in the final with Fukushi leading through the first two kilometres with splits of 2:59.22 and 3:05.47 [6:04.69]. Cheruyiot was the leader for the next two kilometres, reaching 4000m in 12:13.05, which set the race up for the best kickers in the field. Defar, renowned as no worse than the second best finisher around (the best being Dibaba), lived up to her reputation. The Olympic Champion and world record holder took the lead just before the bell, and ran successive 200m splits of 30.45 and 28.18 to win by 5m from Cheruiyot (28.58 last 200m), with Cherono edging Kibet for the bronze.

Abeylesse finished fifth for the second successive World Championships, but that result was annulled a decade later when it was confirmed that an anabolic steroid had been present after a re-test of her 2007 doping control sample. She was also stripped of the 10,000m silver she had taken one week earlier in Osaka.

Defending champion Defar was fastest in the heats, which eliminated just seven runners. The pace in the final was slow, with Cheruiyot leading at 3000m in 9:15.05. Little was done in the fourth kilometre (3:00.74), which in ordinary circumstances would have been playing into the hands of fast-finishing Defar. Cheruiyot increased the pace in the penultimate lap (67.9), but there were still six in with a chance of gold as the bell sounded. Cheruiyot, Defar and Kibet pulled away from the others in the back straight, and Defar went into the lead with 150m to go but could not get clear. Cheruiyot reacted and edged ahead with 40m remaining, then the Ethiopian gave up and was also passed by Kibet. Cheruiyot and Kibet ran their last 400s in 58.62 and 58.76 respectively. It was later discovered that the Ethiopian was running in Berlin with respiratory problems, though she also managed a sub-59 last lap.

"After Masai won the 10K race, she encouraged me to be self-confident," said her friend Cheruiyot. "She was my biggest inspiration."

Cheruiyot, nearly 10 seconds faster than anyone else with her 14:20.87 in July 2011, was attempting to retain her title and also to become the only woman other than Tirunesh Dibaba to win the world 5000/10,000m double. "Tiru" was absent from Daegu with another unspecified injury, but her younger sister Genzebe was there and was one of the heat winners along with former Olympic Champion Defar.

No-one was interested in setting a fast pace in the final and the race was led by Niisha (3:01.87 at 1000m) and Zadorozhnaya (6:07.18 at 2000m). Cheruiyot was in the lead at 3000m (9:10.97), and was surprised that no-one was keen to apply pressure. She shared the lead with Masai, passing 4000m in 12:13.72, and started to crank up the pace with 600m remaining. At the bell (13:56.68) there were still seven in contention, but with 200m left only Defar and Kibet were in touch with the flying Cheruiyot, and a final 200m in 29.17 sealed her victory. Kibet passed Defar in the last 50m to win silver. History repeated itself in that the top four were the same as in Berlin though then Cheruiyot's last lap was 58.62 whereas in Daegu it was "only" 58.68!

The final began slowly with an opening lap led by Conley, whose transponder stopped the clock at 78.53 after 400m. Nowakowska led at 2000m in 6:14.09, and Ayana took over just before 3000m (9:18.44). Defar then had a brief spell in front on the ninth lap, as if to urge Ayana to go faster, which she then did on returning to the lead. That lap to 3600m (68.14 by photo-cell) was the fastest of the race so far. Ayana maintained that tempo with Defar, Cherono, Kibiwot and World Junior Champion Diriba the only ones to keep up. Then Diriba was dropped and Kibiwot fell back as the top three kicked just after the bell. Defar went past Ayana with 200m remaining, and won by almost 10m after a last 200m of 29.31 according to transponders.

The final was led by Japan's Onishi and Suzuki for the first two kilometres, reached in 6:06.26 by photo-cell. Shortly after, Ayana executed her plan, upping the pace from 73 seconds a lap to 68. A photo-cell timed lap of 67.60 followed (to 2800m), and by 3000m (8:55.63) only Dibaba and Cherono were in contact. In the next lap the Kenyan slipped back, as Ayana increased the pace with a 65.85 circuit. It was a tenth lap of 64.52 which killed off Dibaba's chances. By 4000m Ayana was suddenly five seconds clear having covered that kilometre in 2:43.62.

A final 1000m of 2:47.58 gave Ayana a winning margin of almost 20 seconds. According to her bib transponder, she covered her last 3000m in an unprecedented 8:19.91. Dibaba, with three races over 1500m in her legs from earlier in the week, was caught unaware by Teferi in the finishing straight. The youngest athlete in the race edged her famous compatriot by 0.07 to give Ethiopia another medal sweep. Dibaba later complained about her left foot: "I have a heel spur which hurts a lot."

Just as in Rio 2016, it seemed that Ayana over-exerted herself in winning the 10,000m and hadn't saved enough for the 5000m later in the programme. Her losing time of 14:40.35 was considerably slower than the second half of her epic win at 10,000m eight days earlier.

The final started in slow motion with the first kilometre reached in 3:18.61 by photo cell. Ayana then made her trademark surge, covering laps four and five in 2:11.82. Only Obiri stayed in touch, 20m ahead of a group of five with the next tranche of runners a further 25m behind. The defending champion's second kilometre had taken 2:48.59, and marginally slower kilos of 2:50.64 and 2:51.90 took her and Obiri through 4000m some 60m clear of Teferi, Kipkemboi and Hassan. It was all over 350m from the finish, when Obiri switched gears and went away to win by 40m with a last lap of 60.44. That looked super-fast compared with Ayana's 66.14, but much quicker was Hassan's final circuit of 58.21.

World record holder Ingrid Kristiansen ran a clever tactical race in which she managed to discourage all her rivals despite being below her best form.

The Norwegian took off in the second lap and by 1000m had a lead of some 20 seconds. By halfway (15:21.51), Kristiansen had started to lap the field. The chasing pack, led by Liz Lynch (5000m: 15:36.5) seemed to be racing for the silver medal. By the bell, the Norwegian's lead was still 15 seconds, but this was cut dramatically as the race for the silver exploded. It was Zhupiyova, not her better-known teammate Bondarenko, who had the best finish. Her 61.5 last lap was more than 10 seconds faster than Kristiansen but she had left her effort too late.

McColgan, who as Liz Lynch had placed fifth in Rome, overcame the extreme heat and humidity to win from the front by a huge margin.

The start of the final was delayed by several minutes following the commotion surrounding Mike Powell's long jump world record. Once the race started, McColgan's intentions were clear. With kilometre splits of 3:02.95, 6:09.42, 9:16.96 and 12:25.85, she gradually dropped most of the opposition, including the defending champion Kristiansen.

At halfway (15:34.15), the Scotswoman had only the world junior champion, Tulu, for company. The chasing pack were 20m behind. The Ethiopian tried to slow the pace down at the start of the eighth kilometre, but McColgan pushed on relentlessly and was 80m in front by 8000m. Tulu fell out of contention.

While McColgan crossed the line, the Chinese pair of Zhong and Wang were unexpectedly outstripping Ullrich for the other medals.

"I was waiting for someone to pass me, but nobody did," said McColgan, who had given birth to a daughter just 10 months earlier. "Tulu tried, but she was actually trying to slow down the pace. I knew she was tired and I knew if I wanted the gold, I would have to go for it. And I tried, saying 'I want, I want, I want ...'

In spite of the conditions, a terrific standard was set in the heats with 14 women quicker than 32 minutes.

The two Chinese finalists, Wang and Zhong, set off on pace for a championship record (1000m: 3:04.00, 2000m: 6:11.84, 3000m: 9:20.16). Barsosio, Meyer and Jennings were in close attendance, but the inexperienced Barsosio, just 15, was causing problems. She repeatedly blocked Meyer's attempts to overtake her and was given an official warning for her conduct. A distraught Meyer – the Olympic silver medalist – dropped out of the race soon after 3000m.

The Kenyan went on take the lead (4000m: 12:28.72) and for a while was as much as 10m in front. By halfway (15:43.38), Zhong was in front again. Barsosio, along with her teammate Loroupe, stayed with the Chinese pair, but no-one could react when Wang made her move with six laps remaining. She produced a lap of 70.2 and managed to speed up further. Her final 3000m took just 8:42.42 and the final lap 61.07.

Zhong outkicked Barsosio to duplicate her 1991 silver medal. It was mistakenly announced that Barsosio had been disqualified after the race. In the confusion, she was not asked to perform a doping test, meaning that her time could not stand as a world junior record.

Wang's run was a prelude to a remarkable spate of record-breaking runs by China's women at the Chinese National Games in Beijing. Eighteen days after her gold medal, Wang lowered Ingrid Kristiansen's world record to an unbelievable 29:31.78.

Once she confirmed she would run the 10,000m, Ribeiro was many people's favourite as she had set a world 5000m record of 14:36.45 two weeks earlier. She was the leader of the 20-strong final on a slow first lap (83.02), before Britons Hunter and McColgan took up the pace. McColgan, the 1991 champion, passed 3000m in 9:45.94 (3:13 pace). Meyer then injected some pace with a 2:56.37 fourth kilometre. This spread the field and Ribeiro was the only one to follow closely. Ribeiro moved in front at 5000m (15:46.89). Meyer, Olympic Champion Tulu, Loroupe and Guida followed with McColgan an isolated sixth.

The Italian was dropped at 7Km. Meyer was the next to crack. At 9Km, Ribeiro led from Tulu and Loroupe. The Portuguese had been leading for 4000m and had run the previous 3000m in 9:16.21. She continued to lead into the final lap. Loroupe was dropped at the bell but Tulu stuck to the Portuguese and looked relaxed. She duly challenged for the lead on the final bend. Ribeiro, though, had saved enough and pulled clear to win.

History was made when, for the first time, a Kenyan woman won a global track title. The distinction fell to Barsosio, who at the 1993

Championships, when reportedly only 15, had become the youngest ever medalist when finishing third in controversial circumstances. This time she dethroned Ribeiro in 31:32.92, which was recognised as a world junior record since her 1993 mark of 31:15.38 was never ratified as no doping test was carried out.

The first half of the race, run in 30°C heat, was slow, with Ribeiro the leader in 16:12.81, but Barsosio, who burst ahead three laps from the end with a 67.9 23rd lap, completed her second 5000m in 15:20.0 with an unstoppable final kilometre of 2:52.35. "Ribeiro has a strong kick and I didn't want to wait for it," she explained.

Several leading lights met with disaster. The 1992 Olympic Champion Tulu was eliminated in the heats, her Ethiopian colleague Wami (the 1996 world cross country champion) was carried off with a pulled muscle, and Meyer – the Olympic runner-up to Tulu – fell and finished last.

That this was probably the greatest ever women's distance race was largely due to the courageous running of Radcliffe. Despite 30°C+ heat she led for most of the way at incredible speed for the conditions, smashed her Commonwealth record by over 13 seconds, and destroyed such brilliant runners as Ribeiro (who dropped out at 6 kilometres) and Loroupe, who was forced to concede early on the last lap. The only problem was that despite Radcliffe's Herculean efforts she could not shake off world 8 kilometres cross country champion Wami, who proceeded to outkick the Briton over the last 200m having not led for a single stride until then. Wami's African and Ethiopian record of 30:24.56 was then the fifth-fastest ever run, while Radcliffe's 30:27.13 ranked 6th and Loroupe's Kenyan record of 30:32.03 7th.

Wami, Ethiopia's first woman to win a world track title, covered the second 5000m in a remarkable 14:59.1. The kilometre splits were 3:11.45, 3:04.99, 3:03.65, 3:02.64, 3:02.51, 2:59.04, 3:03.06, 3:03.30, 2:59.76 and 2:54.16.

The pace was not quick and halfway was reached with Belkacem in front in 16:28.89. The pack did not begin to dwindle until the 20th lap, and all eyes were on 1999 silver medalist Radcliffe and three Ethiopians – defending champion Wami, Olympic Champion Tulu and the experienced Adere. Radcliffe ran from the front in Seville and Sydney (where she was fourth). In Edmonton she waited until four laps from home to make her bid for victory. She covered the 23rd lap in 68.77 but one lap later – at the bell – the Ethiopian trio all went past her.

Tulu proved to be the best of the Ethiopians, but only just. She and Adere sprinted side by side until the finish, where Tulu was just 0.04 ahead. Meanwhile Radcliffe was battling with Wami for the bronze but she fell 0.08 short of preventing an Ethiopian sweep. Cruelly for the British runner, the scoreboard initially and wrongly showed her and not Wami in third place.

It was a pity that European record holder Paula Radcliffe withdrew from the championships feeling unprepared after illness and injury. Yet the woman athlete of 2002 was hardly missed from the greatest ever women's 10,000m race. Right from the start it was quick, the first kilometre reached in 2:59.62. By the second kilometre Sun was ahead. The Chinese was an interesting sight, running with arms dangling at her side except at the end of each lap when she pressed a button on her wristwatch. She produced a 69.6 circuit to 2400m and the field was strung out behind her. She continued to 3000m in 8:59.93 (2:56.52 kilometre), then 4000m in 12:00.16. Only four women stayed in touch: four Ethiopians and Kiplagat, a Kenyan who had recently become a Dutch citizen. Kiplagat took over from Sun as they went through halfway in 15:06.53.

Shortly after 5000m, the 2001 champion Tulu dropped out. She had apparently been suffering from food poisoning. That fifth kilometre had taken 3:06.37 (the slowest of the race). Kiplagat picked up the pace again but could not shake off Adere, Kidane or Sun. Then with 700m left the valiant Sun surged again, covering the penultimate lap in 68.55. She did not drop the other three, but one wondered if anyone would produce a finishing kick after such a harsh pace. The answer "yes" came on the backstraight of the last lap when Adere raced ahead. She won clearly with a new African record, having covered the last 200m in 29.9. Records tumbled in this race which saw the fastest ever times for places 2-16. In seventh place Xing Huina broke the world junior record.

Radcliffe chose to use the 10,000m as a warm-up for the marathon, and duly led from the gun, passing 5000m in 15:16.29. Masai and Kidane then took over the pacemaking for the next 2000m, before Xing took the helm. The 9000m mark was passed in 27:35.19, and Adere, winner in 2003 and in the top seven since the 1997 championships, led at the bell in 30:25.50. Adere had accelerated a few strides before the bell with only the Dibaba sisters able to go with her. Tirunesh Dibaba flowed past with 210m to go and won regally by 10m after a last lap of 58.4.

Dibaba was the hot favourite to repeat as the champion, but events conspired to put this prediction in jeopardy. The heat (30°C) ensured a slow pace, and halfway was reached in a tortuous 16:29.24. At 6000m, Tufa and Johnson fell while Dibaba very nearly did so, and Dibaba then dropped 40m behind the field, suffering from stomach cramps. After 4 laps she managed to rejoin the field, and reacted when Abeyegesse speeded things up. The Ethiopian-born Turk covered the eighth kilometre in 3:07.62, and accelerated further to 3:02.45 with the ninth. Behind the leading two, Pavey, Smith and Goucher were fighting for third place, with Goucher covering her last 200m in 32.0 to ensure the bronze ahead of Pavey. Up ahead it was Dibaba back to form in the last lap, taking over from Abeyegesse at the bell, and cruising away to win by 30m. This time her last circuit took 60.11, with most of the work done in the penultimate 200m, covered in 29.38.

In August 2015, the Turkish Athletics Federation confirmed that Abeyegesse had failed a re-test of a doping control sample from Osaka 2007. She appealed against the decision, but in March 2017 her guilt was finally established, two years of her results were disqualified, and all those originally finishing below second place in this race were upgraded. Goucher and Pavey finally received their new medals at the London World Championships 10 years later.

* Cut in prematurely from outer stagger at start

Melkamu had run an African record 29:53.80 earlier in the season, but was not favourite, as Defar in her debut at the event had run 29:59.20 in poor conditions five weeks before the championships.

The pace was slow, with halfway reached in 15:45.19. Masai stepped things up sharply with 3000m to go, putting in a 71 second lap followed by circuits of 69.8 and 70.5. This ensured that the leading group of five – three Ethiopians and two Kenyans – were well clear of the field. Momanyi shared the pace with Masai who led at the bell (29:48.10). Defar went into the lead 350m from the finish and continued to lead from Melkamu with 100m to go, with Masai 2m back. Melkamu caught a faltering Defar with 40m left, but it became clear that Masai – despite her earlier efforts – had discovered a sprint finish which was closing in on the Ethiopian paring. The tall Kenyan caught Melkamu on line just as the Ethiopian had raised her arms to celebrate. Meanwhile Defar gave up and was passed by Ayalew and Momanyi.

After the race it registered that nine runners grouped in the outer stagger (asterisked above) – including Masai, Ayalew and Momanyi – may have run around six metres less than the entire race distance because they cut in immediately from the start as cones separating the echelons were not in place as required by IAAF rule 162.10. Therefore, while their times and placings will remain the same they are not eligible for statistical purposes.

Fastest in the world before Moscow was Meseret Defar, but she opted for the 5000m, while the fastest over that event was Dibaba, who went for the 10,000m, a title she had won twice before and at both the World Championships and Olympic Games.

The 27th heat mitigated against a fast time, as did history. Not since 1991 had the race been run with a faster first half. Moscow 2013 was no exception, with Flanagan then Niiya the principal leaders. The Japanese led a group of nine at the photo-cell beam at 5000m in 15:30.38 (15:30.44 by transponder). Niiya kept setting the pace with Dibaba settled in second place. Five laps from the finish, the lead group was down to five, Niiya, two Ethiopians and two Kenyans. At the start of the penultimate homestraight, Dibaba moved into the lead with only Cherono and Oljira able to follow. The imperious Ethiopian steadily built up a margin of more than 10m with her transponder-timed last lap of 59.92 (59.96 on photo-cell). Cherono was a clear second, with Oljira just holding off Chebet for third. The winner joined Valerie Adams, Allyson Felix and Maria Mutola as the only women to have won three individual world championships in a single event. Their record lasted only another 24 hours before Adams won her fourth title in the shot put.

This turned out to be the final race for the front-running Niiya, who later announced her retirement because of a persistent foot injury.

As in the Beijing 5000m (and indeed the Moscow 10,000m), the pace was set by the Japanese, this time Takashima and Ohara. Halfway was reached in 16:11.99 by transponder. The pace was raised marginally over the next 4000m, but with two laps to go there were still nine in contention – three each from Kenya, Ethiopia and the USA. Huddle forced the pace until 300m remained, when Burka and Cheruiyot took over. The Kenyan proved stronger, with a last 100m in 14.5. The Kenyan covered her final 400m in 60.43 compared with Burka's also excellent 61.09. A parallel burn-up for the bronze looked set to be won by Huddle, but she made the mistake of easing up before the line. Infield nipped past on her inside to snatch third place.

Reigning 5000m champion Ayana had won the Olympic title in an epic world record of 29:17.45. She had not competed so far in 2017 due to an unspecified injury and was regarded as both favourite and an enigma. The race was run at a cautious pace for the first 3600m, averaging 79-80 seconds per lap. Then Ayana made her move and showed she was in Olympic form again. A 68.66 circuit took her clear, with European Champion Can the only runner foolhardy enough to follow. At halfway (15:51.38), Can was 50m in arrears and Ayana had just completed a kilometre in 2:49.18 (28:12 pace). That grew to 250m at 9000m, with Tirop being the closest pursuer. In the most dominant of championship 10,000m performances, Ayana lapped all but four of the field, including the 2015 third and fourth placers Infeld and Huddle. The transponders showed that she'd completed the last half in 14:24.94, faster than her championship record at 5000m. Former champion Dibaba, now a marathoner, outkicked Tirop for the silver.

There were few more popular winners in Helsinki than the first of the week's gold medalists, Waitz. The four times New York marathon winner showed her experience by ignoring the break of Regina Joyce at 17Km. In very hot conditions, the Irishwoman built up a lead of 30 seconds from Brown, Smekhnova and Waitz at 20Km.

The chasers, led by Waitz, closed thereafter and the Norwegian took over at around 33Km. A sub-17:00 5Km section gave Waitz a 25-second lead from Smekhnova at 35Km. At this point, Brown was third before being forced to drop out with a sore achilles. Meanwhile, Waitz speeded up. She clocked 16:22 for the 5Km section up to 40Km and entered the stadium three minutes clear. On finishing, she was immediately necklaced with a massive laurel wreath which she later placed carefully on the side of the track before starting a victory lap.

Smekhnova came into the stadium in second place, but was passed by Dickerson. European Champion Mota took fourth while fifth place went to Gareau, who ran an extra 120m round the track before realising she had already finished the race. "It was the first time I've run a tactical race," said the winner, "and I liked it."

The two-time European Champion Rota Mota ran perhaps her greatest ever race. In hot conditions (23°C, 73% humidity) and on a difficult course, the 29 year-old Portuguese clocked the second-fastest ever time for a women-only race.

Mota led as the runners left the stadium and continued to pull away. At 15k she was more than one minute up on the pack. She passed halfway in 71:54. Ivanova led the chasing pack at this point and held on for the silver medal, more than seven minutes behind Mota.

Rosa Mota's great winning sequence in championship marathons came to an end when she fell back from the leaders at 24Km and dropped out at 26Km with abdominal pains. The Portuguese had been one of 10 women clear by halfway, led by Gradus (74:49). At 25Km the leading group had shrunk to six with Dörre leading from another Pole, Panfil. After another 10Km, these two had dropped all but Yamashita. The Japanese tried to break away at 40Km, but she could not shake off Panfil, who took a winning lead in the final 1200m.

Yamashita held on for second to win her country's first ever World Championship medal.

One day before China made such an impression on the Stuttgart World Championships, Japan had already shown the strength of Asian women distance runners by taking marathon gold and bronze.

After the USA's Kim Jones had led at halfway in 74:39, Machado made her bid, opening up a gap of 30m on Asari and Abe. The Portuguese continued to lead until 36Km, when Asari moved ahead. The Japanese drew clear to win comfortably. She entered the stadium with her sunglasses clipped to her running shorts.

The gallant Machado took the silver ahead of Abe. The two Japanese waited for their teammate Matsuno (11th) to finish before starting their victory lap.

The first of the Gothenburg titles was won in impressive style by the European Champion Machado, who ran brilliantly when the temperature was 24°C in the shade. Machado and World Cup winner Cătună were among the leading group of eight at around 15Km. The pair started to draw clear at 18Km and by 25Km had opened up a 90-second lead. At 30Km, Machado broke clear decisively.

The winning time of 2:25:39 was impressive in the conditions. However, late in the evening it was revealed that the race was short by 400m. "The runners were supposed to run four laps before leaving the stadium but instead ran three," explained Competition Director Carl-Gustav Tollemar. "This means they only ran 41,795m in total. I deeply regret this unfortunate mistake which will not affect the final placings." This error was not noticed until after the end of the race.

The woman to suffer most from the mistake was Sobanska, who eased off after thinking she had started too quickly. She finished strongly in fourth place and felt she might otherwise have had a chance to catch Ferrara.

"I never doubted myself," said Machado, who ran the second half of the race in 72:57. "I knew all along that I would win. When I woke up I felt perfect and my confidence only got better." With an extra 400m her time would have been in the region of 2:27:00 compared with her personal best of 2:27:42.

The race was expected to be a duel between defending champion Machado and Olympic gold medallist Roba but the Ethiopian, leader at halfway in 1:15:42, was reduced by injury to a walk shortly afterwards and failed to finish. The Portuguese had to settle for a distant second place, the outstanding winner being Japanese 10,000m record holder Suzuki, who was contesting only her third marathon after having placed second both in Osaka in 1996 (2:26:27) and in Nagoya earlier in 1997 (2:29:36). She broke away in the 28th kilometre and despite the hot weather and a tough course she covered the first half in 1:15:46 and the second in 1:14:02 to win by some 400m and lead Japan to World Cup team victory. Although violently sick during the race, Šimon moved into third place at 39Km.

She never ran another marathon but by becoming the first North Korean to capture any world title Jong Song-ok created history in Seville. With a best time of 2:29:54 from 1996 she was not even the PRK's no. 1 in Seville, for Kim Chang-ok had run 2:27:02. Despite the temperature rising from 24°C in the 9.05 am start to 32° by the finish, she clocked the startling national record time of 2:26:59 and won the closest World Championships marathon yet. With Naoko Takahashi out with a hip injury (on the morning of the race), Japanese hopes were pinned mainly on 1993 champion Asari but it was 21 year-old Ichihashi, whose previous best was 2:28:29, who fought it out for the gold, losing by just 3 seconds.

A pack of 15 reached halfway in 1:14:30 but after 2 hours of running only Ichihashi, Šimon and Jong were able to stay with the Olympic Champion, Roba. Soon afterwards Roba burst away and it looked all over but with 4 kilometres to go she was caught by the two Asians, who battled to the finish, and was later overtaken also by Šimon. The second half was completed by the winner in 1:12:29, amazing running in the conditions. Japan comfortably won the World Cup team contest held in conjunction.

One of the most bemedalled women in World Championship marathoning and half-marathoning, Lidia Šimon, finally won a gold medal on the last morning of action in Edmonton. It was another Romanian, Diță, who dominated the first half of the race which she covered in 72:17 to lead by almost two minutes. She was caught by a qualitative chasing pack after 32Km and soon Tosa was forcing the pace with only Šimon, Shibui and Zakharova able to follow.

By 40Km, the race was down to Tosa and Šimon. It looked as if the two might enter the stadium together before Šimon surged ahead on the final approach. She ran her halves of the race in 74:08 and 71:53. Zakharova outran Shibui for the bronze. In fifth place, Sonja Oberem maintained her gradual progression at these championships. She had been eighth in 1995, seventh in 1997 and sixth in 1999!

Ndereba had run 14 successive marathons at 2:28:02 or quicker including a world best of 2:18:47 in 2001. Paris was her first championship marathon and she ran with caution in the first half, dropping behind the pack because she felt she might be tripped. Tomescu-Diță raced with the opposite tactics, and tried to run away from the field as she did in Edmonton. She got as far ahead as 30 seconds or so at 5K, but later fell back and dropped out.

The lead pack were 18-strong at halfway (72:46). After another 10K at a similar pace only one woman (Salumäe) lost contact. Then Ndereba made her move, running the 5Km to 35Km in 16:46. Only the Japanese trio – led by Noguchi – and Ham Bong-sil of North Korea could remain in range as Ndereba clocked 15:58 for the next segment. At 40Km Noguchi was 100m back, about 250m ahead of her teammates. The Kenyan kept almost all of this advantage to the finish and won in 2:23:55. As with the men's race in Paris, this was the fastest ever championship or summer marathon. It was also Kenya's first gold medal of the week.

Noguchi claimed the silver medal and led Japan to victory in the World Cup. Significantly, she also gained selection for the Olympic marathon, which one year later in Athens she would win from Ndereba.

Having competed in seven global championships with just one medal (silver in the 1999 world 10,000m) Paula Radcliffe was regarded as a less than able big-time competitor. As was her wont she went to the front immediately, and only Ndereba, Tomescu-Diță and Kimutai took up the challenge. In cool but wet conditions Radcliffe comfortably passed 10Km in 33:23, 20Km in 66:16 and reached halfway in 69:49 with a 15m gap to the chasing trio, and a further 30 seconds to Zhou. At 30Km Radcliffe (1:39:22) was 11 seconds clear of Tomescu-Diță, with Ndereba five seconds further back, nearly a minute ahead of Kimutai. By 40Km Radcliffe was 47 seconds clear, and she finished 1:04 ahead of Ndereba, and Tomescu-Diță, fading fast, held on to beat Tulu for the bronze medal. Radcliffe summed it up – “it is right up there with running the world record. I’ve shown I can win major titles as well.”

The searing (32°C) heat ensured that this was the slowest ever women's World Championship marathon, with Ndereba running seven minutes outside her winning time of 2003. The halfway point was reached in 76:33 with almost half the 66-strong field still in contact. The pace increased slightly, and the 5Km section from 35Km to 40Km was the fastest of the race, taking 17:05 (2:24 pace), with Zhou, Zhu and Ndereba level, and Tosa two seconds behind. Ndereba then drew away from Zhou, to become the first woman to regain a world marathon title, while Zhu quickly lost ground, leaving Tosa to claim the bronze medal and gain automatic Olympic selection for Japan. “If I had been able to run naked I would have,” set the winner in reference to the conditions.

Kenya won the World Cup title, although Japan had been in the lead until Hara fell back to 16th place. The 2005 champion Radcliffe was not recovered after having given birth in January.

The local favourite Irina Mikitenko did not start due to a family bereavement, while another very late withdrawal was 2005 champion Radcliffe who had not sufficiently recovered from bunion surgery. The pace was cautious, with 10Km reached in 35:03 and halfway in 73:39 when there were 24 in the leading group. Although the third 10Km (34:49) was five seconds slower than the preceding 10Km, the lead group was halved. At 35Km there were just three at the head of the field, and Xue made her bid just after 40Km (2:18:10). Mergia soon dropped back, while Ozaki only faded in the last kilometre. Xue crossed the line under than Brandenburg Gate to become the youngest athlete (20 years 253 days) ever to win a medal in the event.

China took an easy team win over Japan and, initially, Russia (7:24:42). In 2012, the first Russian scorer Yulamanova was retrospectively disqualified for a doping offence. Almost 10 minutes were added to the Russian aggregate time and so Ethiopia were elevated to third place.

In 26°C heat and 72% humidity at the start, the runners were careful not to set off too quickly, passing 5Km in only 18.34 (2:55 tempo). The pace improved slightly, and a lead pack of 31 passed halfway in 1:16:46. The picture changed at 30Km when the Kenyans surged, and by 35Km the pack had dissolved to four, with three Kenyans and Kebede. The Ethiopian paid for her ambition, eventually dropping back to 12th. The principle drama came at the last drinks station, when Cherop accidentally tripped up Kiplagat, then sportingly hesitated to check that her compatriot was okay. Happily uninjured, Kiplagat quickly recovered and drew away from her teammates from 39Km point onwards to win by 17 seconds. Jeptoo and Cherop took silver and bronze, though Bekele gained 18 seconds on Cherop on the run-in from 40Km. It was the first-ever clean sweep in the event, and ensured an easy Kenyan win in the last ever World Cup tournament.

The heat (28°) didn't seem to bother the unheralded Straneo. The 37 year-old mother of two went straight into the lead and kept it for 95% of the race. Reigning champion Kiplagat was cautious in the early stages, passing 10Km in 34:42, some 30 seconds behind Straneo, but a 16:44 split for the next 5Km brought her back into contact. Straneo headed a group of six at halfway (72:58). Ten minutes later the pack was down to four (Straneo, Kiplagat, Fukushi and Melkamu). The Italian increased the pace slightly after 30Km with a 17:05 5Km portion, and only Kiplagat was now in touch. The two had a gap of almost a minute to Melkamu, who dropped out after 36Km. Straneo reached 40Km in 2:18:22, and a few seconds later Kiplagat went to the front and eventually won by 14 seconds from the valiant Italian, who later declared "I am the surprise of the day." Even more surprised was third-placed Fukushi who claimed "I didn't even know until I entered the stadium. I was very happy to find out I won a medal."

Nervous of the heat (73°C) and humidity (89%), no-one was willing to set a fast pace, and as in the other Beijing long distance races, it was the Japanese who led the way. The halfway point was reached in 75:16. At 33Km Dibaba made a move, reducing the leading pack from 12 to six. Herself, Tufa, three Kenyans and Bahrain's Kenyan transferee Kirwa. Dibaba led at 40Km after a 10Km split of 33:48, nearly two minutes faster than any of the three previous 10Ks. "I tested the others", she later admitted.

Into Olympic Green with the stadium in sight, four women were locked together ahead of a struggling Kiplagat – Sumgong, Kirwa, Kiprop and Dibaba. Kirwa surged on the penultimate turn towards the Bird's Nest, but no-one was dropped. Dibaba then made her effort, moving clear on the decline into the stadium tunnel. Sumgong was dropped, then Kirwa, but not Kiprop. The tall Kenyan almost drew level with Dibaba with less than 100m remaining, but the Ethiopian had enough in reserve for a response. It was the closest women's marathon in World Championship history, with just seven seconds covering the top four.

There had been early attempts to make a break, with Ribeiro leading by 35 seconds at one point before being caught in the 11th kilometre. Dixon led at halfway in 74:20, and had 35 seconds on the field before being reeled in at 29Km. As late as 35Km, there was still an unusually large lead group of 14 runners, including four Ethiopians, three Kenyans, and two each from the USA and Bahrain. Cragg began to push the pace at 36Km and the group was reduced to nine. Chelimo moved to the front, and went 15m clear after 38Km, with 2011/2013 champion Kiplagat the closest chaser. The Kenyan was one second ahead of Chelimo at 40Km (2:20:06), with Cragg and Cheyech 40m back. The Kenyan-Bahraini Chelimo then made her final effort and eventually won by seven seconds from Kiplagat. Cragg finished brilliantly, gaining more than 10 seconds on the exhausted Kiplagat in the last 600m.

"My life will change because I am a World Champion for my country now," said Chelimo, whose transfer from Kenya to Bahrain was approved in 2016.

While Inzikuru, a steeplechase specialist, had the fastest time before Helsinki, Janowska, and particularly Zadorozhnaya, were good flat runners thought to have a good chance of triumphing in the first ever world women's steeplechase final. Inzikuru set a brave pace, and with a first kilometre of 2:57.98 only had her two principal rivals for company. Though the pace slowed to 6:05.20 at 2000m, Janowska was dropped, and shortly after Zadorozhnaya began to slip back, eventually fading to sixth. Inzikuru was never threatened, although Volkova closed to within 15m at the finish, and the Ugandan thus won her country's first-ever world gold.

Galkina, the world record holder, was the favourite, while Dorcus Inzikuru was unable to defend her title. Galkina led through the first kilometre (3:00.35) in the final, but then inexplicably began to slip back. Volkova took over the lead, and by 2000m (6:05.46) was almost 10m clear of Petrova and Jepkorir. She increased her lead by a couple of metres before the bell, and went away to win by nearly 20m from Petrova in the second fastest time ever. Jepkorir slipped back in the last lap, but easily held off Bisibori for the bronze. Volkova noted afterwards “Galkina is the best, there was something wrong with her today”, and then correctly predicted “she [Samitova] will be the first one under nine minutes.”

The favourite Galkina, troubled by a knee injury, led from the gun and paced 1000m in 3:01.26. She continued in front but not at the searing pace she'd set at the Beijing Olympics when she broke the world record. The second kilometre was covered in 3:05.19. It was Zarudneva, not Galkina who proved to be the strongest Russian challenger. She led a group of seven at the bell and repelled a challenge from Ghribi to drop all but Dominguez until just before the final hurdle, when the Spaniard zipped by to win by 8m. It was “the most important victory of my life,” according to the winner, who had fallen while in medal contention at the 2008 Olympics.

Chemos – fifth at the final water-jump – ended drastically thereafter to almost deprive Zarudneva for the silver. She had ran her first steeplechase only four months earlier. Defending champion Volkova went out in the heats.

In November 2015 and after years of legal procedures, Dominguez was found guilty of a doping violation. The Spanish Athletic Federation had earlier cleared the Spaniard of irregularities in her biological passport, but that decision was contested by both the IAAF and WADA. The Court of Arbitration for Sport ultimately ruled that Dominguez be banned for three years to October 2017, with a result disqualification backdated to August 5, 2009. Her Berlin title went to Zarudneva – who as Zaripova would be stripped of the next world title.

Zaripova, as Zarudneva, originally won silver behind Marta Dominguez in 2009 and then front-ran to the European title ahead of the Spaniard in 2010. The Russian repeated her 2010 tactic in Daegu. The Kenyans stayed with her through kilometre splits of 3:00.70 and 3:03.66 before the Russian began to move away in the penultimate lap. Ghribi passed the Kenyans with 650m to go and looked like a threat to Zaripova, but instead the Russian's superior barrier technique and strength enabled her to draw away over the last 200m. Her time of 9:07.03 moved her into third on the all-time list.

Sadly this proved to be the second successive World Championship where the women's steeplechase champion was disqualified for a doping offence. In 2009, Zarudneva/Zaripova had been promoted to gold after Dominguez was charged. That was in November 2015, but already in January of that year, Zaripova was one of six Russians sanctioned by the Russian Anti-Doping Agency for an offence based on anomalies in her Athlete Biological Passport. Once the details of their sanctions had been confirmed by the Court of Arbitration for Sport (in March 2016), the IAAF set out her punishment. This included the annulment of all of Zaripova's results since and including that of July 20, 2011. The 2011 world title went to Ghibri who therefore became her country's first World Champion in athletics. She also claimed Zaripova's 2012 Olympic title, receiving that medal in June 2016. Five other women were disqualified for doping infractions from this event in Daegu 2011, including four more finalists.

After one lap of the final, all Kenyans and Ethiopians were clear of the field. Ayalew led through 1000m in 3:01.72, and then Chemos took the lead. The shortest of the contenders, and with a rudimentary hurdle technique, she covered the second kilometre in 3:09.64. With just under two laps to go, Assefa hit a hurdle and fell, losing 20m. Chemos lifted the pace approaching the bell, and though training partner Chepkurui got near during the last lap, she could never pass her diminutive teammate. Chemos became Kenya's first female world steeplechase champion. Behind her Chepkurui only just held off Asefa for silver. Without the fall, the Ethiopian would surely have been battling for gold. The transponder time for her final lap was 73.27, quicker than the 73.68 of the winner.

The two biggest threats to East Africa never made it to Moscow. Olympic silver medallist Habiba Ghibri withdrew with an injury. So did defending champion Yulia Zaripova, who was reported as having hurt her knee hurdling, but was later declared guilty by the Russian Anti-Doping Agency of having committed a doping offence from July 25, 2013.

Final (Aug 26)

1, Hyvin Jepkemoi	KEN	9:19.11

After a slow start, Babar of India broke away, passing 1000m in 3:09.96, and still led at 2000m in 6:22.27. Coburn took the lead with two laps to go, and at the bell (8:12.85) there were still seven in the leading group. Olympic Champion Ghibri went to the front just after the bell, but could not break away. As the leaders came out of the final water jump, the Tunisian led by inches from Jepakemoi, with Krause, Coburn and Assefa just behind. Approaching the final barrier Krause sidestepped inside and came off the final hurdle just ahead of Ghibri, with Jepakemoi third. In an exciting finish, those positions were reversed with the Kenyan emerging as the victor. Barely a metre covered the top three.

For Morocco, Ouahdoud was disqualified for a third successive World Championships. Her results in 2011 and 2013 were annulled because of doping violation revealed by her biological passport. In Beijing she was sanctioned for stepping inside the inner lane line.

One of the moments of the London World Championships which will be played again and again came 90 seconds into the steeplechase final. Chepkoech, one of the favourites, had been leading at a gentle paced when she simply forgot to cut inside and take the first water jump. She realised her mistake and did the right thing – doubling back and following the path she should have taken in the first instance – but lost 50m in the process. She then fell on the following lap, hampering the European Champion Krause among others.

As Chepkoech miraculously made her way back into contention, world record holder Jebet led a pack of six at 1000m (3:02.74 by photocell); herself, Yavi, Chespol, Jepkemoi and the Americans Coburn and Frerichs. Jebet's pace first dropped her Kenyan-Bahraini compatriot Yavi, and it looked as if she would run from the front for gold as she had at the Rio Olympics. Yet with three laps left, the gap behind her did not grow and six women were still in contention at 2000m (6:03.60).

Surprisingly it was world leader Chespol who cracked first, then Jebet unexpectedly succumbed to Chepkoech at the bell and folded completely in the backstraight. Still running strongly were the American pair and they hit the front coming off the last water jump. Against expectation, Coburn drew clear and her compatriot held off Jepkemoi for the silver.

The efficiency of the water-jumping by the top two was praised by the London biomechanics, who concluded that "developing effective water jump clearance technique is key to making sure that medals are not 'lost in the water'".

7,	Cornelia Riefstahl	GDR	12.94	0.139
8,	Benita Fitzgerald	USA	12.99	0.164

Windy conditions on the last days of the championships blew Bettine Jahn to history's fastest time but prevented the mark from being accepted as a record.

The 25 year-old GDR hurdler, only third in the previous year's European Championships, ran a perfect race from lane 1 to clock 12.35, 0.01 quicker than the 1980 world record of Grazyna Rabsztyń. For a moment the stadium was celebrating the third world record of the championships. Then the following wind was confirmed as 2.4 metres per second. A strong second was Jahn's taller compatriot Knabe, who closed down on the leader over the last two hurdles.

Yordanka Donkova, who set three world records in 1986, was left without a medal in a final which resembled a Bulgaria versus GDR international.

Donkova had been supplanted as world record holder by her teammate Zagorcheva, and it was she who dominated in the final. Donkova held second place briefly but was overtaken by the GDR pair of Uibel and Oschkenat.

The event went to form when Ljudmila Narozhilenko added the world outdoor title to the one she had won indoors in March. The Soviet record holder (12.28) ran the fastest times in each of the rounds and took control of the final from the third hurdle.

It looked as if the USSR would also claim the silver, before Devers-Roberts surged at the end of the race. Her run represented a remarkable comeback. She had suffered from Graves' disease – a thyroid condition – which prevented her from competing in 1989 and 1990. Six months before the championships she was confined to her bed and almost had to have her feet amputated. She miraculously recovered and started training seriously in May.

The silver and bronze medalists of 1987, Siebert (née Uibel) and Oschkenat – were both eliminated in the first round.

Devers made amends for falling in the Olympic final by taking her second world gold in five days. The American was helped by the fact that her main rival, Azyabina, false-started in the final.

It was Tolbert who showed the best reactions when the race started for real. She was caught by Devers before halfway. The 100m champion easily held off the closing charge of Azyabina to break her own American record. Tolbert held on for the bronze.

The form book indicated that Devers would face a strong challenge from Shishigina, who was unbeaten in 10 hurdles races in 1995 and had a best of 12.44. Devers, meanwhile, was having a low-key season in which she avoided sprinting due to a tender hamstring.

In the final, the American got a poor start but her speed between the hurdles showed. Shishigina was the better hurdler but was no match for the American. "In the race I just focussed on my lane," said Devers. "I didn't know of the others."

After setting Commonwealth records of 12.53 and 12.52 in the preliminaries, and with a clear lead in the early stages of the final, Freeman must have believed everything was going her way. But her fate was to finish third. Sweden's Olympic Champion Engquist (who won this title in 1991 as Lyudmila Narozhilenko of the USSR) kept her head and, despite being as much as 6/100ths behind Freeman after 40m she was ahead at the seventh hurdle and went on to finish a metre clear. The Jamaican was passed on the run-in by Dimitrova. Girard was disqualified for two false starts.

8,	Vonette Dixon	JAM	13.02	0.140

All eyes were looking to see if Devers could win a fourth title, but there was an upset in the final when another American, Kirkland, won the gold from lane 1. Devers had impressed most in the qualifying round, clocking a world-leading 12.56 in her semi. Kirkland had finished only third in the other semi in 12.80, hence the unfavoured draw in the following day's final.

In the first half of the final a third American, Adams, had the best start and she, Devers and Kirkland were placed first, second and third. Adams faded, Devers hit the eighth barrier and Shishigina came up with Dimitrova to contest the bronze. Meanwhile Kirkland ran a perfect race to complete a great double. In March she had won the world indoor title from lane 8.

It was one of the great human interest stories in athletics history, two of the medals in this event falling to women who had faced potentially fatal health problems and yet returned to competition at the highest level. For them to win or lose a race remained a challenge but was hardly a life and death issue compared to what they had overcome. Both came away delighted and their post-race embrace was moving indeed. Devers, once stricken with the life threatening Graves' Disease, not only won her third world hurdles title but smashed her American record of 12.46 by 9/100ths for the world's quickest time for seven years. She also moved ahead of Jackie Joyner-Kersey with a women's record five World Goals. But it was by no means a perfect run as she struck the final hurdle and nearly fell headlong. She managed to recover although the stumble must have added several hundredths to her time.

Alozie set an African record of 12.44 for second while breast cancer sufferer Engquist, who faced a further course of chemotherapy just a few days later, couldn't believe how fast she had run – a Swedish record of 12.47 for the bronze medal. Believing 12.60 to be her limit at that time in the 1991 and 1997 champion had burst into tears after clocking 12.50 in her semi and this was a further bonus. The standard was so high that Shishigina, the pre-Seville favourite, ran 12.51 but came away empty-handed.

The big shock was that Gail Devers did not qualify for the final. She had impressed most on the Grand Prix circuit in 2003, but hit a hurdle badly in her semi-final. Despite a quick recovery, her time of 12.87 did not hold up for advancement.

Foster was a clear world number two to Devers so she was expected to win gold. It was silver thanks to the surprising Felicien, who had a good start and took control by the fourth hurdle, then without Foster's closing lunge on the run-in. Hers was the first medal won by a Canadian woman at a World Championships. The 2001 champion Kirkland had given birth in May and only made a token appearance in the heats.

finalist Delloreen Ennis-London had won the first of the three semis, enabling Jamaica to maintain its record of being the only country to supply a finalist in every year from 1993 onwards. The Jamaicans held the United States athletes in the final until halfway, when Perry went clear. Hayes began to attack with three hurdles to go and was in second place when she hit the ninth, and then ran into the 10th hurdle, carrying it towards the finish line, where she fell to the track, distraught and doomed to be disqualified. Perry won by a metre, with Ennis-London just edging Foster-Hylton for silver.
